U. S. Firm Sold Both Sides Arms In Cuba's Strife

By Robert C. Albright.

Movements of American munitions makers in Cuban revolutionary scenes yesterday opened new armament vistas to the Senate munitions investigating committee.

John W. Young, president of Federal Laboratories, Inc., an American concern, told how he walks unchallenged now through the palace doors of President Mendieta of Cuba, whose cause he frankly espoused in earlier revolutionary days.

Wooden models of submachine guns, tear and "sickening" gas bombs were dangled before the committee as witnesses took the stand.

Denying sales to racketeers or gangsters, but freely admitting large tear gas shipments for use in strike disorders, Mr. Young, blond and bespectacled, told an intriguing tale of the associations and powers of arms manufacturers.

Cuban Arms Deals.

At his side, Frank S. Jonas, dark and heavy-cheeked, who handled much of Federal Laboratories' export business, commented shortly on munitions deals with Cuba, and special "commissions" allegedly paid "even to some of the chauffeurs" in the old Machado regime.

Switching rapidly from foreign to American operations of the armament company, witnesses told of correspondence and other relations in this country with a mysterious arms dealer known as "Sidewalk" Sedgly.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, declared Sedgly is known as "Sidewalk" because of his alleged reputation for marketing guns on the streets.

The committee earlier completed examination of United Aircraft & Transport Co. officials, who testified Monday to large "commercial" airplane engine shipments into Germany.

Prohibition Interpreted.

An official State Department memorandum, interpreting Versailles Treaty prohibitions on German importation of war material of any kind, was read into the record.

"It has been the custom of the department, when occasion has arisen, to inform manufacturers and exporters that the export of arms, ammunition and implements of war to Germany would not be regarded with favor by this Government," read a statement prepared by Joseph C. Green, of the department's European staff.

Stoutly insisting United Aircraft shipments abroad are for "commercial" purposes only, Donald Brown, an United company witness, heatedly told the committee:

"Gentlemen, I do not like the inference that we have been unpatriotic in the conduct of our business.

Turning to Federal Laboratories' activities in Cuba, Young and Jonas told the committee of negotiations

2 Are Indicted In Realty Fraud

Baltimore Jail Official, Brother Accused of Misusing Mails.

Baltimore, Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Charging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud, an indictment was returned today against Samuel Lawrence Hammerman, a member of the jail board, and manager of E. Lester Muller's successful campaign for election to the presidency of the city council.

The indictment, returned by a special session of the Federal grand jury, contains ten counts against Hammerman and his brother, Herman Hammerman.

The charges are that the two operated a large number of real estate companies in various cities and that they bought tracts of land near 28 large cities, including Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Washington, Trenton, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Indianapolis, and Toledo.

The case, which was prepared for prosecution by Georga E. Brill, local postoffice inspector, after a protracted investigation, was presented to the grand jury by Walter L. Barlow, a special assistant to the attorney general, sent here from Washington.

Barlow examined the only two witnesses who appeared before the grand jury. The attorney said he had been informed the defendants would surrender tomorrow. Bail will be set at $10,000 each, he asserted.

'Sleeping Gas,' Valuable War Tool, Reported

Giera, Called to Arms Quiz, Will Offer Formula to U. S., He States.

Monticello, N. Y., Sept. 18 (AP).—Philip Del Fungo Giera, proprietor of a "mystery laboratory" in the Sullivan County hills, said today he would offer the Government a powerful "sleeping gas" when he goes to Washington next week to testify before the Senate Munitions Committee.

Giera was described to the Nye committee last Friday as an "international spy" hired by the Du Pont company in February, 1933, to sell powder in Germany and Holland.

In his remote laboratory here, he revealed, he has recently perfected a "sleeping gas" which he claimed was caple of putting an army to sleep within a minute.

One man, carrying a small cylinder of gas in his pocket, can put anyone within 300 feet asleep with one discharge, Giera declared.

"The gas cannot be seen or smelled," Giera said.

Victims, he said, remain asleep two hours and awake unharmed by the gas.

"If it is desired to keep them sleeping a longer time, stronger doses can be fired."

Police and troopers, Giera suggested, would find the gas useful in dealing with riot conditions.

The individual using the anaesthetic, Giera said, needs no mask.

"He merely puts a small tablet in his mouth, and is immune," he claimed. Giera said he had tried the gas on himself.

"I intend to submit the gas to Army and Navy officials at Washington," Giera said.

Strike Grows As Harriman Assails Union

Men Forced to Quit Work, Says Chamber Leader; 4,000 Out in Maine.

Troops patrolled mill centers in several States yesterday, but little violence was reported in the Nation-wide textile strike. The situation generally was quiet.

The walkout was denounced as "vicious and unwarranted" by Henry I. Harriman, United States Chamber of Commerce president, in a radio speech.

Other developments included a threat by unionists to call out 100,000 additional workers by the end of the week, an announcement that organized labor would seek Federal elections in the mills to choose collective bargaining representatives and predictions that a Presidential mediation board would report shortly.

421,000 Estimated Out.

Although several thousand workers returned to Southern mills under National Guard protection, a survey by the Associated Press placed the number of idle at 421,000, as compared with 401,000 at the end of last week.

Francis J. Gorman, union chairman, estimated the participants at 500,000 while George A. Sloan, Cotton Textile Institute president, contended only 105,633 were out.

The tie-up gained momentum in Maine as the Pepperell Manufacturing Co. at Biddeford, with 4,000 employes, closed. Riots ceased in Rhode Island. Troops were demobilized in Connecticut.

In his talk, Harriman charged a majority of the workers did not wish to strike and that "lawlessness, intimidation and actual or threat-

Endeavour Wins Again; Sets Record

Takes Second Victory in Spite of Jib Collapse; Needs Two More.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 18 (AP).—Giving a highly successful demonstration of the fact that nautical lightning at least can strike twice in the same place, the British bolt of royal blue flashed brilliantly in triumph again today on the high seas and dealt a dazzling blow to the defense of the America's Cup.

Thomas Sopwith's blue-hulled Endeavour, British challenger for the most famous of all international yacht-racing honors, not only whipped Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow, the defender, for the second successive day, but broke the America's Cup record for speed over a 30-mile triangular course and satisfied all hands it will take something approaching a miracle to stop the invader from taking the "old mug" back to the land of its birth.

Two more victories in a series limited to seven races will clinch for Sopwith the cup that the old schooner America captured in 1851, and which only once before has been in danger of leaving the United States.

In 1920 Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV had an even more commanding margin of two victories to none over the defender Resolute in a five-match series, but whereas that challenger was aided first by a breakdown of Resolute and then a fluke, before losing three straight, Sopwith's Endeavour now has captured two clean-cut victories and demonstrated without the shadow of a doubt that he has the faster boat.

Genoa Jib Collapses.

Except for a few seconds at the start Endeavour held the lead throughout in a fairish breeze that measured 14 knots at the outset, but eventually diminished to 9½ knots. She gave another splendid exhibition of her extraordinary speed as well as a better display of seamanship, despite an accident that ultimately led to the collapse of her big Genoa jib. She piled up a comfortable margin with much the better of the going on the first 10-mile reach, as well as the ensuing leg, and had no difficulty standing off Rainbow's challenge on the closing 10-mile reach.

Rainbow picked up 40 seconds on the last 10 miles but Endeavour crossed the finish line fully 300 yards in front, with a lead of 51 seconds on time. Both sloops were under the former America's Cup record as Endeavour covered the triangular course in 3 hours 9 minutes 1 second, while Rainbow crossed the line in 3:09:52.

Set Four Years Ago.

It was exactly four years ago to the day, September 18, 1930, that Vanderbilt crowned his sweep over Shamrock V by winning the fourth and last race of the series in what

Stavisky Scheme To Fake Death in Wreck Revealed

Paris, Sept. 18 (AP).—Serge Stavisky shortly before his death, planned to fake evidence that he had died, authorities were told today by former Lieut. Rene Piglagio.

Stavisky, whose career of financial manipulation while he was head of the Bayonne Municipal Pawn Shop wrecked three governments and rocked France, planned to have himself counted among the dead in the Lagny train wreck, in which 200 lives were lost last Christmas eve, the lieutenant said.

Two children and their governess saw Stavisky after the wreck and the plan was dropped.

The committee investigating the Stavisky scandal voted to make public the full report of the secret investigation of the death of Judge Albert Prince, who was about to give testimony concerning Stavisky's activities.

CCC Workers Find Baby Girl Lost for 30 Hours in Woods

Richmond, R. I., Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Two-year-old Nancy Marshall, for whom an army of 300 had been searching for more than 30 hours, was found safe and unharmed in a swamp near here tonight.

The curly-haired baby was discovered by CCC workers from a nearby camp. She was seen waving from a damp thicket only a third of a mile from the 150-year-old farmhouse of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Marshall, who have 10 other children.

Nancy had disappeared yesterday afternoon. When she failed to return from play with two sisters and a brother the search—one of the largest in the history of the State—was immediately organized.

That the child had not been found by the hundreds of State troopers, firemen, boy scouts and volunteers, who tramped the vicinity all last night and today was not immediately explained. Police, however, believed Nancy was merely lost in the woods and scouted any suggestions of kidnaping or foul play.

Nancy was taken to the office of Dr. Milton Duckworth in Carolina. After dressing minor scratches and bruises and making a careful examination, the physician said Nancy apparently had suffered no serious effects from her long stay in the open.

Mrs. Marshall had taken part in the hunt for Nancy last night, and all today had cared for her other children while the search went on.

State Police Superintendent Edward Kelly drove Nancy and her mother back home, where Nancy was put to bed and immediately fell asleep.

The father, who came home today after a three-week search for work only to find his little daughter missing, was overjoyed at her safe return.

THEODORE G. BILBO.

PHILLIP LA FOLLETTE.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Theodore G. Bilbo, fiery veteran of the Mississippi stumps, took a commanding lead over the incumbent, Hubert D. Stephens, tonight in returns from the run-off primary to select a United States Senator.

With 168,100 votes counted and 1,285 of the State's 1,641 precincts reported, Bilbo led by 3,450 votes. His lead was mounting steadily, as returns trickled in from the backwoods, where Bilbo sentiment is strongest.

All indications were that Bilbo would be sent to Washington, as a teammate to the celebrated Senator Pat Harrison, to "raise more hell than Huey Long," as he has promised to do.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 18 (AP).—Mississippi Democrats cast a heavy vote today in writing their choice between United States Senator Hubert D. Stephens, seeking reelection, Milwaukee, Wis., Sept 18 (AP).—Wisconsin Democrats rallied behind their 73-year-old leader, Gov. A. G. Schmedeman, in today's primary election, and on the strength of early returns led a vote getting scramble amon gthe four parties.

In 171 out of 2,916 precincts Gov. Schmedeman polled 3,801 votes; Iam B. Rubin, 647, and Richard Lehmann, 247.

Philip F. La Follette, progressive candidate for Governor received 2,329 votes in 125 percincts and his opponent, Henry O. Meissel, 113. Senator Robert M. La Follette had no opposition.

Republicans, with a three-cornered fight for the gubernatorial nomination, gave Howard T. Greene, Genesee Depot dairy farmer a lead in returns from 138 precincts. The vote was: Greene, 2,383; former Gov. Fred Zimmerman, 1,720, and James N. Tittemore, 292.

Proposal Is Discussed at Estimate Hearing for '36 Fiscal Year.

New York, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Burgomaster Fiorello H. LaGuardia and his fusion party government, desperately in need of money for New York's many hungry and homeless, tonight embarked upon a revolutionary taxing program involving the creation of a municipal lottery and a levy of 15 per cent on income tax payments made to the Federal Treasury.

The lottery scheme was approved so overwhelmingly by the board of aldermen and then by the board of estimate that its adoption by other cities as a means of raising relief funds was widely forecast.

Based wholly on an appeal to the gambling instinct, the lottery has encountered such public favor that Magistrate Mark Rudich saw fit today to discharge a suspect accused of possessing a policy-game slip. In its basic principles, the municipal lottery would differ in no way from the Harlem policy games, in which participants wager on number combinations, winners being determined by bank clearings, the Treasury balance, total shares sales on the stock exchange or even race-track prices.

The city fathers frankly expect opposition from church people and they are prepared to take the issue into the courts. They don't call it a lottery. "What lottery?" asked Mayor LaGuardia when someone used the word in his presence.

The tax program today included three points: The lottery, the tax on Federal income tax payments, under which a person paying $100 to the Federal Government would have to shell out $15 to the city, and one-tenth of 1 per cent tax on business receipts.

Mayor LaGuardia must now wait five days before calling a public hearing on the new program.

The question of a municipal lottery to provide funds for urgently needed city improvements was injected into the hearings yesterday on the District's departmental estimates for the 1936 fiscal year.

The suggestion was made by Commissioner George E. Allen, who asked Evan H. Tucker, of the Northeast Washington Citizens Association, what he thought about the practicability of a lottery to provide needed funds.

"I am very much opposed to it," Tucker said.

"What's wrong with a lottery?" Allen asked.

"It is a gamble," the witness replied.

"Isn't everything a gamble?" questioned Allen.

"No," snapped Mr. Tucker. "Not to my mind."

Later, Allen told newspaper reporters that he did not intend to advocate a lottery. "I asked the question," he said, "but what I might think about a lottery doesn't count and couldn't affect the budget we are preparing. A lottery would require special legislation and it is a rock-bound cinch that such a measure would never get through Congress.

Yaden Proposal.

A small increase in present taxes and a larger Federal appropriation to provide funds for required municipal activities next year was urged by James G. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

"That would meet with my full approval," the federation head said when the proposal was put up to him as a question by Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor and budget officer, who has sat with the Commissioners during the hearings, but has heretofore kept silent.

"I am not here pleading for any material increase in the budget or in the taxes," Yaden said at the outset after he had indorsed the plea of Henry I. Quinn, member of the Board of Education, for increased appropriations for the Community Center Department. Yaden said he was "sadly disappointed" the Board of Education had not asked for more than a $30,000 increase for next year.

Analysis of the prospective District finances next year, Maj. Donovan said, showed the budget would have to be based on $32,100,000 or present taxes would have to be increased or new revenue sources found.

"That is the situation, and, because of your position, I would like to know what you think the Com-

Graphic Arts Code Illegal, Firm Claims

President Neglected to Sign It, Capital Concern Says.

'Discrimination' in Enforcing Recovery Act Alleged.

Because of the alleged failure of President Roosevelt to affix his signature to the code of fair competition of the graphic arts industry, no code for the industry has ever been lawfully promulgated, attorneys for the W. F. Roberts Co., Inc., one of the city's oldest printing establishments, charged yesterday in the District Supreme Court where they are appearing in opposition to attempts to compel the company to subscribe to NRA regulations.

The answer of the Roberts company to the Government's suit, which seeks to "enjoin and restrain" the company from paying less than the minimum wage, less than the overtime wage of the code and to require the company to post in its workshops the code regulations governing hours and wages, was accompanied by a photostatic copy of the last page of the President's proclamation adopting the code.

This showed that a dotted line prepared for his signature was blank. However, the President's signature does appear on a following page at the bottom of an explanatory statement. Attorneys representing the printing company said that "due, no doubt to the inadvertence, haste or failure to comply with the then Executive orders as to preparation and submission "of the code to various departments, the order was never signed.

Flatly Refused to Sign.

The missing signature was described as vitiating the code because under the act creating the NRA, the Chief Executive's signature was a prerequisite to the issuance of a lawful code.

The answer revealed that the Roberts company has flatly refused to sign the code. "Dut to the illegalities, irregularities and unwarranted assumptions of authority" by code authorities the "defendant denies * * * that the Government had any right and authority to induce this defendant to comply with the alleged code, to discuss the subject with this defendant, and to attempt to secure compliance.

"This defendant admits upon advice of counsel it consistently, generally, always properly and respectfully, but nevertheless adamantly, declined to surrender the operation of its business to the usurped and arbitrary control of the militant labor organizations then and now dominant in its particular field of operation, which were prompting said assumed compulsion and supervision and admits that it did so without explanation * * * because explanations would have been futile."

Officers and representatives of Columbia Typographical Union 101 attempted "to create disagreement, dissension, unrest and schisms among the loyal employes of this defendant," the answer charged. They also attempted, it was charged, "to enforce, intimidate, coerce and

Chicago Accord Ends Suit and Coat Tieup

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Cleaners' and Dyers' combination strike and lockout that tied up 500,000 to 750,000 suits, coats and dresses in the metropolitan area for 12 days, ended today.

Employers and employes of members of the Cleaning and Dyeing Plant Owners' Association had agreed on the strike-lockout in an effort to force so-called "independents" to raise prices. Representatives of both sides reached a price scale agreement today.

Litvinoff Warns Of War, Taking Seat in League

Duce's Decree Calls Youth of Italy 'to Arms'

Boys Over 8 Required to Get Training for War Machine.

Rome, Sept. 18 (AP).—Italy's little boys turned tonight from marbles to machine guns, as Premier Mussolini ordered compulsory military training for all the nation's males above the age of 8.

The order prescribed schooling in warfare for every Italian older than 8 and younger than 33, more than half his normal span of life.

Tonight Italy's newspapers hailed with huge headlines this "revival of the spirit of the ancient Romans," asserting unanimously that more and better trained material would be provided for the country's highly geared war machine.

"The functions of the citizen and the soldier are indivisible in the Fascist state," Il Duce and his cabinet proclaimed as they decreed what was believed to be the most sweeping peace-time mobilization in history.

Last month, at Bologna, Mussolini, warning that the "idea of war is floating in the air," told Italy to get prepared for it.

Today he took decisive, determined steps to see that she obeys.

Compulsory military training, the council stated, is an "integral part of the national legislation."

Henceforward "it begins as soon as a boy is old enough to learn and continues as long as a citizen is able to carry arms in defense of his country."

Three categories of compulsory

Vote Is Sweeping For Soviet Union

Switzerland, Holland, Portugal Are Only Dissenters.

Geneva, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—A stern warning to the world that war is "the threatening danger of tomorrow" was voiced by Maxim Litvinoff tonight, at a historic session of the League of Nations Assembly which elected the Communist Russian Republic to membership.

Litvinoff indirectly denounced the activities of Germany and Japan in his maiden address as foreign commissar of the newly admitted Soviet Union in league circles.

"Everybody knows," he said, "that the exponents of the ideas of war and the open promulgators of refashioning the maps of Europe and Asia by the sword are not to be intimidated by paper obstacles."

Warns of Armaments.

Bluntly referring to Germany's alleged aerial rearmament plans, Litvinoff said: "We must not lose sight that new and increased armaments are proceeding under our eyes. The chief danger consists of the quality rather than the quantity of the increase. The fact that aerial warfare has won an equal place with land and naval armaments is sufficient corroboration of this argument."

His speech was the highlight in an active day in the assembly, when an overwhelming majority of delegates voted in favor of admitting the Soviet Union into this section of the family of nations.

The League Assembly approved with a minimum of discussion a resolution that Russia be admitted to full membership, ending 15 years' isolation. The vote was 39 in favor, 3 against and 7 not voting.

Permanent Seat Voted.

The assembly then voted the Soviet Union a permanent seat on the league council, its chief governing body, the ballot being 40 to 0. Ten delegates did not vote.

The nations voting "no" on Russia's entry were Switzerland, Holland and Portugal. Those who abstained included Argentina, Belgium, Cuba, Luxembourg, Nicaragua, Peru and Venezuela. Panama and Siam were "normally" absent, although their delegates are attending the assembly.

The next move was approval of the Soviet's credentials, which was quickly disposed of, and the U. S. S. R., with its Communist and anti-religious principles, was declared a full-fledged member of the capitalistically-controlled league.

Litvinoff Voices Gratitude.

Litvinoff, Moscow's foreign commissar who negotiated United States recognition last autumn, entered the tribunal a moment later, and walked to his seat virtually unnoticed.

Litvinoff began his speech by expressing gratitude.

"Our entry into the league in the fifteenth year of its existence calls for an explanation," he said. "I shall speak with frankness and moderation. We represent a new state—new in structure and aspirations. A new state is always met with hostility which is not merely theoretical but military interference."

Litvinoff said the U. S. S. R. dis-

Ships Speed Aid to Nome Fire Victims

Nome Alaska, Sept. 18 (AP).—Dire need in the face of approaching winter harassed the virtually helpless populace of fire-stricken Nome today.

Every building in town except the Government wireless station, one hotel, a hospital, a section of waterfront warehouses and a few residences in the northern part of the municipality lay in ruins.

Eskimos, some of them drunk, others frightened, ranged through the ruins of Alaska's famous city of gold. Many were arrested and placed in improvised jails to prevent possible looting.

Hundreds Homeless.

Hundreds of the town's 1,500 population were homeless, foodless and even without household belongings. The city's food reserve was in ashes, temperatures dipped near the freezing point. The Arctic winter and the long night were creeping upon the forlorn community.

In six weeks or less the Arctic ice will close in, leaving Nome isolated until next summer, except for airplane and dog-team transportation.

Government forces, the Red Cross and prominent individuals moved quickly to provide relief.

Three Coast Guard cutters of the Bering Sea patrol were ordered to rush to the stricken city and share their food and medical supplies.

Sourdoughs from the Tundra were called in and asked to bring their food supplies.

Ships from Seattle were ordered laden with necessities and dispatched as quickly as possible.

Thoughts turned from the casualties—two Eskimos killed and several other persons injured—to food.

The steamer Victoria was en route to Nome when the fire

Police Hunt 'Baby Face' on Tip Of Huge Gold Holdup Plot

Denver, Sept. 18 (AP).—A picked crew of police sharpshooters was sent out today on a hunt for George (Baby Face) Nelson and John Hamilton, remnants of the Dillinger gang, after Chief of Police Albert T. Clark received a tip that the desperadoes were in Denver to attempt seizure of a mint shipment of $200,000,000 in gold.

"Let them try and get that gold," said Chief of Police Albert T. Clark. "We'll shoot it out with them any time, any place."

The gold shipment is expected tomorrow night from the San Francisco mint.

Clark organized a squad of sharpshooters from the detective squad to cruise the city.

An informant told him he had seen Nelson and Hamilton in a parked car with California license plates. The informant later picked pictures and Nelson and Hamilton from the collection of more than a score of photographs of gangsters. He said he was positive of his identification.

Troops from Fort Logan, near Denver, were expected to be summoned to aid police and Federal agents in guarding the gold.

The $200,000,000 shipment expected tomorrow night is part of a total of about $2,000,000,000 in gold the Government is transferring from San Francisco to the Denver Mint.

Tropical Gale Headed For Southern Coast

The Weather Bureau announced last night that a tropical disturbance 200 miles northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, was moving northwestward at a speed of from 7 to 11 miles an hour, according to the Associated Press.

No ships were reported in its path, and the bureau said the storm's present direction would not bring it to the southern coast for several days.

Power Rate Cut Believed Near At Arlington

Kephart Reports Progress in Study Being Made by Commission.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cla. 509. Clarendon, Va.

After months of study in an effort to obtain a material reduction in electric lights rates in the county, Calvin I. Kephart, chairman of the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission reports real progress is now being made.

While difinite figures have not been mare public, it was announced that the Virginia Public Service Co. has submitted a tentative new combination schedule of rates. These rates have not been approved by the local commission, since they would have the effect of reducing the light rate and increasing the rate for electric ranges and refrigerators.

The commission, it was stated, is making an effort to secure both a reduction in the light rate and an extension of the power rate to other electric equipment, such as ranges and refrigerators. It is the hope of the commission, according to Chairman Kephart, that a combination rate can be agreed upon which would be based entirely upon consumption, regardless of the type of appliances used in the home.

A combination schedule which has been prepared by the chairman will be submitted to the power officials for their consideration.

Parent-Teacher Institute.

With more than 75 delegates attending, the Arlington County Council of Parent-Teachers Associations held its annual all-day institute yesterday in the uaditorium of the Patrick Henry School at Arlington. Mrs. O. C. Rauh, president, presided.

The morning session opened at 9:30 o'clock with a reading by Mrs. P. M. Chichester, followed by greetings by Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, member of the county school board.

The address of welcome to the delegates was delivered by County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp.

The principal address of the morning was by Mrs. W. R. Rawlings, of the National Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations. Other speakers were Mrs. G. Monroe and Mrs. R. B. Clapper.

Following luncheon, served at noon, the afternoon session opened at 1 o'clock with talk on music by Mrs. J. F. Donaldson, supervisor of music in the county schools. Mrs. Donaldson also spoke on the need and value of the playground at all schools.

The meeting concluded with an address by Mrs. Rawlings, who spoke on duties of officers and committee chairmen and program planning.

Benefit Card Party.

Kerwin Circle Meeting.

The Kerwin Circle of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Nellie Edwards on Glebe road.

Roads Are Opened.

The surface treatment on Wilson boulevard extension to the Arlington Memorial Bridg and Washington avenue from the Military road to the Oil Plant road completed, both highways were opened to traffic last night.

Club Meeting.

The Lyon Park Woman's Club holds its first meeting of the fall season tonight in the Community Hall at 8 o'clock.

Fellowship Dinner Service.

There will be a fellowship dinner service this evening at the Community Methodist Church in Aurora Heights at 6 o'clock. The Rev. J. J. Rives, of the Emory Methodist Church of Washington, will be the guest speaker.

compel the loyal employes to meet secretly, organize and join said union, stating that unless the employes did join the union and the corporation became a member of the Graphic Arts Association of Washington, they would close and ruin the business of the defendant."

Claims $50,000 Loss.

The union was described as having "advised, influenced and compelled the institution and filing of this cause of action as a punitive, retributive and retaliatory measure."

The company denied it was adding to the ranks of the unemployed, or impairing standards of living "through unfair and illegal competitive methods." On the contrary, it is claimed it had sustained a $50,000 loss by maintaining its plant at nearly normal operation over a three-year period, and it pointed out that 98 per cent of its employes have been working for the company from 5 to 30 years.

The court was told that the NRA was unconstitutional, because it "seeks to delegate to the President and the executive departments legislative powers. Further, the issues of the case constitute a labor dispute, and as such are entitled to a full hearing in court before an injunction can be issued. The Government, it was explained, is seeking a temporary injunction to force compliance upon the company.

The charge was made that the Union had conspired with the Graphic Arts Association to force the company to unionize its shop, although the company "is paying its employes in conformity with the collective bargaining agreement, substantially the rate of wages designated by the alleged Graphic Arts Code."

Called Class Legislation.

The NRA is class legislation and is being enforced with "discrimination" because many employers are "hypocritically pretending compliance" and "nationally known as well as obscure noncompliers have not been sued, as has defendant," it was charged.

It was further charged that "its "rights and property are being interfered with, violated, damaged and threatened with complete destruction contrary to the guarantees of the Constitution * * * in that said attempted legislation, promulgation, and enforcement creates the following:

"Unwarranted and unconstitutional delegation and usurpation of legislative power in violation of Article 1 of the Constitution, which vests all legislative power in the Congress of the United States and regulates the manner in which all laws shall be passed and approved and which enumerates, makes exclusive and nondelegatory certain powers of Congress.

"Unwarranted and unconstitutional delegation and usurpation of the judicial power in violation of Article 3 of the Constitution; violation of the fourth amendment which prohibits unreasonable searches and seizures; violation of the fifth amendment which prohibits the deprivation of private property without due process of law; violation of the sixth amendment which provides for a trial by jury; violation of the eighth amendment which prohibits excessive fines and cruel and unusual punishment; violation of the ninth and tenth amendments which reserve to the people all rights and powers not delegated in the Constitution to the Government; class legislation and gross discrimination, and tendency to monopolies and monopolistic practices, in violation of statutes of the United States of America."

Leaders Made Men Walk Out, Says Harriman

ened violence" were the methods employed to force closing of mills.

"The strike," he protested, "has resulted in open and frank cooperation between the strikers and the forces of unrest, and without this element, without this violence and without this intimidation on the part of the flying squadrons the strike would have long since collapsed and the workers who desire to make a living by working rather than by Government dole could have done so. * * *

"The real object of the strike was not the betterment of industrial conditions, but the furtherance of labor organization. There is a right to strike, but there is equally a right to work."

Harriman declared "remarkable" accomplishments were attained under NRA textile codes. He said working hours were reduced from an average of more than 50 to a maximum of 40, and nearly 200,000 persons were reemployed. Wage rates, he added, were increased approximately 70 per cent. The end of child labor was emphasized.

Labor's Stand Attacked.

Refusal of the union to accept a mediation offer of the cotton textile industrial relations board, Harriman argued, "evidenced the unwillingness of the textile labor leaders to use the constituted authority set up by the Government to settle disputes. It indicates that industrial war and not industrial peace was their desire."

As a parting shot the business spokesman said:

"It clearly indicates to me that the great privilege which labor has rightly received of collective bargaining and of organization carries with it obligations to the public which can only be assured by the incorporation of trade unions and full publicity of and full liability for their acts.

Only peaceful settlement before the end of the week, Gorman said, can prevent the union from extending the walkout to workers in the rayon, carpet, rug and dyeing trades. Authority to call out those trades was accorded Gorman by an all-day meeting of the executive council.

Will Ask Vote on Union.

The union chairman said he soon would ask the National Labor Relations Board to conduct elections throughout the industry to decide whether a majority of the workers wish his organization to represent them in collective bargaining discussions.

Unsuccessful in its peace negotiations, the Presidential mediation board, headed by Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire, probably will submit a written report to Secretary Perkins shortly. She is expected to forward the document to President Roosevelt without any independent mediation attempt.

Strike violence was deplored by Frank Morrison, American Federation of Labor secretary, in a radio speech.

"It is to be regretted," he said, "that the attitude of the Governors of the various States concerned has brought into use State militia and special police. The strikers are not armed. They do not seek violence."

Meanwhile NRA rejected a request of the silk code authority for a public hearing in that phase of the walkout. The recovery unit also refused the authority's alternative demand for exemption from the code labor provisions.

Resort Shore Line Will Be Improved

County Awards Contract for Fair Haven Bulkhead.

Annapolis, Md., Sept 18 (Spl.).—Anne Arundel County commissioners today awarded to Gordon Crandall, of Solley, the contract for constructing 1,620 feet of timber bulkheading to protect the shore line of Fair Haven from erosion. The bid was $14,845. Fair Haven is a summer resort on Chesapeake Bay, where many Washingtonians have cottages.

The commissioners deferred awarding the contract for 8,100 feet of similar work at North Beach Park, also in the southern sector. The low bid for this, $78,677.96, was submitted by Brundage & Crandall, of Sudley.

A committee of residents of Arundel-on-the-Bay, 8 miles south of Annapolis, where many Washingtonians also have cottages, asked the commissioners for 1,960 feet of bulkheading. The estimated cost is $22,000 and bids soon will be asked.

The commissioners are undertaking a number of improvements of this sort, funds being provided by bond issues, and a special tax levied against the sections improved.

Probe of Civic Affairs Asked In Alexandria

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

L. B. Mayer appeared before the city council last night and presented a paper calling attention to alleged irregularities in the administration of city's affairs, and asked that an investigation be made. He referred to a recent report of an auditing firm which called attention to the employment of a consulting engineer at a fee of $4,000, and alleged that, while payments of $5,000 a month had been made for several months, no money had been appropriated by the council to cover them. He said he had been informed that the money was paid out of capital account, with the understanding that this account would be reimbursed when funds are received from the PWA, the engineer having been employed on PWA projects.

Mayer also cited instances of city pay rolls not having been properly approved, and checks not having been properly countersigned, all these items being mentioned in the auditor's report.

Mayor Davison stated that mention was made in this report of certain letters addressed to the former mayor regarding irregularities, by the auditors, which letters, he at first said, had not been referred to the council. Later he recalled having heard them read.

Committee Appointed.

The Mayor then appointed a committee, of which he is ex-officio chairman, consisting of Councilmen Ashton, Clift, Barley and Cooper, to investigate Mayer's charges, and to conduct such hearings as might be desirable.

The city manager reported, in connection with PWA projects, that 15.2 miles of streets had been graded and graveled; 3,007 linear feet of sewers completed, and 19,607 feet of curb and gutter completed.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the sale to the United States Government of $100,000 of school construction bonds, at par plus accrued interest from December 1, 1933, and also authorized the sale of the balance of $128,000 in bonds as funds are required for the work.

Two communications were received from the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, one in regard to the acquisition by the city from the Government of the old shipyard property, for industrial uses, and the other to the removal of piles and other obstructions from the river channel. The Mayor will appoint a committee to cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce in properly presenting the matter to Representative Howard W. Smith, so that appropriate legislation may be introduced.

Truck Routes Unchanged.

In the matter of re-routing trucks through the city, a committee recently appointed recommended no change in routing of northbound and southbound trucks for the present, pending the improvement of Henry street.

A request of Taylor Burke that the city see to the improvement of the road leading to St. Agnes School was referred to the city engineer.

The council appropriated $700 for the operation of two "opportunity" night schools for adults, one white and one colored, from October 1 to December 1.

The mayor recommended the appointment of a number of committees, to divide the work of the council, and to recommend such ordinances as may be found necessary. This recommendation was referred to the Rules Committee for consideration.

The Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia will open its 112th session today with an enrollment of 71 students. This is a decrease of 8 from the enrollment last year. Only one foreign student is enrolled this year, from Japan.

The Episcopal High School of Virginia, adjoining the seminary, opened on Monday with 223 students, an increase of 7 over last year.

Mrs. Clay Keene Miller, president of the Department of the District of Columbia, Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold a meeting at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon in the George Mason Hotel, in the interest of forming an auxiliary to the Russell Mitchell Post of Alexandria.

Lottery for City Is Proposed By Allen to Boost Revenue

mossioners should do," Donovan said.

"We ought to hold down appropriations, but there is a point below which we can not afford to go," Yaden said. "When we reach that rock bottom safety point we should increase present taxes or impose new taxes.

"If you ask me what taxes, I would say, first, an inheritance tax. Second, a small sales tax, excluding food, clothing, medicine and medical attention. Third, an increase of 1 cent a gallon in the gasoline tax."

"Would you use the gas tax revenue for general purposes?"

"No, not until all our street needs are cared for.

"I am afraid of an income tax," he amplified, "because when they stick one on it will be too high."

Automobile Tax.

A new basis of taxing automobiles based on weight or horsepower was described by Yaden as "a very valuable source of revenue."

"But those taxes would require special legislation," objected Maj. Donovan. "The Commissioners have to build their estimates on the taxes and prospective income under present law. What would you say to increasing the Federal contribution and a small increase in the tax rate?"

"That would meet with my full approval," Yaden said.

He was one of a score of representatives of various associations who pleaded with the Commissioners to provide more funds next year for many specific projects. Schools, playgrounds and recreational activities and public libraries found most widespread support.

From lotteries the discussion veered to bull fights. Evan H. Tucker, president of the Northeast Washington Citizens Association, said when he had opposed the bill legalizing boxing in the District he had predicted some one would seek to legalize bull fights.

"I'm opposed to the kind of bull fights they have in Mexico," agreed Commissioner Allen who recently returned from a vacation trip to that country. "I am opposed to them because neither the horses nor the bull has a chance. It isn't a gamble."

Increased appropriations for the schools and library was urged by Tucker who represented his citizens association, the Monday Evening Club, board of directors of Casualty Hospital and the committee of 100 of the American Civic Association.

"Would you favor an increase in the present real estate tax," Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, who presided, asked, while Rufus Lusk, representing the Washington Taxpayers Protective Association, sat busily taking notes for use when he appears to oppose tax increases.

"An increase in the real estate tax rate would be a very great burden, especially on the small home owner," Tucker said. "An income tax would be preferable because that would place the additional burden on those best able to bear it."

"A man will fight for his home, but he won't fight for a boarding house," interjected Commissioner Allen.

Col. Sultan's Comment.

"I have been impressed recently with the argument that the people ought to be made tax conscious," said Col. Daniel I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner. "Tax conscious people would be more careful about urging expenditures of public moneys."

Commissioner Hazen returned to a proposal he advanced the day before, asking whether it would not be well to charge a fee for loan of books to make the libraries self-sustaining.

"It would hamper the library service very much," Mr. Tucker objected.

The $75,000 requested for Community Center work should have been made $150,000, Quinn said.

"Character training in our schools can not be successful if it ends at 3 p. m.," he said.

"How about character training at home?" asked Commissioner Hazen.

"Even the best of parents and teachers can not take the place of trained supervisors of recreation," Quinn said. He said millions had been invested in school buildings which were unused most of the time.

"Do not cut this item," he urged. "By spending this money for this service you will get more for your money than if spent in any other way.

Other Proposals.

Others who urged school, library and special neighborhood improvements included Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., Georgetown Public Library Association; J. W. Townsend, Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park Citizens Association; Elzie S. Hoffman, Barry Farms Citizens Association; H. A. Johnson, Carfield Citizens Association; George W. Beasley, president of Federation of Civic Associations; A. J. Driscoll, Midcity Citizens Association; Mrs. C. Ward, Jackson Parent-Teacher Association; Ray H. Everett, Social Hygiene Society; Mrs. G. B. L. Arner, Powell Parent-Teacher Association; J. M. Schaffer and Harry Waender, Southwest Citizens Association; William Deviny, Michigan Park Citizens Association; Maj. Campbell C. Johnson, Y. M. C. A.; Edwin S. Hege, Chevy Chase Citizens Association; A. H. Gregory, Stanton Park Citizens Association, and Joseph A. High, Master Plumbers Association.

The hearings are to be resumed at 10 a. m. today in the board room in the District Building. They were to have been concluded today, but they will be continued tomorrow.

War Threatens, Cry of Litvinoff

agreed with some provisions of the league covenant, adding:

"The Soviet government could not have agreed when the covenant was being drafted with articles 12 and 15, legislating for war in certain instances. We object to article 22 on mandates and article 23 on race equality.

"We are merely responsible for decisions taken only during our participation. The Soviet Union is entering the league but not renouncing any of its features. Many nationalities within the Soviet Union have received a fresh lease on life."

Litvinoff indirectly criticized Hitler, declaring the world could not be calmed by peaceful assurances when "only the previous day there was talk about wars and conquests in all directions, and material and idealogical preparations for such wars."

Washington Silent On Entry of Russia

Soviet Russia's entry into the League of Nations and a reference to the United States at the League assembly yesterday are viewed by official Washington as both interesting and important, but no Administration authority would comment, the Associated Press reported.

Since the United States is not a member of the league, the league's activities have been viewed from Washington through the eyes of an interested bystander, but with little visible or audible reaction.

Administration officials recognize that the Soviet hereafter will play a more important role in European affairs, but do not expect that its membership in the League will influence or change in any way existing relations between Moscow and this Government.

Alleged Sale of Russ Bonds in U. S. Probed

The Department of Justice last night was investigating alleged sales of 7 per cent Soviet Russia gold bonds in this country.

The inquiry, it was learned, is to determine whether the sales are in violation of the Johnson act, approved at the last session of Congress, which forbids purchases or sales of securities of governments in default to this country.

Martin A. Conboy, United States District Attorney for New York, department officials said, is investigating the "facts" preparatory to reporting to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, who will rule on the question.

24 Injured in Battle Of Chicago Truckmen

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—Four men were seriously injured and a score of others were hurt when warfare between rival teamsters' unions was renewed today in a wild battle.

A band of 40 men, representing themselves as agents of the International Teamsters' Union, drove up to the Railway Express Co.'s garage and attacked a group of 100 truck drivers, then singled out members of the Chicago Truck Drivers' Union, a branch of the "outlaw" union.

Peek and Hull Propose Ways To Spur Trade

National Bookkeeping and Credit Rating Systems Urged.

(Associated Press.)

Two of the President's trade boosters, Secretary Hull and George N. Peek, yesterday suggested means of reinvigorating American dealings with the rest of the world.

Peek, special adviser on foreign trade, reported to the President that the world owes the United States $20,645,000,000 and recommended:

1. A National bookkeeping system to audit international financial commitments, and

2. A Government credit rating bureau to pass on the financial responsibility of nations seeking money in the United States.

Hull, reciprocal trade treaty negotiator, without mentioning the boycott of German goods by Jews because of Hitler's anti-Semitic policy, nevertheless said at a press conference that any boycotts were exceedingly unwise.

Hull Maps Four-Point Plan.

He enumerated four ways to increase trade:

1. Voluntary action by one nation to remove high tariff or other trade restrictions;

2. Agreements between two nations to barter or buy and sell in the normal manner, provided these agreements are limited in number so as not to interfere with similar triangular or world-wide pacts;

3. Agreements between a number of nations in one part of the world;

4. World-wide accords under which a universal attempt is made to remove trade obstacles.

Peek May Add Third.

Peek indicated to newspapermen that in addition to his two recommendations to the President, he might make a future recommendation to Congress for legislation to restrict or prohibit movement of American capital abroad. Before any such plan is devised, however, he said, it will be necessary to study the problem more.

Peek explained that during the 1923-1933 period this country made enormous "bad investments" abroad and there also was a flight of capital from the United States, which, he inferred, aggravated panic conditions.

Nations with favorable balances of trade with us might be considered as "good risks" for loans, Peek indicated, while other nations were obviously questionable risks.

He suggested correlation of financial transactions with reciprocal trade agreements to emphasize "trade" rather than "money."

Figures Are Presented.

"All trade is based on mutually advantageous exchange of goods and services, he declared, "money is a medium of exchange, a measure of value, but not of constant value. It should not be the master of trade. Of late years we have consciously or unconsciously discouraged trade itself, while we have increased the emphasis on the medium of exchange."

In a series of tables Peek provided figures covering the dominant financial situation during different periods. American investments in foreign countries (including war debts) are estmated to have increased $23.702.000,000 since 1914 to a total of $25,202,000,000 in 1933, while foreigners' investments here appear to have increased $57,000,000 to $4.557.000,000, leaving the world still owing the United States a net of $20,645,000,000.

Ickes Will Start Slum Clearance

To 'Wield Crowbar' Opening Atlanta Project.

Secretary Ickes, as public works administrator, will "wield a crowbar" to start the demolition of buildings on the sites of the first Government slum clearance project in Atlanta, he said yesterday. He plans to be in Atlanta in time to start the ceremonies at noon on September 29.

"We have started some low-cost housing projects in other cities," the Secretary said, but the Atlanta projects will be the first in our slum-clearance program."

About $4,800,000 has been allotted for the Atlanta work.

Hit and Run Suspect Demands Jury Trial

Marion Miller, of Clarendon, Va., charged with leaving the scene of an accident after his automobile is alleged to have struck two persons at Thomas Circle Friday night, was released in custody of his attorney, Virginia State Senator Frank Ball, after demanding a jury trial in Police Court yesterday. Trial was set for October 18.

Dr. James Hicks, of Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, and Miss Thelma Lilly, of Takoma Park, Md., victims of the alleged hit-and-run accident, are recovering in Emergency Hospital. Witnesses said the striking machine fled, leaving the pair lying in the street.

PWA Loan for City Hall.

Houston, Tex., is to have a new fireproof city hall. The PWA yesterday granted a loan and grant of $1,219,000 for the structure, the erection of which is expected to provide work for 250 men for a year and double that number indirectly in industries supplying material.

Ruth Hale, Militant Feminist And Newspaper Writer, Dies

Former Wife of Heywood Brown Was War Correspondent.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Ruth Hale, noted publicist, feminist, writer, and former wife of Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist, died in Doctors Hospital today after an illness of three weeks.

Early today, accompanied by Broun and her brother, Richard Hale, she was rushed by ambulance from Broun's country home, seven miles north of Stamford, Conn., to the hospital for emergency treatment.

Long an advocate of women's rights and leading supporter of the Lucy Stone League, she was famous throughout the country for her fights for social reforms.

Miss Hale was born in 1886 in Rogersville, Tenn., of a family noted in the South. She began her newspaper work on the Philadelphia Ledger and later was on the staff of the New York Times Sunday edition.

During the war her newspaper work took her to the battlefields, where she wrote for the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune.

She was married to Broun on June 6, 1917, and had one son, Heywood Hale Broun, 16. She is also survived by her mother, Mrs. Annie Ridley Hale, of New York City.

In November, 1933, Miss Hale divorced Broun at Nogales, Mexico. She said the divorce was granted on the ground she and Broun had been separated for five years.

The chief speaker of the evening will be Dr. H. C. Bryant, assistant director of the Interior Department's division of education and research, who will give an illustrated lecture on the National Parks of the country.

Opening the program will be a message of welcome by Mayor R. J. Payne, with a response by Branch Spaulding, chief historian of the local Battlefield Park staff. Frank M. Chichester, chairman in charge of the dinner, will introduce the various officials in attendance. C. O'Conor Goolrick, former State Senator and president of the Virginia State Bar Association, will introduce Dr. Bryant. More than 200 people are expected to attend the event.

Rail Wreck Probe To Be Held Today

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Investigation of the fatal train wreck on the Virginia Central Railroad during last Thursday's rainstorm will be conducted tomorrow by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The train crashed through a rain-weakened trestle early Friday morning after a swollen creek had washed away the trestle foundations. The investigation will be of routine nature, railroad officials said. A similar inquiry is being conducted by the State Corporation Commission.

Selmo Ferrie, Virginia Central fireman, was killed in the accident when the buckling engine and tender crushed his chest. Repairs were still under way today on the washed-out road.

Campaign Planned By Women Voters

Charles County Club Ready to Back Democrats.

La Plata, Md., Sept. 18 (AP).—The Women's Democratic Club of Charles County has reorganized and will take an active part in the Democratic campaign this fall.

The club is backing Mrs. Ruth Carpenter, of Glymont, Democratic candidate for register of wills, second woman to seek an office in this county since women were given the right to vote.

A meeting has been called for Friday night. Plans are being made for the club to send representatives to the meeting of the Southern Maryland division of United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland at Upper Marlboro, September 25.

Virginia Is Silent On Rate Cut Attack

Richmond, Sept. 18 (AP).—Members of the State corporation commission tonight indicated they did not intend to reply to a letter from Richard F. Beirne, editor of the Covington Virginian, quizzing the commission about an announcement of the Virginia Public Service Corporation's rate reduction.

"Just what does it mean in dollars and cents to each individual community? And how? Do you yourselves know?" Maj. Beirne asked, also inquiring whether the commission had "awakened to the existence of the power trust?" or had "ever heard of the New Deal?"

Tuberculosis Clinic Planned in Virginia

Kilmarnock, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.). Tuberculosis sufferers will be diagnosed at a free clinic tomorrow at Lively, Va., under auspices of the State Department of Health and the Tappahannock County Board of Health.

Extra Veteran Benefits Put At 90 Million

Sum Will Be Asked to Finance Increases Voted Over Veto.

(Associated Press.)

The Veterans' Administration is preparing to ask the next Congress for $90,000,000 to meet the first-year cost of additional veterans' payments voted on Capitol Hill last spring over President Roosevelt's veto.

Sam M. Moore, jr., budget director of the Administration outlays, reported yesterday that expenditures ordered over the President's objections were "running very close" to his original estimate.

Last March, when the veterans debate opened, some advocates contended the Veterans' Administration was greatly exaggerating the amount the increased benefits would cost. By the end of next March, Moore figured, the veterans' payments restored by Congress will leave a $90,000,000 hole in the Administration's $546,748,096 budget for 1934-35. It is this deficit Congress will be asked to make up in addition to regular appropriation for the 1935-36 fiscal year.

$4,000,000 Extra Sought.

The fight between the President and Congress was over how much the benefits in some of the classifications should be increased. In general, the bill that finally emerged restored many of the payments cut by the economy act of 1933 for injuries in the various classifications and for hospitalization.

Another deficiency appropriation of approxiametly $4,000,000 also will be asked by the Veterans' Administration to pay widows and orphans pensions voted the last session.

The new pension legislation provided pensions for widows and orphans of all World War veterans dying from disabilities of 30 per cent or more.

"We estimate there will be 13,900 such deaths of veterans in the first year," he said, "and that 9,666 widows and 14,755 children will receive pensions as a result."

Moore reported the death rate among the more than 4,000,000 former service men of World War days had declined in recent years and now is considerably less than that of the civilian population.

30,000 Veterans Die Yearly.

"About 30,000 deaths of veterans occur each year," he said. " This rate is low compared to the number of deaths in the rest of the population. It is due to the fact that the veterans were picked men, and the great number of deaths from World War injuries occurred a number of years ago."

Moore's estimates of increased outlays required by the restored veteran payments in their first year were:

Civil War cases, $3,745,000; Spanish-American War veterans, $37,427,000; emergency officers retired on account of disabilities, $152,908; service-connected disabilities of World War veterans, $41,828,700; military and naval insurance, $59,000; new claims, $6, 876,000.

The Veterans' Administration has submitted to the Budget Bureau an estimate for the total requirement for the year beginning next July 1. This probably will not be made public until the President's budget message to Congress in January.

Va. Not to Salvage Seized Bootleg Rum

Richmond, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Virginia ABC Board, which just has added corn whisky to the stocks of its State stores, today announced it has given up hope of salvaging bootleg liquor which has been confiscated.

Chairman S. Seth Tyler promised a report soon showing the great extent to which poisons and impurities were found in illegal liquor submitted to chemical examination.

Fire in School Laid to 'Arson OrCombustion'

Constable Takes Issue With Bowie Report; Blames Cigarette.

Fire at the Bowie (Md.) School last Saturday night was blamed on "incendiarism or spontaneous combustion" in a report submitted yesterday to the Prince Georges County School Board by R. H. Weagley, principal.

Constable William C. Kreitzer, however, disputed both theories. He declared it was his opinion the midnight fire was the result of a carelessly-tossed cigarette that had smoldered for hours.

Nicholas Orem, county school superintendent, who made the Weagley report public, declared the new and yet uncompleted annex had been damaged to the extent of approximately $300. It is covered by insurance, he said.

Light Report Dispute.

According to the report, it was rumored that a light had been seen in the building shortly before the fire broke out at 11:30 p. m. Constable Kreitzer declared the rumors were unfounded.

The Weagley report also declared the school janitor had been treating the floors with an oily liquid and that he rubbed the floors dry with rags.

He quoted the janitor as saying he left the rags on a stone window sill when he quit work at 4:30 p. m. Saturday. The fire, however, did not reach any room where the floors had been treated.

A search for the rags, the report pointed out, was fulfilled. The can of floor oil was found, tightly sealed, near the scene of the fire.

Firemen Are Praised.

The main part of the damage was confined to 40 new school desks stacked in the hallway. Other damage included 34 windows cracked or broken, walls blackened by smoke, plaster badly damaged and doors broken in.

Constable Kreitzer said he believes some one had tossed a cigarette into the stack of pasteboard cartons from which the desks had been taken.

The Bowie Volunteer Fire Department was commended for its quick action.

Both 'Outs' and 'Ins' Were Among Customers, Inquiry Hears.

with both revolutionaries and Cuban parties in power, from the Machado administration through the rapidly shifting Grau San Martin, Cespedes and Mendieta regimes.

A few days before former President Machado was forced out of power, Col. Mendieta and others "distressed about conditions in Cuba," discussed a "big program" for Machado's overthrow in Young's New York office, the Federal Laboratories official told the committee.

"I advised them against it," said Young.

Bids for Arms Sales.

Later, with Grau San Martin in power, correspondence showed Young entering bids for armament sales both with the Grau regime and the so-called "outs," with whom Col. Mendieta was associated.

One, Texidor, Havana agent of Federal Laboratories, was offered 10 per cent commission on all business done with the Mendieta faction and 15 to 20 per cent on all arms sold to the Grau administration, the record showed.

"I came to Washington and talked to State Department and Naval Intelligence officials about it," the debonair Young testified.

"From my conversations in Cuba, I gained the impression that the 'outs' were more popular with the people, and I so told the State department. They told me to use my own judgment in the matter."

"Have you ever heard of the Logan act?" inquired Senator Vandenberg, referring to statutes prohibiting civilians from interfering in diplomatic relations.

"I never heard of it," said Young.

"But you were willing to sell arms to both sides?" pressed Vandenberg.

"I was willing to deal with either group," replied Young.

Sold Guns to Grau.

Although he preferred to deal with the "outs," he said he later sold Thompson machine guns to the Grau government, but not through Texidor.

The youthful Federal Laboratories official told the committee of his strong personal regard for President Mendieta, of letters of congratulation sent him when he came in power, and of present strong contacts with the Mendieta government.

Young, the record showed, was appointed "a consultant to direct the planning, organization, training and equipment of a national police force" for Cuba after Mendieta became president. He was to receive a salary of $12,000.

Previously, before the Mendieta regime, he frequently advised the leaders of both factions "to get together and form a coalition government and stop fighting," he said.

Vandenberg said he thought Young had been active during "an extremely delicate situation."

Reported to Department.

"At a moment when this problem was being handled through regular diplomatic channels, we find an American munitions maker, privately interested in armament orders, suggesting a course of action to the same officials with whom the State Department was dealing," said the Michigan Senator.

"All of my advices were reported to the State Department, with the statement I would stop whenever they said stop," retorted Young.

Offering a verbal demonstration of how tear gas and "sickening" gas bombs operate to frustrate holdups and disperse "mobs," Young told the committee of many shipments to National Guard and police units in troubled strike areas.

"Better Than Bullets."

The recent strike wave, including textile disorders, has increased Federal laboratories' tear gas business from 5 to 10 per cent, he said.

"I am wondering what effect this gas would have on malnourished strikers?" inquired Senator Homer Bone, of Washington.

"A better effect than lead bullets," Young replied. "They quickly get over it."

A plane that recently crashed en route from Pittsburgh to Rhode Island carried 400 pounds of the tear bombs, he told the committee.

"As a result, several persons were killed," he said. "The Guardsmen, not having tear gas, had to use rifles."

The Green memorandum on shipments of arms into Germany, made to John Hickerson, then acting chief of the State Department's western European division, was based on a statement sent to former President Hoover by former Secretary of State Stimson.

While the State Department could not forcibly prevent shipment of arms into Germany, Green noted, "should the occasion arise, it would make every effort to dissuade airplane manufacturers from exporting military airplanes to Germany and it is probable such measures would prove effective."

Memorandum as Guide.

"This memorandum," Green wrote, "having received the approval of President Hoover, has since that time been used by the department as a guide in making decisions on questions relating to export of arms."

Speaking for United Aircraft witnesses, Brown told the committee he believed "we had every right to export our airplane engines."

"Every engine we have developed has been developed in close cooperation with the Army and Navy," he said. "There is a war department order to the effect that military engines may not be released for export without its approval.

"That, as we understand it, is the policy of the Government, and we have followed that policy to the letter."

"Obviously there was no Army or Navy objection to the export of those engines, or you wouldn't have shipped them," interrupted Senator Bone.

"That's right," Brown replied.

"It is obvious," Bone went on, "that you can ship almost any kind of engine."

"They haven't objected to any of our proposed exports so far," Brown said.

and former Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo, bidding for a return to political power, in one of the most exciting run-off primaries in years.

The contest for the Democratic nomination for junior senator, tantamount to election in Mississippi, overshadowed other contests in the primary to determine the nomination of three Representatives.

Ideal weather prevailed and the final tally in the only State-wide contest in the primary—the senatorial race—was expected to show the interest of approximately 200,000 voters was aroused by the vigorous campaigns the principals waged in every county.

Representative Jeff Busy, of Houston, was opposed for renomination in the Fourth district by District Attorney A. L. Ford, of Ackerman.

In the Fifth district, where Representative Ross A. Collins retired to run against Stephens and Bilbo in the first senatorial primary, District Attorney Albert C. Dunn opposed Speaker Tom L. Bailey of the State House of Representatives.

Representative Russell Ellzey, of Wesson, was opposed for renomination by State Senator Dan R. McGehee, of Meadville, in the Sev-

Senatorial nomination to oppose Robert LaFollette and John B. Chapple, Ashland editor, the Republican candidate, turned out to be a nip and tuck race on the basis of early returns.

With five candidates seeking the nomination the vote in 43 precincts showed: John M. Callahan, 215; Francis E. McGovern, 133; State Senator W. D. Carroll, 27; Mrs. Gertrude Bowler, 117, and Charles E. Hammersley, 97.

Engineer Fears Crash Faces Copper Market

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 18 (AP).—A. B. Parsons, New York, secretary of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, today said he believed a crash imminent in copper markets unless world production curtailment was agreed upon.

This development, he said, was a possible result of contemplated plans in foreign fields to work low-cost mines.

Duce Calls Youth Of Italy 'to Arms'

military training were created in the new order. They are:

1. Preliminary, beginning at the age of 8 years.
2. Military, starting at the age of 21 years.
3. Post-military, continuing for ten years after the military phase ends.

The Balilla—the Young Fascisti—may not shirk their military school work.

Students can not be promoted to higher classes, or receive degrees, without having followed the military courses with profit, the decree set forth.

As to the youth of Italy, the cabinet proclaimed:

"Boys, from the time they are 8 years old until they are called to arms at 21, will be prepared spiritually, physically and militarily by the civic organization of the Fascist Balilla and by the Fascist Youths of Combat.

To Inspire Military Spirit.

"Thus, when they enter the armed forces, they can dedicate themselves exclusively to warlike professional and specialized training in arms.

"The youth training is divided into two sections, first, 8 to 18; second, 18 to 21."

"The purpose of the first stage of compulsory premilitary training," it said, "is to give boys a passion for military life through frequent contacts with the armed forces whose warlike glories and traditions will be re-evoked."

A liaison body between armed forces and all organizations cooperating in "the formation of an armed nation" was instituted, with an army corps general at its head.

The purpose of the second stage of premilitary training, the cabinet explained, "is to perfect the spiritual, physical and military training of a young man."

At 18, the Italian is obliged to bear arms, the cabinet decreed, although he remains under the jurisdiction of the Fascist organization; at 21 he comes under the jurisdiction of the army.

The liaison organization answers directly to Premier Mussolini.

Employers were warned not to obstruct their employes in reporting for instruction, to be given Sundays, holidays and during the annual recall to arms.

All high schools and colleges will be required to institute courses in military culture.

Fairfax Court Holds Two Men In Arson Case

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 126-J.

Two men were held for the action of the grand jury in the Circuit Court of Fairfax County, Va., on arson charges yesterday by Judge Paul E. Brown, of the county trial justice court.

I. J. Breeden, Centerville business man, and J. M. Burnley, also of Centerville, are charged with setting fire to a dwelling house owned by Breeden last week. The warrant was sworn to by L. H. Kemp, jr., deputy State fire marshal of Richmond. The two men were released on $500 bond each for their appearance at the November term of court.

The home, which burned to the ground, was valued at $3,000, and it is said there was $2,000 in insurance policies on it. It was located on the Centerville-Manassas road near Bull Run. The mysterious origin of the blaze led Sheriff E. P. Kirby to investigate and he was later assisted by the State fire marshal's office.

Teachers' Reception.

The executive committee of the Parent-Teacher Association of Falls Church will hold its annual teachers' reception September 28 in the Madison School. An entertainment program will be given.

Mrs. Carson Ryan, president of the association, yesterday announced the following committee chairmen: Library, Mrs. Jacob O. Belz; finance, Mrs. James W. Brown; membership, Mrs. Macon Ware; publicity, Mrs. D. J. Shear; welfare, Mrs. Lee Park; grounds and property, Mrs. Lawrence Brown; parental education, Mrs. H. P. Sheldon; publication, Mrs. J. Sinclair Cooke; hospitality, Mrs. Milton Roberts; social, Mrs. W. W. Thomas, and room mothers, Mrs. Atherton Mears.

Boy Scout Troop of Herndon has elected Raymond N. Wrenn junior assistant scoutmaster; Billy Keyes and Harry A. Sager, jr., senior patrol leaders; Freddy McCarty, junior patrol leader; Ralph Chamblin and Dan De Butts, assistant patrol leader; Leonard Poole, scribe, and Melvin Nachman and Billy Anderson, quartermasters.

The Merrifield Improvement Association has filed a letter with Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr of Fairfax County, protesting the establishment of the National Memorial Park Cemetery on the Lee highway between Falls Church and Merrifield. The letter asked if the association or any property owner can prevent by legal means the development of a cemetery there.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Burke, Va., elected Mrs. J. E. Staub president in place of F. T. Curtis, who declined to serve. Other officers who will be installed at the regular meeting of the association Monday are Mrs. John Maley, vice president, and Mrs. Rena Carter, secretary-treasurer. Committee appointments for the year will be announced at that time.

School League Elects.

The Woodlawn School League at its reorganization meeting elected Ellis Harrington president. Other officers named were Mrs. Alice Herring vice president, and Jesse Duvall, secretary-treasurer. Plans were discussed for a benefit supper early next month.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Southern Methodist Church at Lincolnia, will give a fried chicken supper this evening in the old Lincolnia School on the Little River pike. Proceeds will be used to defray the expenses of the church activities.

Department Commander Robert L. Insko, American Legion in Virginia; State Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax, and Department Adjutant W. Glenn Elliott, of Richmond, were principal speakers at the meeting of Pohick Post, No. 162, held in Hearst Hall, in observance of Constitution Day.

Other speakers were E. R. Shanklin, post commander; E. J. Welch, past post commander, and Mrs. Herbert R. Harr, of the Women's Auxiliary of Pohick Episcopal Church. The newly elected officers were installed by District Commander John W. Haggerty, of Occoquan.

Plans were discussed for the post sponsoring a Boy Scout Troop at Lorton, and a committee consisting of J. N. Glover, E. J. Welch and W. N. Thomas was appointed to make a further study of plans.

Retired Infantry Major Was Federal Employe for 14 Years.

Maj. Charles Ellet Cabell, of 608 Cameron street, Alexandria, died on Monday night in Mount Alto Hospital, following an attack of pneumonia.

Maj. Cabell was born at Norwood, Va., in 1871. He was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute in 1892 and later studied law at the University of Virginia, locating in Lynchburg. In 1899 he married Miss Nannie Powell McCormick, of Berryville, Va.

During the Spanish-American War he enlisted, rising to the rank of captain, and served on the staff of Gen. Rosser at Chickamauga, Ga. In 1900 he was made a major in the Thirty-second United States Infantry, and sailed with his regiment for the Philippine Islands, where he served two years. For the last 14 years he was employed in the Department of the Interior, making his home in Alexandria.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Ferguson B. Bryan, wife of Lieut. Bryan, United States Navy, and Mrs. Edmund McC. Callaway; a son, Charles Ellet Cabell, jr.; a grandchild, Anne Cabell Bryan; four sisters, Mrs. A. Moore, of Berryville; Miss Elmira Daniel Cabell and Miss Margaret Cabell, of Chicago, and Mrs. Lenton C. Hopkins, of Atlanta, Ga.

The funeral will be held at 4 p. m. today from St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Alexandria, conducted by the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, the rector, and the Rev. George S. Vest, of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Braddock. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Fire Unit Fate Takoma Park To Be Decided

Session Tomorrow Will Determine States of Volunteer Group.

The probable fate of the Takoma Park (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department will be determined tomorrow night at a conference between the Town Council and representatives of the firemen at the home of Herman C. Heffner, president of the fire department.

The meeting tomorrow night is understood to be the final effort of the two groups to reach an agreement on the status of the volunteers, following a lengthy controversy dating back to last summer when the town authorities first started to remove their offices from the fire house.

Starting with the office of the town clerk and treasurer last summer and concluding with removal of the town police from the fire house two weeks ago, the town council has systematically severed all connections with the fire department.

In lieu of the rental previously received by the volunteers from the town, the town council recently offered a flat annual contribution of $4,000 toward the upkeep of the department, providing that affairs of the department be made subject to the approval of the council.

The offer has been rejected by the fire department on the grounds that membership in the department is open to all residents of the town and the council has the same right to vote as any other citizen.

The offer of $4,000 per annum is $400 greater than the fire department has received heretofore. In 1933 the town paid $2,400 in rentals to the fire department and made a contribution of $1,200.

At the present time the fire house, a $50,000 building, now has as tenants only the Montgomery County police department. In previous years it has housed the town clerk and treasurer, the town police and other local offices.

According to President Heffner, the firemen object to the town's offer only to the extent of not wishing to allow control of the department to pass from the volunteers to the town council or any other group of individuals. He pointed out that the building was constructed and financed by citizens interested in the department and not by the local government.

Session Names Dabney to Head Building Unit

Staunton Meeting Ended; Arnold President of Police Body.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 18 (AP).—Eugene H. Dabney, Staunton building inspector, was elected president of the Building Officials Conference of Virginia at their final convention session this afternoon. Mr. Dabney also is chief of the Staunton Fire Department and superintendent of the lighting department. He was vice president of the conference last year.

Other officers chosen were: I. G. Vass, Waynesboro city manager, first vice president; J. G. Bangley, Suffolk, second vice president; Morton L. Wallerstein, Richmond, secretary; L. B. Dutrow, Front Royal city manager; J. S. Mathers, Covington city manager, and H. P. Beck, Richmond, members of the executive committee; Roy J. Brown, Lynchburg, sergeant-at-arms.

Arnold Wins Post.

Other officers chosen were: Capt. W. W. Jefferson, Petersburg, first vice president; W. P. Davis, Staunton, second vice president; H. B. King, Lexington, sergeant-at-arms; Lieut. W. S. Newton, Roanoke, and E. D. Lipscomb, Farmville, committeemen; Morton L. Wallerstein, Richmond, secretary; Harold I. Baumes, Richmond, assistant secretary.

At its closing session this afternoon the convention adopted the usual resolutions expressing appreciation for hospitality and services and added one concerning the "definite need for development of an actuarily sound system of pensions for those engaged in police work, both State and local, in Virginia." The resolution directed that the association staff make an adequate study of this problem and the incoming president was directed to name a committee to conduct the study and report to the next annual meeting.

A motion to permit patrolmen to become members of the association was voted down. At present it is limited to police chiefs and others holding executive positions.

Moore Is Speaker.

Thomas T. Moore, chief examiner for the State Bureau of Insurance, in his address before the building officials of Virginia, explained the purposes and necessity of rate making as applied to fire insurance.

He reminded the building officials that the entire matter is a complicated one and asked them to study carefully and follow up closely standards set for various types of buildings. They were invited to refer any problems they encountered to the Virginia insurance rating bureau.

Maj. S. Heth Tyler, chairman of the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, told the Virginia Police Executives Association that "there is not one-tenth as much liquor drunk as there was during the old saloon days."

"Nobody knows," he told the police chiefs and other ranking peace officers of the State, "how much whisky was drunk during prohibition days, as there was no way of determining it. We now can tell, and we find there is not one-tenth as much liquor drunk as there was during the old saloon days."

Tyler praised the police executives of the State for their cooperation in the enforcement of the law.

"We are attempting to solve the most difficult problem in the country," he said, "and we have met with splendid cooperation by the police in this State. Our regulations will be published soon and you will see that much you thought was the board's fault has been taken care of."

The chairman said that the board would disclose, within a few weeks, the results of analyses of bootleg whisky "to show what filth bootleggers use in making whisky."

Tomorrow morning R. W. West, Mayor of Newport News, and president of the organization, will call the League of Virginia Municipalities convention to order. Morning, afternoon and night sessions are scheduled for tomorrow, with the final session set for Thursday morning.

2 Contracts Let For Road Projects

Gettysburg, Wakefield Jobs Arranged by PWA.

Awards of contracts for road improvements in Gettysburg National Military Park and at George Washington Birthplace National Monument at Wakefield, Va., were announced yesterday by the Interior Department. Both are PWA projects.

The Gettysburg contract was awarded to the Bester-Long Co., of Hagerstown, at $22,142. The work will consist of construction and reconstruction of a mile and a third of bituminous surfaced roadways on Wainwright and Howe avenues.

The T. E. Ritter Co., of Norfolk, was successful bidder on the other project, grading and gravel surfacing almost 3 miles of roadway in the monument area at an estimate cost of $10,717.

CCC Camp's Site Rejected by Luray

Council's Action to Force Removal by U. S.

Luray, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—The Luray Town Council last night in extra session disagreed with the United States Government on location of a CCC camp 7 miles east of Luray.

The council voted to stand by its former decision not to allow the building of the camp where drainage water would seep into the town's reservoir.

The camp, a fourth completed, will be moved to another location.

Robert Van Devanter, 28, Died Saturday in Test Flight.

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Robert G. Van Devanter, 28, Army Air Corps cadet, who lost his life Saturday afternoon when his plane crashed during a test flight near his old home in Loudoun County, were held this morning in Leesburg with burial in the Leesburg Union Cemetery.

Cadet Van Devanter was transferred to Langley Field, Va., two months ago from Kelly Field in Texas, where he was graduated this spring with high honors. He was on his last test flight Saturday before being commissioned and had been given permission by an officer at Langley Field to fly over his uncle's farm. The young man was flying low when the accident happened and had been doing stunt flying in the vicinity of the crash for some time before the tragedy occurred.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Harry Roland, of Los Angeles; an uncle, Lee Van Devanter, of Hamilton, and an aunt, Mrs. James Carr, of Waterford.

Mrs. Alice H. Dorman.

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Funeral rites will be conducted here tomorrow afternoon for the late Mrs. Alice H. Dorman, widow of Levin W. Dorman, pioneer Salisbury merchant, who died at her home yesterday. Officiating ministers will be the Rev. A. L. Franklin, of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Right Rev. George W. Davenport, bishop of the Eastern diocese.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Purnell I. Jones, Mrs. Dorman was born at the Jones homestead south of this city and married in 1872. Mr. and Mrs. Dorman celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1922.

Mrs. Charles T. LeViness, of Greensboro, N. C., a daughter, is the only survivor.

Mrs. V. Y. Goldsburrough.

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held this morning at Our Lady's Chapel, Medley's Neck, for Mrs. Victoria Yates Goldsburrough, 60, who died Sunday after an illness of several months.

Surviving are her husband, Frank Goldsburrough, five daughters, and three sons.

Robert C. Hart.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Robert C. (Cush) Hart, last survivor of the Battle of Fredericksburg, who died Monday, will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m., at Bethany Church in Spotsylvania County.

Mrs. Lillie B. Adams.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be conducted for Mrs. Lillie B. Adams, 62, tomorrow afternoon from the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Hodson. Interment will be in the cemetery at Orange Hall, near here.

State Library Group Will Meet on Friday

Buckhannon, W. Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—The annual meeting of the West Virginia Library Association will be held in the Administration Building at West Virginia Wesleyan College, Buckhannon, Friday and Saturday.

Miss Anna E. Taylor, of the Carnegie Library, Parkersburg, is president of the State association and will preside in the business meetings. Librarians from the various State colleges, public schools and public libraries will be in attendance. Among the subjects to be discussed in the annual meeting will be "State and Local History in the Library" and "Next Steps in School Libraries."

Bike Built for 2 Romantic Vehicle Used for Wedding

Baltimore, Sept. 18 (AP).—On a bicycle built for two, a young Baltimore couple today rode to the church to become one.

Adam Preisinger and his bride, Miss Frances Boarman, were accompanied to the church by the whole wedding party, also on bicycles.

The bridegroom and his best man, Walter Iglehart, are avid cycling fans. Nothing would do but that they stage at least a part of the wedding on wheels. Iglehart already had a tandem for himself and his wife, who was matron of honor. Preisinger got another tandem. The attendants pedaled along on single bikes.

The ceremony was performed at 8 p. m. in St. Pauls Catholic Church.

Dairy Festival Gets Donation

New Officers Elected by Prince William Herd Association.

Manassas, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—The Piedmont Dairy Festival, to be held here September 28, was indorsed and a contribution to help meet expenses was made at the annual meeting of the Prince William County Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

An analysis of the 1933-34 report was made by R. W. Dickson, of the extension division of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and W. Jennings Hunnicut, supervisor of the Prince William Association.

A dairy herd improvement float representing the Prince William Association will be entered in the "Milky Way" parade at the festival by the District of Columbia Workhouse Dairy, of Occoquan, a member of the Prince William Association.

New officers for the coming year were elected as follows: C. F. M. Lewis, Manassas, president; F. M. Swartz, Nokesville, vice president; Elmer P. Hurst, Milford, secretary-treasurer. Executive committee, Egbert W. Thompson, Woodbridge; Wilmer M. Kline, Manassas, and Percival A. Lewis, Manassas.

Hit-Run Driver Jailed, Fined in Winchester

Winchester, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Boyd Clinedenst, of Gaithersburg, Md., in police court here today was found guilty of hit-and-run driving, and also driving while under the influence of liquor. He was sentenced to six months in jail on the first charge and fined $100 and given an additional month on the latter charge.

Clinedenst's car struck two 16-year-old girls who were walking along the edge of the highway, and failed to stop to render assistance. The girls were not seriously injured.

Man and Woman Saved From James River

Richmond, Va., Sept. 18 (AP).—A man and woman, after being marooned on the rocks of the James River, which was surging near flood stage, today were safe at home—the result of a daring rescue by two Richmond boys cooperating with police.

James C. Sims, 27, and Miss Jeannette Monroe, 19, both of Richmond, were hauled safely through the waters of the swollen river by means of ropes taken to the rocks by Joe Hendricks and Frank Cassell. Hendricks also aided Miss Monroe as she pulled along the rope.

Thirty Colleges Ask FERA Aid For Students

Virginia Rates of Pay Range From 30 to 50 Cents Per Hour.

Richmond, Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Thirty of the 40 Virginia institutions of higher learning have filed applications for the student aid offered by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, T. D. Eason, State FERA director, stated today.

Rates of pay range from 30 to 50 cents per hour and the needy students will be employed as research assistants, readers, library assistants, draughtsmen, mechanics, helpers and the like. They will also do clerical work and landscaping on the college campuses.

Off the campus some will be engaged in examining old records in courthouses and at the headquarters of historical societies, and others will list art treasures in Virginia. They will be limited in their work to 8 hours a day and 40 hours a week.

Virginia has been allowed $269,505 for student aid, and this permits the expenditure for this purpose of $29,945 per month. The amounts for the institutions, being based on enrollment, run from $4,125 a month at the University of Virginia to $90 per month at the General Assembly Training School in Richmond.

The following institutions will receive the following amounts per month:

Virginia Polytechnic Institute, $2,715; Virginia Military Institute, $1,035; William and Mary College, proper, $2,205; Richmond division of William and Mary, $540; Norfolk division of William and Mary, $650; Washington and Lee University, $2,450; University of Richmond, $1,710.

500 Fire Fighters Due at Convention

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—More than 500 fire fighters are to attend the second annual convention of the West Virginia Fire Fighters Association, which will be held here Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The program provides for nationally known speakers, according to Charles F. Hines, committee convention chairman. A street parade will be staged.

Court Session Pays Honor to Former Judge

Glenn H. Worthington's Memory Eulogized in Frederick.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—The fall term of the Frederick County Circuit Court, including a petit and grand jury term, began yesterday with Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Judge Arthur D. Willard on the bench. Judge Charles W. Woodward, Rockville, the Montgomery County member, will attend sessions later.

Following the call of dockets in which cases were marked for trial, a memorial session was held at which a committee from the Bar Association, composed of former Judge John S. Newman, H. Kieffer Delauter, Jacob Rohrbeck, H. Dorsey Etchison and D. Princeton Buckey submitted resolutions on the recent death of Judge Glenn H. Worthington. He was appointed chief judge by the late Gov. Warfield to gll the unexpired term caused by the death of James McSherry and in 1912 was elected associate judge, serving until his 15-year term expired. Following the resolutions, Judge Urner paid a high tribute to Judge Worthington.

One hundred and forty-one cases, some of which carried over from the last term, are docketed for trial. The trial of criminal cases will begin about the middle of next month. Six cases are set for trial tomorrow and two for Friday.

Jurymen Are Called.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Jurymen for Thursday's special Corporation Court session were called yesterday.

The grand jury will consist of Edwin A. Gibson, J. Wilmore Cox, John M. Evans, George E. Hicks, A. Stuart Jones and Joseph Waller.

Petit jurymen will be Valentine Dannehl, Admiral L. Jett, Hays Beckwith, G. M. Henderson, Warren Farmer, Mennis L. Gibson, Gilbert Minor, J. T. Hearn and George T. Hicks.

Needy Strikers Will Get Relief

Not to Be Denied, Declares Virginia Official.

Richmond, Sept. 18 (AP).—William A. Smith, Federal emergency Relief administrator for Virginia, today announced persons in need of relief will not be discriminated against because of the fact that they are on strike. An exception is made, however, in the case of persons participating in a strike which the National Labor Relations Board has declared unreasonable and unjustifiable.

As in the case of all other applicants, Mr. Smith said, strikers must submit to an investigation and will be given relief only after it is determined that they have no resources of their own.

Mr. Smith said his announcement was sent out to local relief directors merely as a matter of routine and for their future guidance

Town of Marshall Seeks Incorporation

Warrenton, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—A petition, by the citizens of Marshall, Va., to have their town incorporated was placed before Judge J. R. H. Alexander for a hearing in the courthouse here yesterday.

Paul C. Richards, Warrenton attorney, acted as their legal representative. One hundred and 16 persons, who own approximately four-fifths of the land value estimated to lie within the limits of the proposed town of Marshall, have signed the petition. Leading bankers and professional men support the movement.

License Fight Point Won by Chiropractor

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—A new trial has been granted to Dr. Joseph D. Shipley, local chiropractor, by Judge Frank G. Wagaman.

Mandamus proceedings had been instituted by Dr. Shipley to compel the State Board of Examiners to renew his license to practice. A license renewal was refused a year ago because of advertising matter unapproved by the State Board.

Forest Acreage Gain Due.

Elkins, W. Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—A vast acreage increase of the Monongahela National forest reserve is contemplated, according to Arthur A. Wood, forest supervisor.

Wood says 20,000 acres is under option and that he hopes to have 20,000 more before the reservation commission meets the last of September.

Maryland Church Prepares For Pilgrimage Sept. 30

All Faith, One of Oldest, Will Hold Program Near Leonardtown.

Leonardtown, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—A pilgrimage has been arranged with home-coming services, to be held by the congregation of All Faith Church near Mechanicsville September 30, according to plans announced by the rector, the Rev. Franklin Lee Metcalfe.

This church is one of the original eight colonial churches built in St. Marys County, and one of few that still has its records intact dating from 1692.

The services will be held at 10:30 a. m., with the Rev. Calvert Buck, of Washington, preaching. At 2 p. m., a laymen's service will be held, at which Dr. Sinclair Bowen, Washington physician, and Busey Howard will preside.

A luncheon will be served on the church lawn at noon, and many former members of the church now living in Washington and Baltimore are expected to make the pilgrimage.

All Faith Church now standing, was built in 1776, replacing the log building placed on the original site. It is of brick construction, with barrel-shaped ceiling and slave gallery, and stands back from the highway in excellent preservation, surrounded by a well-kept graveyard.

The Rev. Metcalfe, prepared for the ministry at Boston University, Drew University, DeLancey Divinity College and General Theological Seminary New York.

A first entry in the church register made in 1692 reads as follows:

"At a court at Benedict town on the 14 day of February, in the year of our Lord 1692, and in the fifth year of our Sovereign Lord the King by the Grace of God, King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, defender of the faith, and by the justices thereto, authorized and appointed with the most principal freeholders thereunto called for the laying of the parishes on the south side of Patuxent river in Calvert County, being in obedience to an act of Assembly entitled, and for ye service of Almighty God and the establishment of the Protestant Religion in the Province. Made at the city of St. Mary's on the 10 of May in the year of our Lord 1692."

Chosen "Milky Way" Princesses

Announcement was made by the Piedmont Dairy Festival at Manassas, Va., yesterday of the selection of two additional princesses for the queen's court and "Milky Way" feature parade. The selections include Miss Nannie Waller Moncure, left, who will represent Stafford County, and Miss Sarah Elizabeth Lewis, princess from Prince William County. The fete will be held September 28.

Hood College Opening Is Set For Tomorrow

Maryland, Virginia Schools Complete Programs for New Term.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Hood College, Dr. Henry I. Stahr, president, will formally begin its forty-second year Thursday. Orientation exercises were held yesterday followed in the evening by a meeting of the faculty, at the conclusion of which the members were entertained by Dean Ruth V. Pope.

Registration of pupils began today and will continue tomorrow and Thursday. An assembly for new students was held this afternoon followed by a welcome by Dr. Stahr. Addresses were made by faculty members. Motion pictures and songs led by Miss Margaret Seyfried, song leader, featured tonight.

Psychological tests, under the direction of Prof. Nevin Rebert, head of the department of education, will be held tomorrow. Tests will also be held Thursday followed by classes Friday. A reception for the students will be held at Meyran Hall Saturday and a reception will be given by President Stahr and Mrs. Stahr Sunday afternoon followed by an organ recital by Prof. Henry T. Wade, head of the music department.

Dr. Stahr succeeded Dr. Joseph H. Apple, founder and for 41 years president of the college, who resigned last June and was made president emeritus. An enrollment of about 500 students is expected.

Emory and Henry Opens.

Emory, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Emory and Henry College opened for work with an increase of 40 students, or 15 per cent over the number enrolled last year. President J. N. Hillman stated today that the total collegiate enrollment for the year would reach the 400 mark.

Plans are under way whereby the expansion of the college curriculum will be undertaken. Classes in art and music are under the direction of Miss Mary Elizabeth Crenshaw, of Meadowview, and Mrs. R. L. Hillman, of Emory.

Shenandoah College Opening.

Dayton, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Dr. W. G. Gifford, dean of the Harrisonburg State Teachers College, will deliver the opening address at the first chapel exercises of Shenandoah College tomorrow.

Dean Wade S. Miller, beginning his second year at the head of the college, will welcome the students and present to them the members of the faculty. Miss Katherine Moore, new violin instructor, will play a violin solo.

Classes will begin Thursday.

Mount St. Mary's Opens.

Emmitsburg, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Mount St. Mary's College opened here yesterday, marking the beginning of the 127th year of Catholic education of young men. St. Joseph's College for young women will begin its 126th year tomorrow here.

Mount St. Mary's is directed by secular clergymen. Its founder was the Rev. John Dubois. In 1809, Mother Elizabeth Bayley Seton founded St. Joseph's at Emmitsburg, the original seat of the Sisters of Charity in America. The order today continues the guidance of the institution.

Rains Wash Away Virginia Mill Dams

Storm Also Hits Roads in King George County.

Richmond, Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Four mill dams, crossed by roads, were swept away in the southeastern part of Caroline County and in the northern end of King William County yesterday by high water resulting from the heavy rain of the day and night before, according to reports reaching the State Highway Department today.

A washout of the road in King George County connecting Route No. 3 and the Port Royal-Port Conway bridge was also reported. It was expected that this damage will be repaired and the road opened late today. Route No. 49 north of Mineral was also reported closed owing to a washout at the bridge over the North Anna River.

Routes 208 and 207 connecting roads between the Richmond-Washington Highway and the Bowling Green road, were also blocked by a rise in the Mattaponi River. Route 233, which was closed by flood waters near Morrissville yesterday, is open today. Travel is proceeding over the West Point fill without difficulty.

Labor Blames Virginia PWA For Job Tie-Up

Spokesman of Federation Scores Col. Anderson on Wage Dispute.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 18 (AP).—E. J. Shave, secretary-treasurer of the Virginia Federation of Labor, asserted tonight that Col. James A. Anderson, Virginia Public Works Administration engineer, and his organization are "solely responsible" for the suspension of payments to contractors of 24 projects pending a Federal investigation of wage rates.

At the same time he denied a statement attributed to Col. Anderson that the amount of money involved in disputed wage claims on these projects is "so small it hardly is worth talking about."

"One man on a job at Langley Field told me he had $200 coming to him," Shave said, "and today I forwarded to Washington 11 affidavits claiming an aggregate of $3,100 wages due on the sea wall job at Old Point. I don't know just what the total of all claims would be, but it certainly is not small from the standpoint of the workers involved."

Investigation Promised.

Washington dispatches telling of the holding up of funds for the Virginia projects, including a number of school and college buildings, said the PWA would investigate claims that skilled workers were paid at less than the required $1.10 minimum rate.

Tonight Shave said that Virginia labor leaders never had agreed to the insertion in contracts of any provisions for employment of labor under a "semi-skilled" or "local skilled" classification, but had insisted that a worker must be either skilled or unskilled and that any man who handled the tools of a skilled laborer was to be regarded as skilled.

The State PWA organization was forewarned that labor would not accept any intermediate classification, Shave said. "Contractors bid on the jobs with an understanding that they would pay 45 cents an hour for unskilled labor and $1.10 an hour for skilled labor. If they pay less than that after getting the contracts they are stealing."

"Chiseling" Is Charged.

He stated further that contractors in the State had been "chiseling" with the help and assistance of Col. Anderson and his organization, which had permitted use of workers who handled the tools of skilled workers, but were not paid at the full skilled rate.

"The claim has been made that this was done to permit employment of less efficient workers in localities where skilled workers could not be found and where local jobs were needed," Shave said. "But they tried the same thing right here in Richmond, where certainly there are plenty of skilled mechanics. It was the protest of the Richmond Carpenters Union which seems to have started the present investigation.

Ballot Box Dance To Be Held at Fair

One of Several Features for Charles County.

La Plata, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Many novel and unusual events are being scheduled for the Charles County Fair to be held September 27 to 29. Among them is the dance Saturday night called "The Ballot Box Dance," because at this time ballots for the queen, who is to rule over the pageant, entitled "The Court of the Magic Weed," will be counted.

Thomas P. McDonagh, who is in charge of these events, has arranged the following schedule: Base running contest, dodge ball throw, obstacle race, novelty race, sack race, potato race, rolling-pin throw, terrapin race and frog hop.

The terrapins, with numbers on their backs, are placed in the center of a ring and turned loose, and the first turtle to cross the line wins the money. In the frog hop, three chances are given and the longest hop wins.

Mr. McDonagh has the following assistants: F. B. Gwynn, county school superintendent; M. M. Somers, S. E. Lawer, T. C. Martin, V. J. Donat, Mildred Rice and Louise Albrittain.

2 Virginia Loans By PWA Promised

School Allotments Made in Woodstock, Hilton.

Increases in previously awarded loan and grant allotments for construction of schools in Woodstock, and Hilton, Va., were announced yesterday by Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

The grant of $18,000 to the County School Board of Shenandoah County for construction of a building in Woodstock, was increased to $17,500, because the building will cost more than the original estimate.

The grant of $8,900 to the Warwick County School Board of Education for an addition to the Hilton Village School was increased to $11,300 because of underestimates of the cost of the work.

Dorchester Duchess Chosen for Pageant

Cambridge, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Mrs. Charles J. Koch has been named "Duchess of Dorchester" to represent this county in the Maryland Tercentenary pageant in the Baltimore Stadium the nights of October 5 and 6.

She will be attended, as maids of honor by Mrs. Harry Cottman, of Hurlock, and Mrs. Harry Parker, of East New Market. Jack Evans and Mary Virginia Webb will be pages. The standard bearer will be selected by Dorchester Post, No. 91, American Legion.

Ships to Race With Winter To Feed Nome

started. It carried 650 tons of foodstuffs from Seattle, but will not arrive before Sunday.

The steamer Dellwood was rigged out as a special relief ship at Seattle and ordered to sail for Nome Saturday with 5,000 tons of food and building materials.

Spark Started Blaze.

A spark from a nearby structure landed on the roof of the Golden State Hotel and started the blaze.

Fire fighters soon were unable to reach fire plugs and the flames had their way leveling 30 square blocks—an area 10 blocks long and 3 blocks wide.

Firemen tried dynamiting, but the flames quickly leaped the gaps caused by the explosions. In these blasts two Eskimos were killed. They remained in a building the authorities thought had been vacated.

Alfred J. Lomen, manager of the Lomen Commercial Co., one of the largest business concerns in Alaska, estimated the loss at not less than $2,000,000.

The Nome that burned was a city of shacks, but a glamorous one, whose rise had furnished the world with much romance in its 35 years.

Once before, in 1905, it was scarred badly by fire, but the pressure of prosperity from the flow of gold restored it.

Gold Lured Myriads To Town 36 Years Ago

The fire that has just swept Nome, Alaska, broke out on the thirty-sixth anniversary of the town's fabulous gold strike of 1898.

It was in September of that year that gold was discovered on Anvil Creek, just outside of Nome. But the discovery that really caused the great stampede was not made until July of 1899. Gold was found on the very beach of Nome, gold in vast quantities.

The rush that followed was one of the most remarkable in American mining history, and likewise the scene that followed. For a stretch of 50 miles, prospectors, working elbow to elbow, burrowed in the sand for the precious metal.

The city born of the stampede went up almost as fast as this week's fire took it down. In an area that had been little more than a wilderness, hotels and resturants sprang up, to be followed by saloons, dance halls, banks and newspaper offices.

In the summer of 1900, according to the National Georgraphic Society, Nome had a population of 20,000, a population that since has dwindled to 1,500.

"Life was glamorous, sordid, thrilling, and tragic," according to the society. "Unscrupulous adventurers and 'carpet baggers' poured in. Claims were jumped, sometimes with the connivance of officials. There were new gold strikes, homicides, typhoid epidemics.

"After the golden sands of the beach—the poor miner's paradise—were exhausted, dredges were brought in and the mining took on an industrial aspect in the creeks some miles around.

"Altogether, between $90,000,000 and $100,000,000 in gold has been taken from the sands and the creek beds of the Nome region. And the great dredges, eating away some miles inland, continue to pour out a sizable stream of the yellow metal each summer."

Nome got it's name through an error. In early maps of Alaska one cape was left nameless, and an official, in going over one draft, wrote down beside this cape the query "Name?" A copyist transcribed the scrawled question as "Nome" and the name stuck.

Nome May Be Given PWA Funds, Says Ickes

Hope that PWA funds might be made available for a rebuilding program at Nome, Alaska, following the fire there Monday, was held out by Secretary Ickes yesterday.

Although lacking a formal report on the extent of the damage and the need for outside help, the Secretary said he might be able to help finance the necessary work.

Early yesterday Red Cross headquarters instructed its chapters in Alaska to aid the stricken city, and Coast Guard officials here ordered three cutters, the Northland, the Chelan and the Shoshone to proceed at once to Nome from Unalaska. Six other cutters were ordered to stand by for possible similar duty.

Western Projects Contract Signed

U. S. Reclamation Program Second Largest.

Denver, Sept. 18 (AP).—A contract with three construction companies for the second largest reclamation project in the West was signed today by the United States Reclamation Bureau here.

The contract for construction of the Grand Coulee Dam and Power Plant on the Columbia River in Washington was awarded on a low combination bid of $29,000,000 to the Silas-Mason Co., of New York; the Walsh Construction Co., of Davenport, Iowa, and the Atkinson-Kier Co., of San Francisco.

Bids were received on the Grand Coulee project in July and the award made shortly thereafter, but signing of the contract was delayed until the successful bidders furnished a $5,000,000 bond.

Nighties in Velvet Latest Paris Gift To Please Milady

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—Velvet nighties That's Paris' latest contribution to fashion.

And while imagining it, just go a step further and conjure up in the mind's eye a picture of that old standby, the bathrobe, made of velvet.

But they are here, both styled in shimmering velvet that is said to wash. Of course one has to be a bit particular about the pressing—

The nightgowns are cut along the lines of simple close-fitting evening frocks. They so closely resemble dress-up clothes they could double for a dinner gown.

They were designed to be used as hostess gowns, and a nightie complimented with a velvet robe is described as a clever new idea for informal entertaining.

Brothers Injured As Auto Hits Pole

Crash on Defense Highway Caused by Driver's Nap.

Two men were injured, one seriously, early yesterday when an auto crashed into a telephone pole on the Defense highway near Lanham, Md.

The men, Troy Bolin, 25, and his brother, Vincent Bolin, 28, both of St. Margarets, Md., were removed by members of the Bladensburg Rescue Squad to Emergency Hospital, Annapolis.

Troy was said to have a fractured skull, while Vincent suffered lacerations. Squad members said Vincent declared he dozed while driving. The brother was thrown through the windshield by the impact.

Reform Vs. Recovery.

Constitution Day brought forth quite a profusion of glittering generalities and pompous platitudes, with a considerable sprinkling of what the vernacular calls hooey. But it would be deplorable if exaggerated rhetoric were allowed to obscure the essential message to which this significant anniversary also gave expression.

Whatever the source, mere vitriolic denunciation of the New Deal is likely to recoil upon the author. When Representative James M. Beck, for example, speaks of the "good ship Constitution" as being in "the same danger as the Titanic" one realizes that oratory has him down. The same may be said of former Senator James A. Reed's dictum that "democracy is not safe in this republic," and of Col. McCormick's reference to "military despots." The New Deal has carried us into many experiments that are positively cock-eyed. But "tyrannous rule" is not yet established in this country and it is easier to say that the Constitution is scrapped than to prove the case.

These exaggerations are the more unfortunate because they tend to conceal the unquestionable fact that many of the innovations sponsored by the Roosevelt Administration are altogether failing to produce. Ogden Mills epitomized this unconcealable fact when he declared that "we are sacrificing our birthright without even getting the mess of pottage." The salient and vital objection is not to practical reforms, but to reforms which are so impractical that they definitely impede recovery and thereby write themselves off as useless except for breaking down a tried and tested structure of government.

It is high time for the Administration to realize that there can be no permanent reform accomplished at the expense of recovery. First of all, the country must have relief from unemployment, stagnant business, lack of confidence and general economic paralysis. Obviously reforms which ignore this fundamental necessity will be ephemeral. It is easy to construct a Fool's Paradise on a basis of wishful thinking. But such structures have never been notable for their qualities of endurance.

Theme Song.

Fifty-one seconds is not quite a minute, but 83 years is a long time. America has held the America's Cup for that number of years, but T. O. M. Sopwith, successor to Tom Lipton in the lengthy effort to "lift that old mug," is 51 seconds nearer his goal. It was by that margin that he shoved his blue-hulled Endeavour across the finish line yesterday ahead of the defender, Rainbow. And not only that, but the British challenger broke the record for the 30-mile course.

When the gallant Sir Tom was racing for the greater glory of Great Britain and Lipton's Tea he tried so long to win that the hearts of America went out to him. Everybody wanted him to win. Now it looks as if the man who took up the challenge where he laid it down is on the way to victory. True, he has yet to capture two more out of the scheduled seven races, but he has the psychological advantage of having won the first two races of the series.

While T. O. M. isn't Sir Tom there are many in this country who wouldn't mind if he captured the series. Even victory becomes monotonous. And this may be Great Britain's year, as followers of the tennis matches are well aware. There used to be a popular song that got onto the air channels quite a bit. If Mr. Sopwith keeps up his winning streak it may be the theme song of Endeavour, for it is, "There's a Rainbow on My Shoulder." Which is where the English challenger hopes it will remain!

No Place Like Nome.

Once crowded with 12,000 people, the scene of Alaskan adventure made vivid by the red-blooded authors of another day, Nome had dwindled to a small town of only 1,500 people when fire destroyed nearly its entire business section and most of its homes. Freezing temperature has added to the disaster, but fortunately it appears that the residents are not lacking in sufficient foodstuffs to keep them until Coast Guard cutters make the long and arduous run from Unalaska, 900 miles away.

Most of the wooden buildings that were leveled by the flames were survivals from the gold rush days, when the city was at the height of its fame. That they will soon be rebuilt, so that the business of the town may continue during the approaching winter, goes without saying. The spirit of Nome's pioneers has been made famous in song and story. Today it is not the rough and ready gambling town that it was when gold was first discovered. It has a Chamber of Commerce and Rotary meets once a week.

Nevertheless, it still is Nome. It is a progressive town for its size and situation on the map. As northwestern terminus of the Government cable system it is important. The gold mines there are far from idle. Young among cities, it has seen history made, and those who made it were of the hardiest stock this country has produced. While the sympathy of the whole country goes out to the stricken city, Nome will hold its head high knowing that it will live up to the expectations of those who have read the unique story of its rugged past.

The Local Budget Hearings.

Washington's fiscal problems are being scrutinized in a manner that is novel here, but common in virtually all other American cities. Citizens are expressing their views to municipal authorities, not only upon the budgetary requests of the various departments, but also upon the most practicable means of raising revenue. So far as they go, these hearings establish a salutary precedent; they will add prestige to the Commissioners' final recommendations. The unfortunate factor is that the budget to be drafted as a result of this procedure may be completely upset by a Federal bureau, even before it reaches Congress.

Hearings of this sort furnish a background of local opinion upon which a budget dedicated to the welfare of the community as a whole may be based. Between this procedure and the arbitrary slashes made by the Federal Budget Bureau, in accordance with National rather than local policy, the choice is so emphatically clear that the present obsolete system of budget making for the District seems to be perpetuated only because of neglect.

It is encouraging to note that some of the individuals and associations which undertake to advise the Commissioners in fiscal matters are willing to face the question of revenue as well as spending. Too often groups of citizens speak only in terms of improvements, ignoring the cost. According to Harry N. Stull, the Federation of Citizens Associations is willing to face higher taxes if the municipal improvements considered essential are included in the budget. Cooperation of this sort adds a note of impressive sincerity to the federation's plea for more adequate school facilities, playgrounds, libraries and social welfare work.

On the question of what taxes should be imposed, however, Mr. Stull's advice was less convincing. He favors higher real estate taxes over a sales tax or an augmented gasoline levy, because the latter are "too controversial." Obviously it is the practicability of a proposed tax, and not the controversy which it may arouse, that must be considered first. If an increase in real estate taxes served to discourage private building and to increase tax delinquencies its imposition would work injury on the whole community, regardless of whether or not it is less controversial than other forms of raising revenue.

In ordinary circumstances taxes can safely be concentrated upon net income or profits. But when net income all but disappears and relief burdens falling upon all communities are greatly increased, taxes on gross income become the only practicable alternative to repeated borrowing. In pure theory turnover taxes and sales taxes are subject to legitimate criticism. But the situation confronting most American cities today will not permit the theoretical ideal. The New York agreement for lottery financing, which is nothing but legalized gambling, is an indication of the pressure which relief needs are placing on many communities. Few would argue that lotteries are preferable to carefully devised sales taxes.

While New York and Washington represent opposite extremes in the matter of municipal financing, this problem of finding new taxes that will not be frustrated by the law of diminishing returns is common to both. The problem is complicated in Washington because of the tendency of Congress to take advantage of every new levy upon local residents to reduce the Federal contribution to the Capital City. If Congress would abandon its hit-or-miss policy of fixing a lump sum contribution in accordance with the views of a few willful members of the House, the issue of tax adjustments and higher revenue could be thrashed out on the merits of the proposed changes.

The Gateway To Television.

Development of radio opened a seemingly limitless field for the research engineers. They now intimate that we are on the threshold of a revolution in the whole field of communications. Dots and dashes by which telegraphic messages have been flashed about the world, they say, are unquestionably doomed. Even now messages are being flashed over short wave lengths with the speed of light, just as they are written at the point of origin.

Photoradio, of course, is not new. Pictures have been flashed through the ether for several years. Engineers had developed both television transmitters and receiving instruments, but a satisfactory circuit has been lacking. Now they have discovered that micro-waves are admirably suited to this purpose. Not long ago the micro-wave spectrum was considered the "graveyard" of radio. But engineers found that these ultra-short waves are influenced by neither static nor fading. Images can be relayed over them at terrific speed, and possibly at lower costs than are entailed in telegraphy.

With the adaptation of photoradio to the micro-wave, David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, is confident that the gateway to television has been found. Wireless communication offices of the future, he says, will be equipped with moving belts on which will be clipped the pictures and messages written by typewriter or in the handwriting of the sender. As they move along the belt they "will be cameraed by the electric eye linked with the micro-wave transmitter." Television will become a practical reality as soon as pictures may be transmitted in this manner at the rate of 16 per second.

There is always a possibility that the engineers are too optimistic. But rapid progress is unquestionably being made. The practical miracles which may result from this line of research seem to be limited only by man's ability to harness the ether and by his capacity to use the gifts of science constructively.

A Swiss Triumph.

A striking illustration of a cooperative and tolerant spirit unusual in the modern world is furnished by the Swiss attitude on Russia's entry into the League of Nations.

The little country which has the honor to be the seat of this great international organization was, on the whole, vehemently opposed to admitting the Soviet to membership. The essential conservatism of Swiss thought, the deeply religious character of the people, and the unfortunate experiences they have endured in past relations with the Bolsheviks all combined to make opposition inevitable.

And this opposition was carried through to the end. Seven nations on the floor of the Assembly preferred not to vote rather than to espouse Russian membership. But Switzerland was one of three—Holland and Portugal the others—to oppose a flat negative to the 39 favorable votes by which Russia has now become a member of the League. The little Alpine republic which cradled Democracy has, as always, kept her position clear upon the record.

But with the decision taken, Switzerland, as always, accepts the will of the majority. To reports that his country would itself resign, would otherwise show that pique which we call pride in nations and temper in children, former President Motta gave a prompt denial. Switzerland, he indicated, regards the slow and tortuous development of the world community as a more vital matter than her own feelings.

Those who know Switzerland, the Swiss, and Giuseppe Motta will not be surprised. Quick to feel, but slow to speak; hard to start, but harder to stop, this simple mountain people has much to teach to others with far more outward strength and superficial power.

In the vote on the Assembly floor Switzerland was decisively defeated. In her acceptance of that vote she has no less decisively triumphed. And who shall say that there was not a lesson of general application in M. Motta's assurance, in opposing Russia's entry, that he would speak with "that moderation which alone lends to arguments their full weight, but also with that frankness which we owe to one another."

All The Wonderful Things.

Sean O'Casey, that fine Irish playwright who wrote the imperishable "Juno and the Paycock," has arrived in New York to watch the production of his own "Within the Gates," which George Jean Nathan has described as "the greatest play of the last 20 years." A wise man, whose rise as a writer is one of the marvels of modern Ireland, Mr. O'Casey had many wise things to say to Joseph W. Alsop, jr., who interviewed him on the liner.

Not the least interesting was his brief descriptions of some of the British playwrights of the last 20 years. Arnold Bennett he dismissed as one who "found life in the grill rooms of hotels and left it there, eating." Barrie, he said, had "dishonored God by implying that He should have populated the world with Peter Pans." And Galsworthy "collected all the life he knew, and hid it in a silver box."

Mr. O'Casey has a right to this Olympian scorn by virtue of his past achievements. But what he had to say about the theater as it is today is perhaps more important. He thinks it should be a ritual, to appeal to all the people, and that it should no longer be the naturalistic-romantic thing that it has been for so long. "There's no poetry in any of the plays anymore, no rhythm, no dancing. All the wonderful things have been bled out."

Shakespeare, Johnson, Ford and Webster had those things, nor were they lacking among the dramatists of the Restoration—witness "The Beggar's Opera." But we have very little of them. It is a mighty task which Mr. O'Casey imposes upon himself when he says that they are what, single handed, he is trying to put back on the stage. He is obviously on the right track when he says that they can not be returned in any academic way, but by getting into the stream of great men who must be followed in seriousness, in poetry, and in vehemence. No "wretched revival of blank verse" is what he seeks, but a revival of the imagination and of experience.

"We must use our own imaginations and experiences to mold something on the same scale that they used, something with the same beautiful, poetic force." It is a large order, this demand for a poetical-realistic drama. But with such a man as O'Casey leading the chorus we need not fear for the future of the theater. If not all, perhaps some of the wonderful things may be brought back to make more livable a world which to the ordinary man or woman seems so barren of poetry, rhythm and dancing.

A Parade of the Past From the Files of The Post.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

A DESPERATE BATTLE continued to rage day and night along the Aisne; terrific charges by the Germans and the Allies cost a terrible toll in human lives; fearful blows failed to weaken the battle lines; both sides claim progress; the Allies and Germans each sought vainly for the other's vital points; the Kaiser's troops were strongly intrenched in good positions—such was the headlined news.

THE FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD was about agreed to raise a $100,000,000 gold fund, as requested by a bankers' committee, to meet American obligations abroad.

THE KAISER is not to blame for the war, as it is generally stated. He was a young man in 1870 when the military spirit was rife, and he is but a product of the system of militarism. So said Sir James M. Barrie, English playwright, on landing in New York.

57.5 or 85?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your recent editorial "Probably Showers," referring to the United States Weather Bureau's forecast for the District of Columbia, issued on the morning of September 12, and followed by the most tremendous cloudburst which ever hit the District of Columbia, is written in a humorous vein. But the Weather Bureau's forecasts for the District of Columbia must be regarded as more or less of a joke.

The tabulation of precipitation in Washington during 1933 is a fair illustration of the local forecast situation. It was prepared with great care and covers forecasts of precipitation which rebelliously did not come—and forecasts of dry weather which impudently resulted in rain. The tabulation shows a percentage of 42.5 of forecasts sustained and of 57.5 which failed. Since the first of January, the situation has shown but slight improvement.

There are plenty of able men in the Weather Bureau. But they ought to sing the song of "The Volga Boatmen," for they are compelled to pull upstream against the current the heavy boatload of a bureaucracy fossilized as to its methods and unscientific in its meteorology. The Weather Bureau claims (?) an accuracy of 85 per cent.

Uses of Liberty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Darst in a letter to The Post of September 15 states that it does not matter to which of the parties, Democratic or Republican, a member of the American Liberty League belongs, so long as he joins hands with fellow members to fight the radicals who would, he claims, destroy home and country.

The dominant elements of the two big parties have one vital interest, namely, the preservation of their amassed fortunes and property and the liberty of continuing to do so by collecting net profits and rents from workers who have to work for a living and for means of trying to retain their homes, which they love even more dearly than millionaires who own five or ten homes!

I do not deny the right of any group to organize for a cause. Just as I respect this right in members of the American Liberty League, so would I respect it in members of any radical group.

Radicals are a much abused class, if such they can be called—for in reality they are generally very individualistic in their thoughts. Their methods vary greatly. One, George Washington, was a revolutionist; he headed an army in order to down tyrannical acts of a mother country. England's great reform act of 1832 was the result of a bloodless revolution. Thomas Jefferson, a radical of his day, claimed that a little blood-spilling was advisable about every 20 years in order to refresh the tree (not the shadow) of liberty.

There is no such thing as absolute liberty in any society. There are only individual freedoms one may enjoy if he gives due respect to those held by others. The most common freedom today is effective leisure—that is, having time free from work and the means of using or enjoying that time.

Today, America has 10,000,000 unemployed workers, including myself. We have the liberty of borrowing, resorting to charity or crime or committing suicide. Which one does Mr. Darst recommend as the best use of liberty?

What's Wrong With Us?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was supposed that inasmuch as the "Woman's Rights" group had acquired by law rights generally belonging to men, in addition to special "rights" already enjoyed by women because of their sex, peace and harmony would reign throughout the land. It seems, however, that the question has not been settled and that Congress and the country are to listen to pleas for other "rights" yet desired.

It is a notable fact that, since the granting of woman suffrage, political, economic and social conditions have rapidly grown worse. The entrance of women into politics and industry in ever-increasing numbers has had much to do with present unsatisfactory conditions. Never were politics more unsettled, and never were unemployment and idleness among men more widespread. And there is nothing in sight that indicates an improved state of affairs in the near future. Foolish amendments to the Constitution are seriously affecting our system of government—the best ever devised by man.

Justly or unjustly, leaders of the Democratic party must bear the responsibility; the odium is theirs. The history of the last three-quarters of a century shows that Democratic party leadership has not been equal to the task of giving the best service to the country. For this reason, many voters—Democrats as well as others—have lost confidence in the ruling powers, and this sentiment doubtless will be reflected in the coming Congressional elections, and, later, in 1936.

The Page Opposite.

The editorial page, while generally liberal, is never communistic. The editorials and particularly the Post Impressionist always show good taste in their attitude toward religious matters. But this other page seldom misses an opportunity to take the communistic side of any problem and, as in reproducing on September 16 the Louisville Courier-Journal's cartoon called "The G. O. P. Rock of Ages," never misses an opportunity either to ridicule religion or to go out of its way to err in the matter of good taste and common consideration of other people's feelings upon religious topics.

The gentleman in charge of the page in question may not believe in Christianity, and of course he has a right to his opinions even if they are not those of the editorial page writers. But he ought to know that the very phrase "Rock of Ages" has a sacred implication for believers, and he would do better to combat them by sober argument than to employ a disregard of their feelings, which they would not employ in any controversy with him.

Johnsoniana.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Gen. Johnson, who has done more for working people than all the labor leaders in the country, is a brave and able man to denounce the textile strike the way he did in New York on September 14. He proved at one fell swoop that organized labor is an irresponsible mob; that their agreements are worthless. This can all be remedied, however, if labor will make itself responsible and amenable to law by incorporating as industry has done.

A Sales Tax.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Ship of State is still at sea, in the middle of the stream where the swapping of horses took place 20 months ago—and no progress has been made toward relieving this country of the pangs of a so-called depression. The Government is deeper in debt and under heavier expenses than before.

Politics and lack of confidence in the Administration are the principal causes of the depression; the Administration has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. The platform on which it was inaugurated into power has been repudiated 100 per cent, and every other experiment indulged in since then has proved a failure. There is as much money and food available now as there ever was, but those who are in possession of it are loath to part with it in the absence of any assurance of its being returned to them.

A balanced budget would restore confidence and the shade of the depression would disappear. A 2 per cent sales tax might horrify some persons, but it has been tried in the States and other countries and has proved a success.

Philatelics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The governing board of the Washington Philatelic Society wishes to thank The Post for the fine service of news of the recent convention of the American Philatelic Society held at Atlantic City.

The convention was of particular interest to members of this society as we had invited the A. P. S. to hold the 1935 convention in Washington, and early news of our success was, therefore, highly appreciated. Also many of our members are members of the A. P. S., but were unable to attend the convention.

Easter Island.

Easter Island, one of the strangest places in the world, is again in the news. Bent on unlocking its mysteries, an expedition of French and Belgian scientists has landed on the rocky speck, 2,300 miles west of Chile, in the lower Pacific. For an undetermined length of time they will ponder the many awe-inspiring monuments and burial platforms of compressed volcanic ash which line its coasts, study the curious script graven on them and on wooden tablets and explore the quarries from which the towering figures were cut and where many still repose, as if the work were stopped suddenly and never resumed. Then there is the riddle of the people—who they really are and whence their ancestors came, and why a population of 6,000 should dwindle to some 400.

For the geologists in the expedition, there is the question of the island itself. Are its 45 square miles the peak of a submerged continent? Are they of volcanic origin or all that remains of a great island which long ago sank from sight? Those who have puzzled over Easter Island's conundrums will wish the current explorers better fortune than that which befell their predecessors. Since Easter Day, 1722, when the Dutch Admiral Roggeveen landed the first European ship near its bird-cult village of Orongo, the story of this mysterious outpost has been hidden as securely as if one of its ancient chiefs had thrown the key to its mysteries into the vast sea which shuts it off from the world.

The Post Impressionist

The Other Side.

Postoffice, Wednesday.

DAVIES, SR., is so unfortunate as to have lived in Washington for only a brief time. He got a job in the NRA last spring and he didn't bring his family with him. He thought his family had better remain in the Northern Peninsula for the summer because some busybody had told him that Washington summers were rather warm. So Davies, Sr., decided not to bring his family here until early autumn. . . .

Davies, Sr., is a widower. His family consists of Davies, Jr.

Davies, Jr., is aged 10 years. We ourselves have an idea that Davies, Sr., is rather afraid of his son.

* * *

Anyhow, a few days ago the father got the requisite time off and set forth for the Northern Peninsula to bring the lad to Washington for the winter.

And at first the lad didn't want to be fetched.

Davies, Sr., says he decided immediately to try persuasion. He says he does not believe in elders coercing their offspring. He says you ought to appeal to children's intelligence.

So—or so he tells the story—Davies, Sr., said to his boy:

"But you'll like Washington."

"Why?" asked Davies, Jr.

"Well, you—you just will."

"But why, father?"

"Because it's likable."

"Do you think it's likable?"

"I certainly do."

"But why do you think I'll think so, too?"

"Because. Because—— In the first place, it's beautiful. And it's historic. And then, it's—— There are such lots of things to see there, you see."

"What is there to see, father?"

"Why, there's the Capitol and the Washington Monument and the White House. And there's Mount Vernon——"

"I didn't know Mount Vernon was in Washington."

"It isn't in Washington, but it's near Washington, anyhow."

"How near?"

"About—— Oh, it's near enough. And then there's the Lincoln Memorial. You've simply got to see that. Everybody ought to see the Lincoln Memorial."

"What's the Lincoln Memorial, father?"

"The Lincoln Memorial is a memorial to Abraham Lincoln."

"What's it like?"

"It's—it's a little like a Greek temple. When you stand in front of the Lincoln Memorial——"

"In front?"

"Yes. When you stand in front of that beautiful——"

"What's it like inside?"

"It hasn't any inside, properly speaking. It's a statue of Lincoln with a—a background. You stand in front of that——"

And Davies, Sr., gave a poetic description of what he was sure he would have felt when he stood in front of the Lincoln Memorial had he ever stood there.

Davies, Jr., listened appreciatively. Then he asked: "So that's what it's like in front?"

"Yes."

"And what's the back like?"

* * *

"What's the Smithsonian Institution?"

"It's a museum."

"Have they got any dinosaurs?"

"The place is simply crawling with them."

"Big ones?"

"The biggest in the world."

"Gosh! Is it near the Lincoln Memorial?"

"It's—oh, I guess not far off."

"Can you see the back of the Lincoln Memorial from the Smithsonian Institution, father?"

Davies, Sr., said he didn't remember. But there was the Capitol, too—where Congress met.

"Father, will you take me in while it's meeting?"

"When it meets, I certainly will—yes, sir!"

"In the Senate?"

"Sure thing."

"So I can see the Senators?"

"Yes."

"And will you show me Huey Long?"

Davies, Sr., said, oh, he supposed so—but why Huey Long?

"Well, he's the greatest one, isn't he? The greatest man's the man that gets his name most in the newspapers, isn't he? Lincoln got his name in the papers lots, anyhow. Father, does the Lincoln Memorial have its front or its back toward the Senate?"

"I forget."

"Why do you forget, father?"

"Because I don't remember. And, yes, you'll want to go up the Washington Monument."

"Is there an elevator?"

"I don't know."

"Haven't you been there, father?"

"I've been too busy, so far. But there's a wonderful view of all the city."

"Can you see everything?"

"Every blessed thing."

"The Lincoln Memorial?"

"Of course."

"The back of it, too?"

"My son," said Davies, Sr., "the Lincoln Memorial is no subject for joking."

* * *

"But, father, I'm not joking. Only I think it's queer, when you saw the front of the Lincoln Memorial, you didn't see the back of it. I guess anybody can see just the front. I'll come to Washington, father, if you'll show me the back of the Lincoln Memorial."

Barging Through Europe With Carlisle Bargeron

Berlin—I have just seen a most interesting spectacle. The equivalent of one of our chamber of commerce men called on me yesterday to complain about the lack of American visitors this summer.

BARGERON

"It is because we have been misrepresented in your papers," he complained. "Do we not have splendid weather? Is not Berlin beautiful? Our disorders are no greater or no more dangerous than your San Francisco and other strikes."

"The trouble is," I replied, "that you do not live up to your advertising. Now, I have been here several days without seeing a revolution or a purging. It seems to me that you should at least have these frequently or at stated times. We Americans can't spend our money coming here on chance to witness these things."

• • • •

"Ah, I see," he responded. "Ja, ja, it is a great inconvenience."

After a few moments of deep thought he explained that Der Fuehrer was greatly against revolutions and that it was possible they would be forever banned in Germany as was duelling once, but that he appreciated that I was entiled to a purging and he would get up one for me.

Thus it was that he called me early this morning and asked if I could be ready to see a purging in a few minutes. Naturally, Aleck, I made it a point to be ready.

In an automobile we drove to the big purging stadium where thousands of Germans sat at tables sipping beer. We were ushered to official boxes highly decorated in Hitler flags.

One has to wait an interminable time, Aleck. They seem never to do anything on schedule over here. I think they must have rehearsed the purging several times before the performance finally began.

• • • •

The opening is like the opening of a circus. The performers parade three times around the stadium while the customers keep up a frenzy of cheering.

The purgers, wearing suits of armor and with purging pistols about a foot long, ride on big gray horses, while those to be purged follow on foot in civilian dress, some of them, and others in the brown uniform of the Storm Trooper. One fellow wears a monocle to emphasize that the present regime does not intend to restore the monarchy.

The purgers march up to the official box and present pistols. Then they back away, and up comes the purgerees, holding out their hands and shouting in unison "Heil Hitler"!

Then everybody stands and the band plays "Deutschland Uber Alles."

• • • •

The actual purging is delayed when one of those to be purged asks for an audience with the official having us in charge. He wants to be purged by Hitler himself.

He complains that the last three times he has been purged he has been promised that the next time it would be at the hands of Der Fuehrer himself. He plainly intimates, Aleck, that they are giving him the run-around in this purging business, that it does not offer the career that was held out to him when he joined up. One can tell that he does not feel there is the opportunity for advancement there should be.

The official is plainly irritated at this turn of things in my presence. He is afraid I will get the wrong impression of the purgings. With a show of feeling he quickly explains to the discontented that a purging by Hitler himself at this time is out of the question because of Der Fuehrer is in Munich.

"You expect too much of Der Fuehrer," he says. "He can't be everywhere and all things at the same time."

• • • •

Then he explains to me that manifestly it is an impossibility to grant all the whims of the purgerees. They are temperamental like all artists, he says, but he insists that there is as much opportunity in the purging business as there is anywhere in the world.

With the details all settled, the actual purging is carried out in short order. The purgerees are simply lined up, the order is given, and the purgers shoot them down. The build-up, however, has left me in a state of high excitement, and at the end I toss my hat into the ring just as the Germans do. It is much better than a Mexican bull fight.

I am so thrilled that I ask if they will give another exhibition so I can bring my family to see it. At this request they show a little impatience and say something about the purgers and purgerees having to have some rest, but promise to do it, nevertheless. They appreciate the power of the press, they say.

Spriggs Named Head Of Bunker Hill Post

R. R. Spriggs was elected commander of Bunker Hill Post, No. 31, of the American Legion at a meeting last night at 3516 Thirteenth street northeast.

Other officers elected were Chester J. Wolf, senior vice commander; John Mitchell, second vice commander; Mack Meyers, third vice commander; Grover W. Tribble, finance officer; the Rev. R. C. Fitzgerald, chaplain; Zeb T. Hamilton, Americanization officer; William J. Stone and Harry Bair, color bearers; W. B. Ludwig, sergeant-at-arms; Dr. James F. Manley, surgeon; Jeremiah Dullea, historian; Leo J. Collins, judge advocate, and H. J. Barnholt, quartermaster.

Balanced Budget Hope For '36 Seems Doomed

Necessary Relief Cuts, New or Higher Taxes Frowned Upon.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

As the Treasury yesterday took up its annual task of preparing estimates of expenditures for Congress, there appeared little prospect that President Roosevelt's goal for a balanced budget in the 1936 fiscal year, which starts July 1 next, would be realized.

In order to achieve the end which the President set before his Administration in his budget message to Congress last January it would be necessary either to curtail emergency relief expenditures sharply or obtain more revenue from new or increased taxes.

In Administration circles there does not seem to be any disposition to follow either course at this time. Instead, the rapidly mounting debt is regarded complacently and the contention is made that through use of the so-called gold profit, recapture of some of the funds now being disbursed and increased revenue as business picks up, this indebtedness will be quickly reduced in the fat years anticipated ahead of the Nation.

Economists Seek Ways To Increase Revenues.

SECRETARY of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., has had a committee of economists at work throughout the summer devising ways to increase revenue. His tax adviser, Dr. Roswell Magill, has been in England seeking to learn how that nation prevents evasion of income taxes. Neither Dr. Magill nor the committee has yet submitted reports on their findings.

It is understood, however, that as a result of the delvings by the economists, the opinion has developed that any increase in income taxes or imposition of new excise taxes would act to retard business recovery. The thought is that it would be better to wait another year when there might be some profits and income to tax before hiking the existing rates.

If President Roosevelt later in the year takes this view of the matter, he is not expected to have any opposition from congressional leaders. Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee has indicated he is opposed to more taxes at this time and that was the attitude of Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), of Washington, chairman of the House's special tax committee.

Nuisance, Excise Taxes May Not Be Extended.

SO-CALLED nuisance and excise taxes which produce close to $500,000,000 annually expire automatically next June. These may be extended for another year, but even that is doubtful in view of the seeming reluctance of the Administration to make the country pay the fiddler.

In his budget mesage to Congress President Roosevelt estimated the public debt would total $31,834,000,000 on June 30, 1935, the end of the current fiscal year. He added that "it is my belief that so far as we can make estimates with our present knowledge, the Government should seek to hold the total debt within this amount."

"Furthermore," he continued, "the Government during the balance of this calendar year should plan to bring its 1936 expenditures, including recovery and relief, within the revenues expected in the fiscal year 1936."

"We should plan to have a definitely balanced budget for the third year of recovery and from that time on seek a continuing reduction of the National debt," he concluded.

When Mr. Roosevelt set up that goal he believed the country by this fall would be well on the way to normalcy. He proposed to taper down relief expenditures during this fiscal year and in estimating receipts for the current fiscal year predicated his computations on the assumption that industrial production for the 12 months would average 98 per cent of the 1923-25 average, as estimated by the Federal Reserve Board.

Industrial production in the last fiscal year averaged 83 per cent of the 1923-25 average—two points better than estimated by the President. But since July 1, when this fiscal year started, the industrial production index figure has been failing. Thus it appears unlikely that the average for the year will reach 98.

On the expenditure side the demand to relieve distress among the unemployed is as strong as ever and it is expected that relief expenditures this winter will be greater than last. One reason is that the cost of food will be substantially higher.

Funds for Public Works Hinge on Employment.

THE question of whether more funds should be made available for public works will not be determined until December when the finishing touches are placed on the budget estimates. Unless there is a pick-up in employment, however, the demand for more public works funds is expected to be great.

The hearings which the Treasury started yesterday constitute the routine preliminary steps in making the budget. This time Acting Director of the Budget Bureau Daniel W. Bell will hold the hearings. During the next few weeks the budget officers of each department and agency will lay before Mr. Bell estimates of funds desired.

Usually these estimates are larger than the department expects to get. Mr. Bell prunes down the estimates and finally lays the result before Mr. Morgenthau. It will then be decided what limit should be placed on expenditures, and further cuts are made here and there to keep the total in the limit set. This task will not be completed until late in December.

Editor to Address Pierce Hall Players

Pierce Hall Players will open their season with an informal open meeting tomorrow at Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest at 8 p. m.

Principal speaker will be Nelson Bell, dramatic editor of The Washington Post. Mrs. Dorothy Shannon will present a series of monologues, and music will be furnished by Mrs. Ruth Hansford Snodgrass, soprano, and Mrs. Mary C. Tighe, pianist.

3,000 City Idle To Show Value Of "Self Help"

Pageant October 5 Will Depict Benefits of Plans Employed.

In a pageant to be staged October 5, at 7:30 p. m., on the east plaza of the Capitol, more than 3,000 unemployed persons will demonstrate how self-help programs may be used to provide work for the jobless, District officials announced yesterday.

Heading the list of sponsors is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is scheduled to appear at the affair, arranged by District and school officials.

Intended to depict possibilities of providing employment through cooperative programs, the pageant will be produced by the self-help cooperative division of the Emergency Relief Administration, the Community Center Department of the school system and the recreation division of the District Transient Bureau. Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, of the Community Center Department, is in charge of pageant headquarters, in the Franklin School building.

A scenario writer, now on the relief rolls, has prepared the script. Singing by a massed choir of 1,000 colored men and women, under the direction of Alfred H. Johnson, director of music for the District colored public schools, will be one of the features of the affair.

According to officials other sponsors of the pageant include Mrs. George H. Dern, Mrs. William H. King, Mrs. Elizabeth K. Peeples, Mrs. Fulton Lewis, Mrs. Coralie Franklin Cook, David Lynn, Maj. Gen. John H. Russell, U. S. M. C., the Right Rev. James H. Ryan, rector of Catholic University; Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools; Dr. Abram Simon, rabbi of the Washington Synagogue, and Commissioner George E. Allen.

Members of the executive committee of the pageant include Mrs. Forrest, chairman; Elwood Street, Miss Alice Hill, Owen Woodruff, John Norton Johnson, Harry M. Gardener, Stephen E. Kramer, Sibyl Baker, Alfred H. Johnson, Garnet C. Wilkinson, Campbell Johnson, Charles J. McCubbin, Mary A. McNeill, Mary Edith Coulson, C. Marshall Finnan, Gabriello C. Pelham, Harold Snyder and Norman T. McManaway.

K. of C. to Participate In Monastery Rites

Commemorating the thirty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Franciscan Monastery at Brookland, Washington Council No. 224 of the Knights of Columbus will participate in solemn vesper and benediction services at the institution Sunday at 7:30 p. m.

The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Peter Guilday, of Catholic University. At the close of the ceremonies the members will assemble at the monastery's new pilgrimage hall, where Leo A. Rover a past grand knight of the council, will deliver an address.

Streets Are Like People

Streets are like people . . . young or old . . . sad or gay . . . friendly or forbidding. Some are colorful, exciting; others nondescript. They may be cheap or glamorous. A few are kind with the tolerance that is born of a long, full life.

Do you know Washington's streets? The impudent ragamuffin that is Seventh street . . . handsome and dignified Connecticut avenue . . . Sixteenth street, the cosmopolite . . . Pennsylvania avenue, on whose broad pavement the pageant of American history passes by?

A series of three intensely interesting articles on Washington's streets begins in The Post today. You will want to read them.

No End of Books

Prison-Cold.

IN the summer of 1914 a young Hungarian, a school-teacher and writer from Transylvania, was taking his holiday on the Breton Coast. Though but 28, a love for the French people and literature had already ingrained him—when he made his first visit to Paris, five years before, he had wept in the cab from sheer joy.

THEO. HALL.

But now August brought the tocsin and general mobilization. Young Kuncz hurried to Paris. His wire for funds had been ignored, but he thought he could get home.

He never saw Budapest again until June, 1919. Caught in the maelstrom of war preparation at Paris, Kuncz was seized by French officialdom, flung into prison among other compatriots as mild and harmless, and kept there for five years. Technically, it was internment.

• • • •

Such are the cool facts behind as horrible, terrifying, and yet exalted a manuscript as has ever come over the water to be published on this side—Aladar Kuncz's "Black Monastery" (Harcourt Brace, $2.75).

We have had more sheer theatrics before, more lightning and thunder, more ghouls and gore. But precisely because Kuncz was an educated man, refined, sensitive, alive in the very ways in which the French prize sensibility, that much the deeper and more serious is the impact upon him of the three French prisons—Periguex, Noirmoutier (Black Monastery of the filth and rats), and L'Ile d'Yeu.

Briefly, the interned were kept in seclusion, guarded by bullies and thieving commanders, fed upon scraps of fat and potato and turnip soup, and housed on gunny-sacking in dirt hovels or worse. And there was all the time in the world in which to go mad.

• • • •

The special triumph of this story is the fact that Kuncz kept his sanity and perspective. No, not entirely, for at the end he began to have delusions—yet even then he recognized them, dissected them coolly, watched himself under the glass, so to speak. To the other prisoners he turned the same attention.

There was the mad prophet, howling vengeance upon France and its inhabitants. There was the man who carved 150 little statuettes of women out of hambone, burying each one. There were the Germans, a proud group of their own until the news of the rout of November, 1918, sent them into broken, mumbling huddles.

There was Dr. Hertz, fat, middle-aged, jowled and ugly—and yet imprisonment brought a strange thing out of him. For latent womanly characteristics came to the surface, so that, presiding over the dinner-table or holding what came to be almost a salon, he looked, spoke and acted like a woman, and held every man's eye in pathetic homage. There were less decorous examples of this, naturally.

Some of the men had been French legionnaires, some had been solid citizens, some had been wharf rats and murderers. Through them all walked Kuncz, and the story he tells is one to make you look with wonder upon the simple, homely fact of your breakfast coffee.

• • • •

Months after the Armistice the prisoners were released. Back in his country, Kuncz and two others "boarded a tram going to Buda. We stood on the rear platform with our bundles. A thin, shabby little Budapest artisan looked at us curiously for some time and said finally:

"'Do the gentlemen come from far?'

"'Yes, from internment in France.'

"The thin, shabby man looked at us again, scrutinized all three of us thoroughly, then put his hand to his pocket.

"'Cigarette?'

"The sympathy tore down our stupor. We had returned. From pain to greater pain."

Which, in war-exhausted Hungary, is understandable.

• • • •

The story goes on beyond the book. We are told that Aladar Kuncz finished the manuscript, and then died.

And that too is understandable.

U. S. Railroads Plan to Install '100-Mile' Trains

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—Construction programs which will straighten and smooth railway tracks to make sustained speeds of 100 miles an hour possible are being projected by half a dozen railroads, Elmer T. Howson, editor of Railway Age, disclosed today.

Howson addressed the convention of Roadmasters and the Maintenance of Way Association.

He said the Union Pacific will install a high speed system from Chicago to the Pacific Coast; the Burlington Road will run 100-mile-an-hour trains between Chicago and St. Paul; the Illinois Central between Chicago and St. Louis; the Boston & Maine between Boston and Bangor; the New Haven Railroad between New York City and Boston, and the G. M. & N., between Mobile and Jackson, Tenn.

Harry G. Taylor, chairman of the Western Association of Railway Executives, also pointed to speed as the next major development in rail transportation. He joined Howson in saying that tracks now built for maximum speeds of 60 miles an hour must be built for a speed of 100 miles an hour and perhaps more.

The Once Over

Q. Captain, did you ever instruct passengers how to reach their lifeboat stations?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. You know very well that under present conditions nobody can get passengers to show any interest in lifeboats until there is trouble. They won't even read the instructions on the door of their cabins.

Q. Shouldn't something be done about this, and if so, what?

A. Certainly. I favor admitting no passenger to a dining room until he shows a card from the commander certifying that he or she has listened to instructions and made a trip to the lifeboat assigned to him or her. Hunger might make them do this.

• • • •

Q. Do you consider your crew competent?

A. No crew is wholly competent under the present salaries and system of employment.

Q. Did you ask any vessel for a tow?

A. Yes.

Q. Without thinking of what it could cost the company?

A. I don't consider a disaster at sea a proper moment for bargaining.

• • • •

Q. Do you think vessels, answering an S O S, should collect salvage charges?

A. No more than a Samaritan giving a man a hand after an auto accident should put in a bill for it.

• • • •

Q. Can you understand why steamship lines do not insist that all passengers participate in a lifeboat drill on any trip?

A. Yes. The steamship lines always avoid doing anything that will in any way serve to emphasize the fact that there is any possibility of trouble on their ships. They feel that enforced lifeboat drills would alarm passengers and decrease business.

• • • •

Q. Are passengers allowed to smoke in lounges and rooms having easily inflammable furnishings?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Don't you consider it highly dangerous?

A. Of course. But rigid enforcement of precautionary rules would bring complaints to the company and bring the line into unpopularity.

Q. Should that make any difference?

A. No.

Q. What is done about intoxicated passengers carrying lighted cigars or cigarettes into such rooms?

A. Nothing, and it's high time something was.

• • • •

Q. Captain, during your service on various ships, has any line ever given you explicit instructions what to do in event of a disaster?

A. Yes. On every passenger ship on which I served I got strict orders from the company, in writing, saying that money must never be considered in a crisis and that the one and only thought should be to save the passengers. The companies' slogan has always been, "When in doubt, send an S O S."

Q. Where were you when you got these instructions?

A. In bed.

Q. What were you doing in bed?

A. Dreaming, sir!

(The hearing was adjourned because of excessive frankness.)

WILLIAM ALLERTON ROBERTS, people's counsel for the District. Was a candidate for Vice Presidency of the United States in 1932 but didn't know it until the National Association Opposed to Blue Laws notified him this year. Former assistant corporation counsel and counsel to Public Utilities Commission he was sponsored for his present office by Senator Pat McCarran. A member of many and varied clubs and associations, he can be addressed as either "Mr.," "Professor" or "Captain." Has been digging into public utilities for years and has conducted many investigations. Tall, substantially built, but not fat, he is brisk, jumpy, always busy and rushing around. Writes illegibly to consternation of his secretary. Likes to shoot a pistol at his log cabin in the woods. His desk is full of paper match covers which he collects omnivorously.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

We Learn to Treat Burns As Chinese Did Ages Ago

By Robert Quillen.

A new treatment for burns is saving the lives of thousands who would have been doomed a few years ago in spite of every art then known to the world of medicine.

The treatment has been described in national magazines, but newspapers should do their part to make it universally known. Millions of people read newspapers who never read an article in a magazine.

There is evidence enough that the magazine articles were not read, for the treatment was discovered in 1924 and small towns in the hinterland are yet unaware of it.

Like many another "discovery" of our times, the treatment was known to the Chinese ages ago.

It consists, briefly, in the application of tannic acid.

Powdered tannic acid may be obtained at any drug store. Make a note now, before you forget it, to buy a supply the next time you are down town.

It must be kept in powdered form, for the solution must be fresh. It is made by dissolving five or six teaspoonfuls in a glass of water.

If the victim is a child too young to keep still the solution may be sprayed on with an ordinary atomizer or applied with a sponge.

The treatment for adults consists in applying dry compresses to the burned surface (any clean cloths will do) and soaking them with the solution until the skin turns brown.

This brown coating hardens to form a germ-proof covering and later peels off, leaving a new growth of pink skin without a scar.

The Dr. Davidson who discovered the treatment will rank with the great benefactors of the race. Though dead at 39, he lived to see his method adopted by hospitals all over the world.

But it isn't limited to hospitals. Anybody can employ it, to relieve the shock of pain, while waiting for the doctor. It isn't even necessary to empty the blisters. And those who have no powdered tannic acid can adopt the Chinese method and use a strong brew of tea. It contains enough tannic acid to do the work.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Yom Kippur.

The Jewish year consists of either 12 or 13 months, depending on whether the year is ordinary or embolismic; the word meaning a year when an extra month is intercalated, that is, inserted. The year is based on the sun and on the moon. Instead of A. D. it is called A. M. (anno mundi, the year since the world began). The creation (for calendar convenience) is supposed to have taken place 3,760 years and 3 months before the birth of Christ. The ordinary year has 354 days and the embolismic 384. The extra inserted month has 29 days and is called Veadar. This month is inserted seven times in 19 years; and makes the Jewish year come out correctly with the solar year.

Every day begins at 6 p. m. and lasts 24 hours; the hour is divided into 1,080 equal parts of which each part equals 3.3 seconds. The Jewish month has 29 days, 12 hours, 44 minutes, 3½ seconds.

The names of the months are Tishri, Chesvan, Kislev, Tebet, Sebat, Adar (Veadar embolistic), Nisan, Iyar, Sivan, Tammuz, Abh, Elul. The Jewish New Year's Day comes between September 5 and October 5 and this year it was Monday, September 10. It is, of course, called the First Tishri. Thus September 10, A. D., 1934, was Tishri 1, A. M., 5695.

There are a number of important Jewish holidays; the first two days of the New Year Sukkoth (the feast of tabernacles), Purim (feast of lots), Pesach (the passover), and others. One of the most important is Yom Kippur and it comes today. It is the Day of Atonement.

The Hebrew Kippur means atonement and Yoma day; it is an immensely important time, as it marks the climax of the whole ritual of atonement. Yom Kippur always comes on the tenth day of Tishri, the first month of the year.

The extreme importance of this day in the Old Testament or Jewish religion lies in the fact that its purpose was cleansing—to remove sin from the priesthood and from all the people, and to maintain and strengthen communion between God and man. It began many centuries ago, but it certainly increased in importance in the later history of the Jews, and it is now their most important holy day.

One should read Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers to observe not merely the immensely detailed ritual of the law, but also the wisdom of many of its observances.

Farley Attacks Republicans as 'Pirate Crew'

Calls Election Result in Maine Approval of New Deal.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 18 (AP).—Postmaster General Farley asserted in a political address here tonight that the "old guard of the Hoover gang isn't in step with any measure of the New Deal." He urged Democrats and Republicans alike to "back up President Roosevelt in his splendid work."

Speaking before a gathering including Gov. Horner, Senators Lewis and Dieterich and Mayor Kelly, of Chicago, and other Illinois Democratic leaders, the chairman of the Democratic National Committee called the G. O. P. old guard a "reckless crew of pirates," and the "engineers of ruin" of the days of Herbert Hoover.

Cites Maine Results.

The outcome of the Maine elections, Farley said, "was the most magnificent expression of the success of the New Deal that has come from the voice of the American people since the voters of this country in 1932 entrusted the reins of government to the progressive and inspired leadership of President Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Declaring that the fight for an election of a Democratic Congress in November was a fight for "a new deal and a square deal," Farley said of those he called "the Old Guard:"

"They are against relief—they can not but understand the very vital problem of feeding the hungry, clothing the needy and housing the homeless, and yet they protest against the humane function and duty of the Government to take care of its people. * * *

"I count them like the Bourbons, of Napoleon's time; they can not learn, neither can they forget."

"Nail in G. O. P. Coffin."

Farley said the result of the Maine election, from a political standpoint, "was nothing less than another nail in the coffin of the Republican party."

"It revealed the utter paucity of the Republican leadership," he asserted. "It revealed the entire lack of issues which the once proud and arrogant party of wealth and plunder now displays.

"It is my confident prediction that after the November election the Republican membership in the Senate will sink to the lowest numerical level it has reached since James Buchanan was President, nearly 75 years ago."

Regatta President Thanks Backers

Sees 1934 Event Best in History of Affair.

The President's Cup Regatta Association now numbers almost 100 individuals, representing 48 civic organizations, which in turn represent approximaptely 65,000 Washingtonians, John A. Remon, president of the association, told the Advertising Club of Washington in an address yesterday.

As guest speaker at the club's luncheon, he praised the cooperation of District leaders in supporting the annual sporting event, and said that this year's regatta "will fulfill its promise of becoming the greatest in the history of the affair."

Commercial and sporting benefits of the regatta to the District were stressed by Mr. Remon. The events begin tomorrow, with a swimming meet in the Venetian Pool of the Shoreham Hotel. They will be concluded Sunday with rowing and canoeing tiffs in the Tidal Basin.

P.B.A. Hewins, 'Dodo,' Talks to Early Birds

Take Your Fat Off Your Mind!

Are you one of those people who are forever worrying because "everything they eat goes to fat?"

Then stop worrying right now—because here's a simple, easy, pleasant way to correct that condition, bring your weight down to normal. Without dieting, without exercises, without drastic purging!

For many years physicians the world over have known and prescribed a famous corrective for abnormal obesity. It has been taken with amazingly beneficial results by thousands of women who were "too fat."

This corrective is the chief active ingredient of Marmola, prepared in tablet form by one of the leading medical laboratories of America. You simply take a tablet of Marmola 4 times a day, and start at once to get rid of burdensome fat.

It sounds miraculous, but thousands of women who have taken Marmola, as directed, might well tell you this story if they had the chance.

Since 1907, more than 20,000,000 packages of Marmola have been purchased—and what greater recommendation can be had?

Today—buy a package of Marmola, and start at once. You will soon experience Marmola's benefits. When you have gone far enough, stop taking Marmola. And you will bless the day when you first learned about this wonderful reducing agent!

By George M. Adams, Jr.

ART GODFREY was burned up yesterday. There was a petulant peevishness in his voice as one henna-haired lock drooped down over his Adonis nose. Humanitarian impulses gyrated through his manly chest . . . Art was really burned up. But not over radio.

"Have you seen the current news reels of that ship disaster?", asked the WJSV Sun Dialist.

Well! We waited for the gag. But there was none. Art was serious with his protective instincts aroused against worn-out survivors of the ship disaster being hauled to sound microphones to mutter with painful seriousness their versions of what happened. It touched Art that some poor woman should be made to wring her heart out so that audiences, safe in the comfort of their seats, might actually laugh at the discomfort of people in front of microphones.

That's what burned Art up . . . that people should laugh while others were speaking with strained, drawn faces of tragedy.

So for the sake of social justice WJSV's charmer is going to write to a friend of his in New York and have him mention in his column the inhumanity of some people.

IT was worth a good, comfortable wait in N. B. C.'s plush parlors just to see every receiver available in the studios tuned at WMAL yesterday morning during the White Brothers' network debut and audition. Work was suspended while office girls, salesmen, production managers, announcers and itinerant newspapermen sat with chin in hand listening to their program.

We listened and enjoyed every bit of their 15-minute spot from "Ridin' Around in the Rain," "I Saw Stars," "Broadway's Gone Hill Billy" to "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." With John at the piano and Gene and Dick standing beside him, the lads, in the parlance of a good friend of ours, went to town.

They're a singing trio. That's not extraordinary with thousands of that brand on the air. But perhaps much of the punch and entertainment quality of the White Brothers comes from the fact that they are utterly free from blase obnoxiousness that visits radio performers who think they are good. John, Gene and Dick have worked hard . . . they've sacrificed and gambled on their ability . . . and, by thunder, as far as this department's concerned, they've won.

Smoothness, lightness, pleasantly blended harmony, with lilt and rhythm . . . that's part of their story . . . the rest is an inspiring example of enthusiasm and determination that could not be downed by miles of executives and office boys.

WITH a smiling Irish trill in his voice and thousands of listeners waiting, John McCormack returns to the air today for his second extended series of recitals on N. B. C. networks. The most hardened of us wouldn't try to restrain a catch in the throat when he sings "Sure, I Love the Dear Silver That Shines in Her Hair."

WMAL carries the first of his weekly mike appearances at 8:30 p. m. A feature of the program will be his singing of "Music of the Night," by Eric Coates, English composer . . . marking the first time it's been heard in America. His recital also includes "O Mary Dear," "Alma Mia," "The Prayer Perfect," "Molly Bawn," "The Short Cut to the Roses," and "There, Little Girl, Don't Cry."

THERE'S a certain school of writers who have reached the zenith of their productivity when they call Jimmy Durante a "zany" . . . refer to Jack Pearl and Ed Wynn as "goofy," "crazy" or "mad." But we challenge your ingenuity to nail a label on the antics of Gracie Allen, who, with George Burns, will scamper back on C. B. S. networks today at 8:30 p. m.

They've come pretty close to it when they say "Gracie will probably be no brighter this season" and that "George will have no greater success insulting her." Gracie is master of the inappropriate word, the inept phrase, the quantitative superiority of overstatement . . . and she's so much like the average ideal American girl with brains that she's liked because people don't stumble over their own mistakes.

But this time George and Gracie will not merely "gag" in front of a mike. They will visit with sound effects and music, the places they've just come back from . . . Italy, France, Russia and England.

Andre Kostelanetz (C. B. S. wand waver)—"We hope to . . . and will offer a new conception of radio humor, done with original music. The latter, for want of a better name, might be called 'melodious mirth.'"

Walter O'Keefe (m'c'er with Casa Loma Band and Ted Husing)—"I regret to say that my negotiations for the purchase of a lonely lighthouse off the coast of Maine are temporarily in abeyance."

Roxy (heads his own revues now on C B S)—"It is no longer considered a miracle to listen to musical festivals in Europe . . . or a broadcast from a ship at sea. There is really nothing left in radio to be done, except to do it better."

Mary Danis (she chants with Enoch Light's Band)—"I amused the French by interpolating internationally known nursery song phrases."

FLASH! Will Rogers, who has been on N. B. C. networks for several years with the Gulf Headliners spot, will shift to C. B. S. networks starting Sunday, October 7, at 9:30 p. m. Col Stoopnagle and Budd, also heard on the Headliners program, will accompany the columnist-philosopher.

BAYING bloodhounds and crunching cakes of ice will be the least of problems awaiting the City Theater Players when they occupy N B. C. air with "Uncle Tom's Cabin" during the week of October 2. A splendid cast trained in all the strained histrionics of Red Barn murders and Drunkard rum debauches is in readiness . . . but they haven't cast Little Eva. The part is open and interested persons are asked to get in touch with James Tate, manager of the players at their theater, N street, between Seventh and Eighth.

Parts already cast include Eugene Kressin as Simon Legree, the whip cracker; Frances Brunt as Eliza, the hound dodger; Harold Stepler as Uncle Tom, the black "debbil," and Janet Coon as Topsy, who was "just born." All of these players have been seen here with expert and spirited characterizations from the pages of the family album

Walmsley Acts To 'Purge' City Of Alleged Vice

Answers Huey Long With Clean-up Drive in New Orleans.

New Orleans, Sept. 18 (AP).—Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, aroused by Huey P. Long's charges of vice and gambling in the City of New Orleans, set out today to clean up the city.

At the same time the mayor, calling in his old regular leaders and city officials, served notice on the "Kingfish" that he had no intention of relinquishing the reins of the city government.

"Kingfish" Long heard of the mayor's statements, plucked a passage out of his mind from Victor Hugo's "History of Crime," and quoted:

"'Oh, danger, irresistible converter. In his last hours the atheist invokes God, the royalist calls on the republic.'"

Walmsley told every ranking police officer in the city that gambling must be wiped out and that operators and habitues of disorderly houses must be run out.

Chief of Detectives John J. Grosch, in charge of the department while Supt. George Reyer attends a police chief convention in Washington, organized a six-man vice squad to carry out the mayor's orders.

Armed with more than 100 vacating notices, Chief Grosch said the clean-up campaign would begin "immediately," with notice first served to houses in New Orleans' old tenderloin district.

Wife Shooter's Rites Today.

Westminster, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.)—Funeral services for Theodore Blizzard, 69, of Sykesville, Carroll County, who shot himself to death after seriously wounding his wife, Mrs. Nellie Blizzard, Sunday morning, will be held tomorrow at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Elmer Enos, Flohrville.

Recreation Center Will Open Tonight

Stage, Game Courts Are Installed in Church.

The recently remodeled old church building of the National City Christian Church, at 1308 Vermont avenue northwest, which has been made into a recreation center, will be dedicated at services tonight.

Dr. Raphael H. Miller, minister of the church, and J. Raymond Mills, in charge of religious education, will speak. Basket ball and volley ball courts have been built and a stage is being erected for dramatic performances.

The executive committee of the Young People's Council is composed of Alfred Kime, Miss Laney P. Sadler and Lawton Harriman.

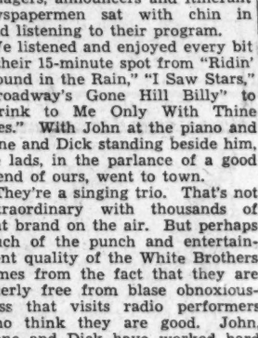
THE BLACKSTONE

"GOOD MORNING, MR. THOMPSON, IT IS 7:30---AND---"

Then the cheery voice across the wire, "Shall I have your breakfast sent up?"



No wonder Commodore guests never get-out-on-the-wrong-side-of-the-bed nor nurse a morning grouch. We dare you to feel doleful when the gentle tinkle of your bedside 'phone awakes you as you lie luxuriously between soft, spick and span Commodore sheets—when you've reveled in your morning shower (or tub) abetted by big, fluffy towels—and when you've capped the climax with a famous Commodore Breakfast, served in your own room—or in the Commodore Bar and Cafe—then you're all set for another big day in the great metropolis. That's why so many choose New York's most convenient and most reasonable, fine hotel.

Is your home as DRY as a Desert?

Does winter bring a loosening of the joints in your furniture? Then the air in your home is too dry! Does tobacco smoke hang in the air in layers—then your home is stuffy!

That's what you get from an ordinary warm-air furnace! Early each evening you begin to nod sleepily. You feel "flattened." Your resistance to outdoor cold and to winter diseases is lowered.

But now comes Delco-Heat Conditionair. And what a difference!

The air is first purified and filtered. Then it is humidified to supply just the proper, healthful degree of moisture. Next, it is automatically heated. And, finally, this pure, clean, fresh, warmed air is circulated to every corner of every room in the house!

No layers of heat along the ceilings. No areas of cold along the floors. No dead air. Instead, pure, fresh, warm, healthful air that changes completely every 10 to 15 minutes! Everything completely automatic!

And Delco-Heat Conditionair operates at less cost than any other method of automatic heating. This is because of the unit construction, and the utilization of the famous Delco-Heat method of burning oil.

DELCO-HEAT CONDITIONAIR DOES THESE THINGS:

1. Purifies the air.
2. Humidifies the air.
3. Heats the air automatically.
4. Circulates the air and provides a complete change every 10 to 15 minutes.
5. Provides clean, healthful, conditioned heat all fall, winter and spring—removes pollen, and provides complete circulation of freshened, purified air during the summer.

"DO NOT MEDDLE WITH THINGS YOU DO NOT UNDERSTAND!"

Out of the blackness of the night a white hand reached out and drew Anthony Sarson into light and safety . . . out of the range of the menacing Something he had faced a moment before. A few minutes later, the mysterious woman's parting advice ringing in his ears, he stepped from the house into adventure such as he had not deemed possible. "The Man Without Nerves" had begun his hideous preying upon the little village of Sandyways! Begin this most breath-taking of stories, by the master of detective fiction . . .

Night Club Life Renewed Here With Heavy Run of Openings

By Kay Ware.

Openings are cropping up as fast as felt hats. Two last week, three or four this week—how many next? Amusement places are dressing up for the winter season, paint is being splashed, decorators are hard at work, managers are booking fine talent, chefs are brushing up on their specialties. And Washingtonians are becoming more and more interested in keeping up with everything.

One of the biggest splashes in the amusement pool will be found at La Paree. They were secretive at first, then visibly excited about their plans, and now the truth is out.

Here it is: Emory Daugherty and 11-piece orchestra, 15 young ladies of the chorus, entitled "Sweethearts on Parade;" Luis and Pegi (would it be pronounced Peggy?), dancers; Ann Del Rio, Spanish type, as her name would imply, who sings; Lilly De Haven, all prepared to show you a Harlem strut; an acrobatic, and, best of all, a fan dance (now that Sally Rand has settled down to do housekeeping), and a new master of ceremonies, Rocco Plaza.

On looking over the list, it appears to be a pretentious show.

Club Michel Moves.

Another splash: Club Michel has moved downstairs and the lower floor will be ready for occupancy Thursday. Here you may see new decorations, new faces, new shows; a brand-new orchestra will furnish the music, a pile of show-people from New York furnish the rest of the bill. They include Bobby Gillette, m. c. and dancer; his partner, Shirley Richards; Holly Hall, former star of "Good News;" Dorothy Morgan, toe and tap dancer.

Impressions of Brooke Johns' Barn. Time: Opening night . . . Brooke playing host. Towers a head above everybody else . . . Trying to find an empty table when people are standing along the walls . . . Mrs. Johns, tall, dark and lovely in black with gold sequins . . . Orchestra in blue overalls, red bandanas, and straw hats . . . Straw hats very becoming . . . Celebrities, show-peaple, singers, greeting each other, pushing through crowds . . . Ceiling that goes up—and up . . . Flowers growing beside stairway . . . Noise, noise, laughter, conversation . . .

Funny story about the host: His five children were in one of his audiences while he was on a tour. He asks a son afterward "Well, what did you like best?" (Answer should be obvious.) Son thinks a moment, grins and says, "The clown."

Madame Goose to You.

Little Miss Ruffles
Dined upon truffles
(They cost more than curds and whey)
Along came a spider
And sat down beside her
And her date had to pay for the truffles she didn't eat, in spite of the fact that he was only a poor boy working his way through college.

Shoreham fluctuates between terrace and ballroom. If the night is warm, one dines and dances out of doors. Should it be cool, activities are moved inside, and everyone is comfortable and happy.

Show this week includes Ramon and Ruth, character dancers. They go very foreign, offering a Spanish Fling, a Morocco number and an Egyptian dance. Virginia Watson, from the "Little Show," puts on two features, "The Parasol" and "The Cigarette." Both titles brief and to the point. Pretty little toe and acrobatic dancers, Myna Lott and Paul Bartels, juvenile dancers from Radio City Music Hall, finish the bill.

Compliments go to Max Lowe for being 40 places at once, and making things run smoothly; to Barnee for being leader with enough restraint and sophistication; to Al Nader for acting as ideal master of ceremonies when the occasion requires his services. Last, but not least, to Miss Barnard, who keeps her eyes open for news.

Some Questions.

What has happened to the Reyes? Thought they were a permanent Washington feature.

What's Happy Walker doing these days? Someone said he was dancing at the Cotton Club the other night.

Our own Godfrey—is he still in the public eye, or just in the public ear?

Will we see the great Maurice, the magician, again? It is whispered that he will be featured in Washington soon.

Because the Carlton has a cocktail lounge, don't think that life should begin at 5:30. You can still have luncheon under gay umbrellas in the garden. One of the nicest things about the garden is that it needn't depend on soft evening lights to make it attractive. Sunshine adds to its charms, if anything.

Get ready for big news of October 5. That is the date of Heigh-Ho's opening.

Hi-Hat "Continental."

Because Hi-Hat is characterized by its "continental" atmosphere, don't think you must have at least a foreign mother-in-law in order to go there. Perfectly plain Americans are wont to sip and chat in its metal chairs, and enjoy it just as much as the diplomats, foreign correspondents, visiting socialites, and the rest of the outside world.

For cocktails at 5, for liqueurs at 9, for high-balls at 11, for more after the theater, try the Hi-Hat.

Tum-di-di-di-tum-di-di-di-tum-di-di-tum-di-di-tum. Which is supposed to be Ravel's Bolero. Leonora and Santino, dancers, who dance to the Bolero. Lotus Restaurant where the dancers dance. Put these together, much as you fit a jig-saw puzzle, and you have many minutes of delight.

Also at Lotus: Orchestra doing skit for "Frankie and Johnnie;" Mayo and Carr, doing soft shoe, buck and drunk dances; Ruth, small and sweet with a contralto voice, and the never to be forgotten, Al Norton, M. C.

German Atmosphere.

If your New York friend happens in and starts to brag about the atmosphere of the German quarter, take him firmly by the elbow and lead him to the Loewenkeller. Then he'll go back to Gotham and brag about the atmosphere on Washington's Connecticut avenue.

For lunch, tea, dinner, dancing, supper, and general enjoyment.

Things to wonder about—
Why hosts are always "genial."
Why prices are called "popular."
Why, in formal dress etiquette, men wear more the colder it gets, and the ladies wear less.
Why men never find anything in the right pocket.

Madrillon Opening.

The date is set for Peter Borras' Madrillon opening. Get out your little book and make a note of it—September 27.

People are beginning to ask about the Russian Troika? Any one heard anything?

Directly opposite the Houston Hotel is a wall sign of La Tosca, Dining and Dancing. What has become of La Tosca? The sign is still there.

This week's honorable mention goes to the Mayflower. One day, when there were people who appreciated it, the orchestra in the lounge played 12 or 13 tangos in succession. In most places it's hard enough to get one upon request.

BLACKIE BEAR
By D. SAM COX

Who-Who Is Surprised.

After Who-Who Owl had grabbed up that chicken in Mrs. Man's yard, he started flying swiftly back to his big nest back in the big old tree. He laughed and laughed to himself all the way home because, to tell the truth, he was mighty proud of the tricks he and Blackie and his friends had played on Mr. and Mrs. Man that day. It had been lots of fun, and besides that, they had gotten lots of things that they really needed.

Who-Who was particularly pleased with the fat, young hen he had swooped up right under Mrs. Man's nose. Thinking it over, he had to admit that it was a mean thing to do, something that no self-respecting owl ought to do, and he never would have done it if circumstances hadn't been so perfect for it, but it was just too good a trick with Mrs. Man in such a flutter. And Who-Who chuckled and chuckled to himself, all the time holding tightly to his chicken. His mouth just watered when he thought of what a fine breakfast it would make for him tomorrow.

When Who-Who finally reached home, he set the chicken down on the side of the nest, got into the nest himself, and stretched his weary bones. He was that tired. After all, he had had a hard day. In spite of all his work, Who-Who wasn't a bit hungry, and though it was a hard task to decide whether or not to eat the chicken right now, he decided that he would wait, and being so tired, he eventually dropped off to sleep.

And the chicken slept right there beside him! Can you imagine that? But chickens are generally very foolish, and this one was young, so she just roosted there on the side of the nest just as pleasantly as you please. She, in fact, had rather enjoyed the whole affair so far. It was fun to be suddenly picked up and rushed up into the air with a mighty swoop, and then just to sail away without any effort. So she stood there and slept in peace.

Next morning just as it was getting light, Who-Who wakened, and so did the chicken. Who-Who was thirsty, so he decided to fly down to the brook and get him a big drink of water before he came back and had his feast. He could just taste that tender, good chicken, but he knew that a drink of water would make it just that much better. So away he flew.

Who-Who's chicken, happy as a lark, not even suspecting what was to be her fate, had ideas herself. Just as soon as Who-Who left, she jumped down in the nest, licked and pecked around and made herself comfortable, generally. And there she sat.

Who-Who went down to the water's edge, had a few drinks, saw two minnows swimming around, caught and ate them, then he decided that it would be fun to splash around for a while, so he would swoop down and barely wet his feathers, then ruffle and fluff them with a great commotion. It made him feel so cool and fresh, and all the hungrier. Then he started back home. When he was almost there, he heard a great cackling. There on the side of the nest stood his chicken, and in the nest was an egg. Who-Who closed the door, settled down and ate the egg instead. He wondered to himself if maybe the chicken might not be a good thing to keep, but just then heard a knocking on his door. It was Jay Bird.

"I OWN MY PART of the GREATER NATIONAL CAPITAL"

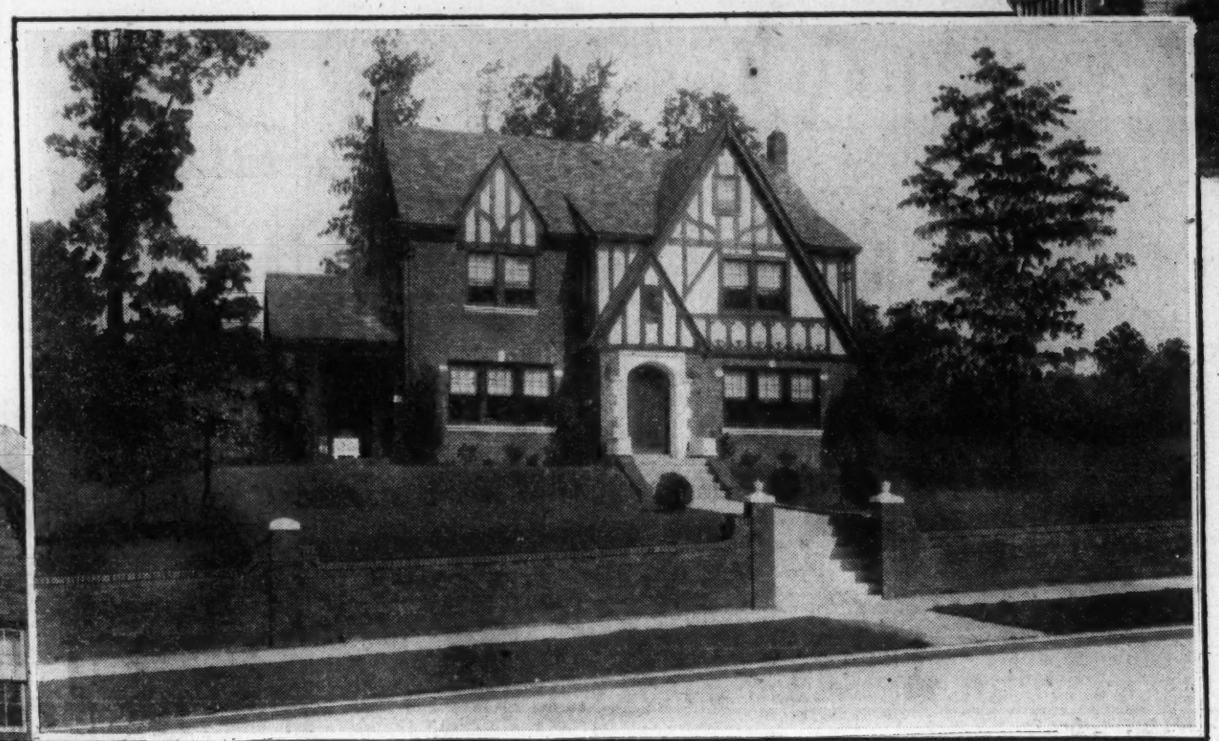
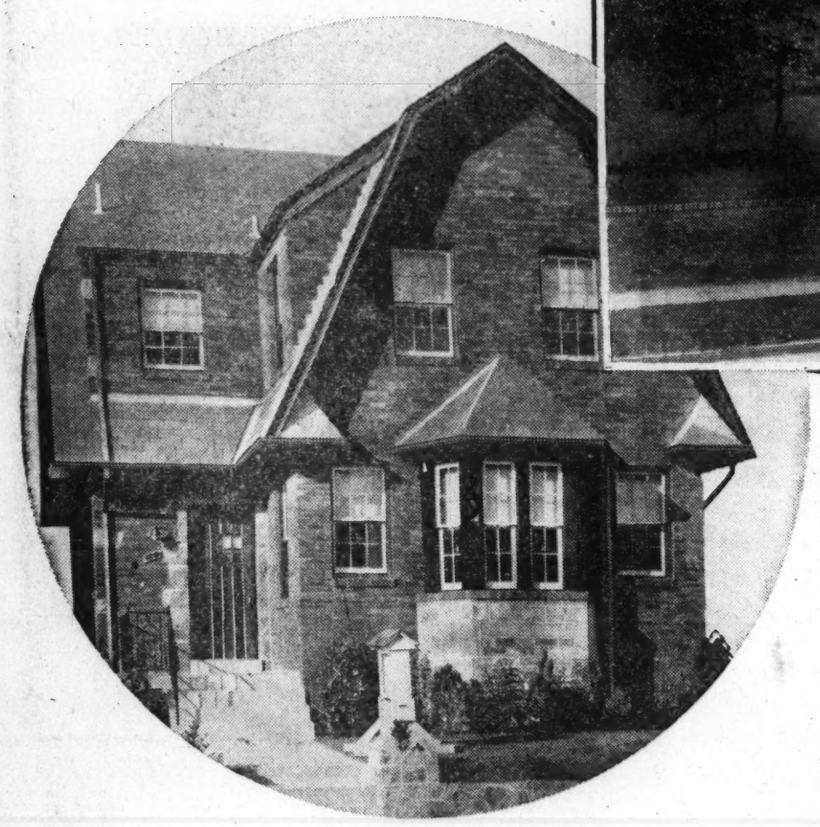
. . . Do YOU? . . . Are you a Washington home owner?

. . . Do you realize the significance of owning 'part of Washington?' . . .

More than one factor besides the necessity of having proper housing facilities played a part in my decision to buy in Washington. . . .

Factors that assure me that my home is an unusually sound investment."





The huge Government office building and park developing program plays its obvious part in the economic welfare of the country's fastest growing city . . . and with its final completion emerges greater WASHINGTON, the most beautiful of world capitals.

Governmental activities requiring a personnel exceeding in numbers the combined employes of many of the country's largest industrial plants—keep Washington employment problems at a minimum.

. . . Money in circulation—to buy necessities, luxuries—HOMES . . . And the demand for Washington HOMES reveals the fact that NOW is the time to BUY—INVEST in a home. Residential properties have seldom been in greater demand. Realtors are now presenting values in homes, both new and old, which are among the best they have ever offered. Apartments are at a premium.

Several hundred real estate dealers are offering to assist you to become an owner of a home in Washington and suburbs.

The assistance they offer consists:

FIRST—In presenting in their advertisements in The Washington Post Sunday Real Estate Section comprehensive descriptions of home and investment properties on their lists.

SECOND—In answering any further inquiries or, by appointment, to take you to see the property which interests you.

THIRD—To arrange for financing on a plan to meet you requirements, if desired.

FOURTH—To attend to all the details of having the title, abstract, deed or other papers properly handled and recorded.

This season, many persons will take this step—to become a partner in the land ownership of Greater Washington.

Some will begin with the purchase of a homesite—or vacant land.

Others will buy a home in the city or suburbs.

All of these real estate buying opportunities can be found by consulting the Real Estate advertisements appearing in The Washington Post.

The Post Classified Columns are, too, a comprehensive guide to worth-while home values offered by leading Washington real estate firms . . . Follow these listings daily. The home you desire may be among them.

D.C. Leaders Leaving for Tokyo Meet

Will Attend Red Cross Conference Opening October 16.

Officials of American Organization Sail Late This Month.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

A number of prominent Washingtonians will leave the Capital this month for the West Coast to sail for Japan, where they will attend the sessions of the fifteenth International Red Cross Conference, which opens in Tokyo on October 16 with a brilliant fete in honor of the delegates, distinguished citizens representing 60 nations

Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, will leave on Sunday for Chicago, whence he will go to San Francisco, and after attending several Red Cross meetings there will sail September 30 aboard the Asama Maru. Miss Mabel Boardman, secretary of the American Red Cross, will go to Los Angeles on September 25 or 26, and will speak at Red Cross meetings in that city before sailing for Japan on October 6

Mrs. John Allen Dougherty, who is to be one of the American delegates, has already left Washington and is en route to Tokyo. Mrs. Norman E. Mack, another delegate, is going to Japan via Europe. With Mrs. Mack is her daughter, Mrs. Norma Mack Metz, of Buffalo.

Mrs. Beale to Go.

Mrs. Truxtun Beale, still another delegate from Washington, will accompany Mr and Mrs. Eliot Wadsworth, of Boston, on the trip, and with them will sail from Vancouver the end of this month

The president of Georgetown University, the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., is also preparing to leave to attend the conference. Father Nevils will leave Washington on Friday afternoon following the opening of the university, and will stop in Chicago. He will go from there to Kansas City and thence to Los Angeles and San Francisco. On September 29 Father Nevils will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given by the alumni of the University of San Francisco, the University of Santa Clara, both Jesuit colleges, and the alumni of Georgetown who are living in San Francisco.

The following day he will join Judge Payne and together they will sail aboard the Asama Maru. The ship will stop for one day in Honolulu, where Judge Payne and Father Nevils will be entertained at luncheon by the former Ambassador to Japan, Mr. William R. Castle, jr., at his home there. Mr. and Mrs. Castle have been spending the summer at Hot Springs, Va., and will leave shortly for Hawaii to be there when the visitors arrive.

Due in Japan October 14.

The Asama Maru will arrive in Japan on October 14, the landing having been set ahead three days so that the delegates to the conference who are aboard may attend the large reception to be given that day by the Empress of Japan in their honor.

At the close of the conference Father Nevils will go to China, where he will visit in several places, and will return to Washington about December 1. His time as rector of Georgetown, which expired last month, has been extended until after the first of the new year, and there is hope that the period of his presidency may again be extended.

Commander and Mrs. Paulus P. Powell, whose marriage took place last spring in Washington, where the former was then stationed, and where Mrs. Powell, then Miss Evelyn Paton was working with the Red Cross as secretary to Miss Boardman, are now in Shanghai. Mrs. Powell has been appointed a delegate to the conference and will go to Tokyo, where she will meet many of her former associates.

Swifts Going to Tokyo.

En route to Japan are two more Washingtonians, or rather former Capitalites, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swift, of Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Swift, the latter formerly Miss Helen Griffin, made their home in Georgetown until two years ago, when the former was transferred from his work at the Red Cross here to Paris, where he is now secretary general of the League of Red Cross Societies in France.

They spent several days in the Capital last week with Mrs. Swift's mother, Mrs. Griffin, widow of Rear Admiral Griffin, and since it was the first visit they had paid to Washington in two years, their friends entertained for them morning, noon and night, until they left for the West Coast.

Others from near Washington who are going to the conference are Mrs. Catherine Fox Bowman, of Warrenton, Va.; Col. Henry Jewett Turber and Mrs. Frank J. Ehlers and Miss Frances Jay, of Silver Spring, Md.

Miss Elsie Colvin Weds Tomorrow

Will Become the Bride of Mr. William Herbert.

An early fall wedding of interest this week will be that of Miss Elsie Colvin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Colvin, and Mr. William Herbert, both of Washington.

The ceremony will be performed at the Marvin M. E. Church South, tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Marjorie Miner, of Takoma Park, will be the maid of honor, and Mr. Frank Saltzman, of Washington, will be best man.

The bride is being entertained this week at a number of pre-nuptial showers and parties.

After a short wedding trip following the ceremony the couple will make their home in Seat Pleasant, Md.

To Be Presented to Capital Society

Hessler-Henderson, Inc.

MISS MARY ELLEN CORBY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl W. Corby, who will be presented to society at a large tea on Sunday, December 2, in their home on Edson lane, on the Rockville pike. On Tuesday, January 1, Mr. and Mrs. Corby will give a small dance in honor of their daughter at the Mayflower.

Capital Matron Going Abroad With Children

Mrs. Jean Delattre-Seguy Is Taking Daughters to France.

Members of Capital society, as a rule, are a very joyous lot, but they have their regrets more frequently perhaps than any other people in this country, for the residents come and go so rapidly that as soon as attachments and friendships are firmly made off they go to some other country. The only consolation is that sooner or later everybdy returns to Washington again.

This time it is the younger set of society that is to be regretful because one of the very popular young couples is about to break up their household and depart for foreign shores. Mr. and Mrs. Jean Delattre-Seguy, who have one of the most charming of the old places in Georgetown, were sadly missed last spring when they spent three months visiting the former's native land, France, and they have hardly been back in the midst of things when they have decided to return to Europe, this time for more than a year.

For Daughters' Sake.

Mr. Delattre-Seguy will not be away from Washington for the whole of that time, however; so news of Mrs. Delattre-Seguy will be more attainable while she is so far away. Having decided that her three young daughters, Yzette, Nicole and Claire, who are half French, should really learn the language of their father's country as it should be known, Mrs. Delattre-Seguy will sail on October 3 from Baltimore on the City of Hamburg, with her little family. Mr. Delattre-Seguy will remain in Washington, where his clever wife is arranging a charming apartment for him in Georgetown, and will join his family for Christmas

Mr. and Mrs. Delattre-Seguy have been most fortunate in renting their house, sight-unseen, to Mrs. Russell Lord, of Lake Forest, Ill., who is planning to spend the winter in Washington. Mrs. Lord is at present on the high seas, homeward bound from Europe, and will arrive in New York aboard the Washington tomorrow. She will come to Washington next week to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Grainger at their home on O street, in Georgetown, before taking possession of the house on October 1. Mr. and Mrs. Delattre-Seguy will entertain at a large party for Mrs. Lord on September 30, when she will see for the first time the house where she is to make her home for the season.

Taking Another Abroad.

With Mrs. Delattre-Seguy will go a fourth little girl, Jacqueline Dentadour, daughter of Mr. and Mme. Jacques Dentadour, of Paris. Jacqueline has been visiting her grandmother in New Orleans, where her mother, the former Fanny Craig, spent her girlhood, and is now returning to join her parents. Mme. Dentadour left her New Orleans home some 12 years ago to study art in the French capital, and there met and married M. Dentadour.

Returning from Europe early last summer on the ship with Mr. and Mrs. Delattre-Seguy were the conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra and Mrs. Hans Kindler, and in the course of the journey Mrs. Delattre-Seguy spoke of her plans to spend a year in France with her children. The only problem was where to live, near Paris, but not in the city. The outcome of the conversation was the leasing of the Kindler home at Senlis, about an hour's drive from Paris, near Chantilly.

There they will settle down, the children with their tutors, and Mrs. Delattre-Seguy surrounded by all the charm of life in France, near, but not in Paris.

Mrs. Arthur D. Hawkins, of Fort Hoyle, Md., wife of Major Hawkins, and Miss Blink Thomas, daughter of Col. and Mrs. C. O. Thomas, of Chicago, are at the Shoreham for a few days. Miss Thomas had been Mrs. Hawkins' guest at Fort Hoyle.

NOTES OF SOCIETY

Official and Resident

The Ambassador of Germany, Dr. Hans Luther, will return to Washington today from Falmouth, Mass., where he has been for the last month. The Ambassador will be joined the end of the week by his daughters, Fraulein Gertraud and Fraulein Eva Marie who with Frau Koerner, wife of Prof. Koerner, have been with him at the resort since their return from Europe earlier in the summer.

The wedding of Fraulein Gertraud to the secretary of the embassy, Herr Gerrit von Haeften, will take place in Washington next month,

The Minister of Portugal and Mme. de Bianchi will return to Washington the first week in October from Salter's Point, Mass., where they have spent the summer.

Judge and Mrs. Amos L. Beaty, who spent a few days at the Shoreham following their return on the Isle de France from an extended trip through Europe, are established in their new home which they have leased for the winter at 2424 Wyoming avenue, in this city. While in London, Mrs. Beaty purchased two prize-winning Persian cats, which she has brought to Washington.

Mrs. George Wathens Returns to Capital.

Mrs. George C. Wathens, who spent the summer in Europe, has returned to her apartment in the Westchester.

Col. and Mrs. James Bruce Bentley, of Laurel, Md., will present their daughter, Miss Mary Katharine Bentley, to Washington society this winter.

Miss Ruth Dove has joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Dove, at the Carlton, after spending a week with her cousins, the Misses Martha and Harriett Parker, at Queenstown, Md. Miss Dove is attending St. Agnes School this season.

Warren R. Smiths Move to New Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Richardson Smith have moved into their new home at 110 Forest lane, Country Club Grove, Va. Mrs. Smith, who is known professionally as Frances Gutelius, has leased a charming house at 1411 Twentieth street for her piano studios.

Mrs. James Ellwood Jones, of Washington, is at the Weylin Hotel in New York.

Mrs. James B. Leedom and Miss Betty Leedom, of River Hills, Wis., and Mrs. Theodore F. Vogel and Miss Jane Vogel, of Milwaukee, Wis., are at the Shoreham for a short visit before going to Richmond, Va., where Miss Leedom and Miss Vogel will enter St. Catherines School.

Katharine Wilfley In Y. W. C. A. Post

Miss Katharine Wilfley, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Earle Wilfley, has gone to Wilmington, N. C., to become general secretary of the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Wilfley was formerly a Y. W. C. A. secretary in New Castle, Pa.; Pittsburgh and Cleveland, but six years ago returned to Washington to be assistant to her father, who was then pastor of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church, which in 1930 became the National City Christian Church.

Polish Official Is Entertained By Mr. Patek

Ambassador Fetes Mr. and Mrs. Bobkowska, Visiting Here.

The Ambassador of Poland, Mr. Stanislaw Patek, entertained at luncheon yesterday in the embassy in honor of the Vice Minister of Communications for Air of Poland and Mme. Bobkowska. Mr. and Mme. Bobkowska are visiting the latter's brother and sister-in-law, the Secretary of the Embassy and Mme. Moscicka, while in Washington. Mme. Bobkowska is the only daughter of the President of Poland, Mr. Ignace Moscicki.

On Monday evening the Chancellor of the Embassy and Mme. Poradzewska entertained at a dinner in honor of the visitors when their guests were the Counselor of the Embassy and Mme. Sokolokska, the Secretary and Mme. Moscicka, Mme. Orilcz Dreszer, wife of the Inspector General of the Polish Army, who is visiting in the Capital; Dr. Walter Bloedorn and other members of the embassy staff.

Mr. and Mme. Moscicka entertained at luncheon for their guests on Monday, and this evening will give a dinner in their honor.

Tomorrow, Mr. and Mme. Moscicka, with the Vice Minister and Mme. Bobkowska, will go to Hot Springs, Va., to spend a day, and on Friday the ambassador, accompanied by Vice Minister and Mme. Bobkowska, and Mr. and Mme. Moscicka, will go to Atlantic City for the week-end.

The ambassador will remain longer, but the other members of the party will go to New York Monday for a few days and thence to Newport. They will sail on September 26 for Europe, and Mr. and Mme. Moscicka will return to Washington immediately after their guests sail.

Mrs. Alfred J. Talley, jr., and her daughter, Miss Lourdes Talley, have come from their home at Monmouth Beach, N. J., and are spending several days at the Shoreham.

Egyptian Envoy To Be Here Soon

Ibrahim Ratib Bey Due at New York Friday.

Coincident with the visit in Washington of the United States Minister to Egypt, Mr. Bert E. Fish, is the arrival on Friday of the new Minister of Egypt, Ibrahim Ratib Bey.

Mr. Fish has been in the Capital for several days conferring with the State Department and renewing the many friendships he has here.

The Charge d'Affaires of Egypt, Nicholas Khalil Bey, will go to New York tomorrow to meet the new minister, who will arrive Friday aboard the Berengaria, accompanied by his wife and young daughter. They will come direct to Washington and take up their residence in the legation in Sheridan Circle.

Miss Tuckerman Weds Mr. Haines

Ceremony Takes Place in Old Greenwich.

The marriage of Miss Frances Tuckerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Tuckerman, of Washington and Santa Barbara, Calif., to Mr. William Wister Haines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Diedrich Jansen Haines, of Philadelphia, took place on Monday at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Gherardi, jr., in Old Greenwich, Conn., in the presence of the immediate families.

The bridal couple left immediately after the ceremony for Santa Barbara, where they will visit the bride's parents. Later they will reside in Philadelphia.

The engagement of Miss Tuckerman, who is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, of Washington, and Mr. Haines was announced last week, and the weddidng was planned for a later date in the autumn; so the news of the marriage comes as a surprise to the many friends of the bride in the Capital.

Mrs. Rapley Returns To Apartment Here

Mrs. W. H. Rapley has returned to her apartment at the Shoreham after passing three months at her summer home at Spofford Lake, N. H. Mrs. Rapley's place adjoins that of Mme. Antoinette Cherri, whom Mrs. Rapley is expecting to visit her in Washington later this season.

Before coming to Washington Mrs. Rapley spent a week in New York.

Shenandoah Pickers Busy Harvesting Fall Apple Crop

By Elisabeth E. Poe.

IT IS apple picking time in the Shenandoah Valley. Thousands of acres of orchards, in spring lovely with white and pink blossoms, now make a picture of red and yellow fruit, gleaming from among leaves not yet touched by the magic colors of autumn.

In a short time epicures in Buenos Aires, Tokyo, Peiping, London, Paris and Moscow will be tasting the delicious meat of the Virginia apple. For this fruit of the Virginias follows the apple lover around the world. The exporting of American apples is third in size among what might be called agricultural products, in the following succession: Wheat, cotton and apples. It is the biggest industry of the Shenandoah Valley. And in this industry women play a leading role, not only as owners and managers of orchards, but as pickers and packers as well.

To Dr. Augustus P. Thomson, pioneer orchardist, of Summit Point, W. Va., is due the development of the apple industry in that part of the country. For years Dr. Thomson advocated the planting of apple orchards in the valley and proved his faith in his own theories by planting his own orchards at Hawthron, the plantation that had been in his family for several hundred years.

Valley Awakens.

Dr. Thomson, one of the immortal cadets from the Virginia Military Institute, who followed Stonewall Jackson to the battlefield of Newmarket, died 13 years ago after his apple plans had reached partial fruition and the Valley was awakening to the opportunity that apples were bringing to all.

Dr. Thomson held that women could handle a business as well as men. So his daughter, Miss Imogene Thomson, a graduate of the National Cathedral School here, took up the apple business where he left it, assisted by her sisters, Mrs. Washington Grove and Miss Mary Scott Thomson.

What happened then was graphically told by Miss Imogene Thomson recently while driving by the fruit-laden orchards, silent witnesses to her success, and the huge packing houses by the railroad track where the crop of 10,000 to 12,000 barrels of apples would start their journey to distant markets within the next two weeks.

"I do not know anything that has more future in it for women than apple raising," said Miss Thomson. "But a woman to be successful in this field must be practical and develop as much common sense as possible. In the 13 years I have been in the business I have enjoyed every moment of it, but have had to work hard.

"One of my first lessons came shortly after I took hold, when a strike developed among the pickers. I called them together and spoke to them. I was badly frightened but they did not know it. I told them we must have happiness and contentment among our pickers and that any who did not wish to share this feeling had better leave at once. They all stayed except the instigator of the strike. That is the only labor trouble I ever had.

"While we must work hardest during the big harvest, yet we are kept busy the year around improving, pruning and keeping the orchards up to standard."

Miss Thomson said, while the Hon. Harry Byrd, brother of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, may be United States Senator from Virginia in Washington, in the Shenandoah Valley he is king of the apple growers. The Senator is the largest apple grower in the world, having 3,000 acres of orchard. He has done a great deal for the industry and always has time to help the smallest grower. Every year he holds a picnic on his beautiful estate for the apple growers of the valley.

Recipes from an Expert.

Miss Thomson gave several unusual apple recipes that had been used in her family for several generations. One called "Rice with Apples," she outlined as follows:

Take 1 cup of rice, boil it as usual. Then pare 3 sound, hard apples into quarters and remove the cores. Cook 2-3 of a cup of sugar, ½ cup of water and 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice for eight minutes or until slightly sirupy. Add apple slices, cook slowly, turning occasionally until tender and sirupy. When ready to serve, place rice in mound in center of hot dish, arrange apple slices around rice. If there is any sirup, pour it over rice.

"Another apple dish always welcomed at our table," continued Miss Thomson, "is what we call 'Marie Antoinette Apples.' To make it, you pare 5 medium-size apples into quarters, removing the cores. Then place them in a shallow pan, cover with 1-3 of a cup of seedless raisins, sprinkle with ½ cup of brown sugar and ⅛ of a teaspoonful of cinnamon, then cut 1 tablespoonful of butter over the top. Then pour 1-3 of a cup of cold water over all. The apples should be baked in a moderate oven until they are tender and the sirup in thick. Then turn them bottom-side up on a serving dish. They can be served as either a compote or a dessert."

Other apple recipe favorites in the Thomson household are:

Apple and Swiss Cheese Salad.

Remove the core from a carefully washed, unpeeled apple, and cut it into eight sections. Place four sections in a ring on nests of lettuce for each serving. Then put a half-slice of Swiss cheese in the center of the nest. It should be served with French dressing.

Apple Peeling Jelly.

Save the peelings when using apples for cooking and also the cores. Wash them and place them in a pan barely covering them with cold water. Cook, not too fast, until peelings are soft, but not mushy, and water is cooked down to 1-3 quantity. Then pour into bag, and let it drip like other jelly. Measure liquid, add ¾ cup of sugar for each cup of liquid. And the strained juice of 1 orange and 1 lemon for each quart of the apple juice should also be added. Heat the fruit juices together, then add sugar, stir until well mixed. Cook rapidly without stirring until thick enough to jell.

Apple Dressing.

Take 3 medium size hard apples, peel into quarters, add 1 cup of cold water to it, cover the saucepan until the apples are heated through. Then take off the top cook until the apples are soft, but not broken. Put aside the liquid to keep it hot. Then mix ½ cup of rolled bread crumbs and ½ cup of finely-rolled crackers together and add them to ¼ of a cup of melted butter. Then stir in the apples, ½ teaspoon of salt and a dash of pepper. Use hot apple juice liquid to make the mixture moist, but not wet. This dressing is ideal for use with either roast duck or goose.

Apple Fritters.

Peel 2 large mellow apples into round slices. Then beat 2 eggs lightly, add ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon of sugar to 2 cups of sifted flour and 2-3 of a cup of milk. This should be well mixed and at the end put in 3 teaspoons of baking powder, again mixing well.

Drop apple slices in batter, taking up each piece separately with a fork after seeing that it has been well covered.

PILLAR TO POST

A Newspaper Baby Holds an "At Home" for the First Lady.

RUBY BLACK and Herb Little, the married pair who go their separate ways, journalistically speaking, have recently returned from a seven weeks' vacation spent at the Roosevelt summer home on Campobello Island.

The keys to this "cottage" of 'steen rooms were turned over to Ruby by Mrs. Roosevelt, who was anxious that their baby Jane would have a proper place to wade and dig in the sand. This summer home was given the President and his bride by his mother, and it is next door to Mrs. James Roosevelt's place. Ruby closed off the two large wings and used just the center part of the house for herself, husband, child and two servants.

* * * *

It was at a paper conference early in the Administration that Ruby disclosed she had a small baby. A discussion of child welfare brought up the subject. Mrs. Roosevelt expressed a desire to see the child and Ruby politely invited her to Alexandria to see the baby, never dreaming the invitation would be taken seriously.

* * * *

"I'll call you some time," said Mrs. Roosevelt, and Ruby dismissed it from her mind, thinking the busy wife of the President could hardly be expected to keep this promise.

But the telephone rang the next Sunday. It was Mrs. Roosevelt on the wire to say she was motoring down to Alexandria and would drop in presently to see the baby. Naturally there was much "to do" in the Black-Little household, with everybody rushing around tidying things and dressing the baby in her best. Mrs. Roosevelt stayed for an hour, apparently enjoying the baby hugely.

Jane is now a little over 2 years old and is a cherub, if there ever was one, with golden curls all over her head and great pansy eyes.

Ad-Mans Invite.

Frank J. Luchs thinks in advertising terms, so engrossed is he in his job of arranging attractive displays for his father's real estate firm. He worded the invitations for the stag party given recently in honor of his twenty-first birthday. The cards had a tree on each side, a feature of all the Shannon & Luchs ads.

The invitations read: "You are invited to the subdivision Luxmanor (his family's summer home) for supper and a drinking bout, to celebrate a major development. Model Home open from 7 p. m."

Boisterous Seventh Street Pursues Its Rowdy Life

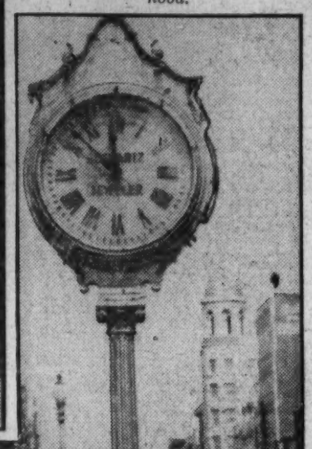
The palmist who foretells the future joys and sorrows of the inhabitants of Seventh street lives next door to the creditor who sells them clothes on the easy payment plan. Magic and creditors alike are part of the daily routine in this neighborhood.



Up and Down the Pavements One Finds Drabness, Yet Glamour.

City streets are like human beings. They are youthful and vital. They decline and die. This is the first of three personality sketches of Washington streets.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

AN IMPUDENT ragamuffin whose tatters are worn like banners is Washington's Seventh street.

Unabashed by the finery of neighboring avenues, which are serene and aloof and proud of the classic beauty of the buildings that line them, is this street. For it is alive in a way they can never be. It is like a person who has lived long and grown weary from suffering and laughter, but who retains an indefinable quality of youth.

A place of contrast and wonder and fascination is this street. On either side of the smart department stores where ladies alight from their limousines and imperiously order chauffeurs to wait, are small shambling buildings. Before the stores themselves stand dreary human beings, whose drabness is lightened by the same gay courage that characterizes the street.

Not more than 50 years ago, old timers tell us, Seventh street was lined with fashionable young ladies' boarding schools. Here the swains of the day waited to take the girls out riding, well chaperoned, of course. And they drove them in carriages, pulled by horses who ploughed their way through muddy streets. There were taverns on Seventh street in those days, too, where men gathered to drink beer and talk. There was a volunteer fire station, where young blades gathered and held friendly meetings. Often these "hoodlums," as James Duhamel, famous old timer, calls them, set fire to a building just to have the opportunity to hitch the horse to the fire wagon.

In the Heat of the Day.

But that glamorous yesterday has given way to the more prosaic today. And today families live above the frame stores on Seventh street. On hot summer days the women descend the stairs that lead to the street and sit in chairs on the sidewalks. They mind their children who play in the streets. They call to each other in friendly fashion. They push baby carriages gently back and forth with their feet. Some of them read.

Shoppers don't have to go into the stores to see the goods on Seventh street. The clothes are hung out over the doorways "to air," grins one shopkeeper. They act as a curtain, hiding the dingy small stores behind them. The prices are written in bold red letter on bright yellow cards and pinned onto the clothes.

"A classy new suit for $1.95," announces one sign. "Classy hats to go with classy outfits," announces another. Battered furniture is piled in front of second-hand stores. The store keepers sit in chairs and keep watchful eyes on their wares. Their wives stand near them. They call to the passers-by.

"Come in and see the nice new clothes. Fine new clothes, one dollar." Women pass by with market baskets on their arms. They pause and look and smile, and pass the time of day. But they do not buy.

The merchants are patient, resigned. They nod their heads in answer to questions, or answer in broken English.

"Yes, nice street, busy street," agrees a bearded old man. "Don't know if I like it or not. What does it matter? I have to stay anyway."

Magazines and Bananas.

Small boys cry their magazines. They run up and catch pedestrians by their sleeves. "Buy your new confession story magazine!" they urge. "New confession magazines just out! Come on and get them!" Sometimes painted young women stop and buy, give the boys silver, say generously, "Keep the change."

A Greek woman, surrounded by her children, sells bananas from a cart.

"Business not so good," she sighs. "Business not so good, and I need much money. All my children I send to two schools, Greek schools and American schools. They learn English, they learn Greek. I need much money." But she smiles as she turns to the next prospect.

An incredibly old, unbelievably dull-gray man, whose ashen lips reveal rows of darker gray teeth when he smiles, stands on one corner. With one hand he supports a battered camera, which sways on three wavering legs. Festooned around the camera are its offspring, pictures of human beings, so distorted it is impossible to tell if the subjects are old or young, white or tinted.

But to the old photographer they are beautiful. And in some magic manner his belief in them makes them beautiful.

Only 5 Cents, Lady.

"Take your picture, lady? Only 5 cents. Let me take your picture, lady. Just sit here on the steps. Ah, that is good. Just a minute, lady. I put the picture in a little box. In a minute the picture come. There! Is it not beautiful? For 37 year I take pictures here. They are all so beautiful. Five cents, please. Thank you." He pockets his change, and turns away.

"All the latest song hits," chants a slim boy, who waves a yellow sheet of paper like a flag. "All the latest song hits right here. All for 10 cents. All the latest song hits."

As it grows dark lights flare up on Seventh street. A motion-picture house announces in garish red letters: "The biggest show in town. Three full-length features. Comedies and news reels. All the biggest pictures. Only 15 cents."

Ferocious forceps are outlined in electric lights pulling a decayed molar.

"Dr. Blank, Painless Dentist," screams the sign. "Plates Repaired While You Wait."

Life in the Dusk.

When it is dusk and the street lights are turned on, Seventh street does not rest. The little shops stay open, the patient shopkeepers sit in front and call their wares. Young girls in cheap finery parade the street, arm in arm. Sometimes a young man who wear "classy" sportswear and flashes a synthetic diamond, approaches one of them.

"Hello, baby," he grins, and takes her by the arm. They walk up the streeet, chewing gum in unison.

The big department stores are dark, but the billiard rooms are just opening up for the night's business.

"Sweet papa, come on in," their signs beckon. A cluster of men stand outside. They laugh lustily. Their laughter mingles with women's voices, a baby's cry. Harsh, yet musical, the voices tell of the life of the street.

Down by the Seventh street wharves there are fewer people, and they sit silently. Their cigarettes make little fires glowing in the dark.

Oh yes, Seventh street is an impudent ragamuffin, a ragamuffin with dirty clothes, a tear-streaked, laughing face and a glowing warmth of heart.

Brushing and Massaging Pave the Way to Lovely Hair

No matter how old or young a woman may be, her hair should be her crowning glory. The following is the third in a series of interviews with local hair dressers who discuss hair problems.

By Frances Mangum.

IN THE fall of the year hair literally cries for attention. Sun, surf and sand have played havoc with it during the summer, and now it must be coaxed back to normalcy.

According to Miss Gertrude Murray, whose intensive knowledge of hair and scalp problems has made her a valuable assistant to the Ogilvie Sisters at their salon, 1120 Connecticut avenue, there are three primary steps to hair care—brushing, massaging and cleansing.

"The importance of a 5-minute brushing every day can not be overemphasized," she said yesterday. "Providing, of course, the brushing be of the proper kind.

"In the first place," she continued, "the hair should always be brushed up, away from the scalp. The brush should have long flexible bristles that catch the hair and tug at it, while at the same time they are taking away the dirt and dust which might have collected there. After every 10 or 12 strokes the brush should be wiped off with a towel.

"This kind of brushing," she continued, "is one factor in cleansing. The other is shampooing. There are so many different viewpoints at large on this subject it is small wonder many a woman do not know how or when to shampoo their hair. As a matter of fact, once a month is sufficient. You see frequent shampoos remove the natural oil from the hair quicker than the glands can supply it. Some women with oily hair might question this, the majority of women have very dry scalps and they must allow the oil time to spread here."

Miss Murray issued a word of warning about the massage.

"A good massage is a very good thing, but a poor massage a bad one," she declared. "You see a mere scraping of the scalp is irritating. The purpose of the massage is to stimulate circulation.

Miss Murray, who has handled an assortment of hair and scalp troubles, declared many of them came from dyes.

"A woman who knows practically nothing about coloring her hair will purchase a dye which sounds fine. Then without the proper equipment she wil put it on. Sometimes the dye is too strong and chemically unsuited to her hair. Sometimes the job is so ill done that her hair is ludicrously streaked. A dyeing job should always be done by experts with tested coloring matter," declared Miss Murray.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I don't suppose there is a thing in the world you can say or do to help me, but I have to discuss my problem with some one who will sympathize and won't laugh. And I notice you always treat everyone's case with seriousness.

* * * *

I am a girl of 17, and I am 5 feet 10½ inches tall. I have been taller than any of my girl friends and most of the boys my own age since I was 13. It has made my life miserable. I am so self-conscious life is hardly worth living.

Boys never ask me for dates. I know it's because they think they would be laughed at if seen with me. And besides I can't forget myself long enough to act light-hearted and careless like other girls do.

Did you ever hear of such a problem? If you were in my place, what would you do?

BEAN POLE.

* * * *

Capitalize Height.

DEAR BEAN POLE: Do what the beauty specialists are constantly urging women to do. Capitalize your handicap until it becomes your strong point. Throw your head up and your shoulders back. Develop perfect posture; cultivate a graceful walk.

* * * *

Study your figure needs until you know to a nicety just what styles do the most for you. Whether high, low or natural waistline throws your long lines into perfect proportion; what the length of your skirt should be; what neckline and shoulder lines are most becoming. If possible, talk with a stylist, but don't accept any of her dictums as final.

* * * *

Don't droop forward in a mistaken effort to disguise your height. Don't shrink, mentally or physically. Just tell yourself—and know it for the truth—that by the time you are 20, and all your contemporaries as well as yourself are full grown, that you are going to be one of the most strikingly attractive girls in the lot. It will be the truth if you use your intelligence to make it the truth.

* * * *

Nature has given you all the material you need for making yourself strikingly distinctive and distinguished in appearance. No type of womanhood is more magnetically compelling than the girl who is tall, superbly poised, vitally healthy, and who shows by her regal carriage that she is entirely pleased with the inches God gave her.

* * * *

Don't worry about the boys. Strict attention to developing your latent possibilities in looks and personality will turn the tables on them. If they avoid you now because of your height, you can disdain them in future for their lack of it.

Let it be known that you wouldn't consider numbering among your beaux a boy who wasn't at least 6 feet tall. There are plenty. And if you bring your looks up to maximum there will be plenty soliciting the pleasure of your company. One of the most beautiful girls I've ever known, who was equally as tall as you, married a handsome young man even taller just because she stuck stubbornly to an agreement with herself never to make a social engagement with a man who was not at least 6 feet tall. And that's a true story, so help me. M. H.

Spiritual Side Of Life Gains By Drought

Ordeal Draws Neighbors Together; Magnifies Public Affairs.

THE suffering and privation endured by residents of the drought area have but served to sharpen their spiritual and intellectual appetites. Women of the sun-parched Middle Western States are more solicitous of the needs of their neighbors, more ingeniously public spirited, and more intensely interested in government than before.

Political conventions are "packed to the rafters," and speakers on educational phases of government draw capacity crowds without half trying. These and other observations high-lighted the seven weeks' trip of Mrs. June Fickel, assistant director of women's work, Democratic National committee, who returned to Washington recently.

Intending to be gone away three weeks, Mrs. Fickel was besieged by women's farm groups, civic clubs and other organizations until she extended her stay four more weeks, and averaged two public speeches a day. In spite of the disaster afflicting their area, Mrs. Fickel said she found general optimism and good cheer among the residents.

Following on the oratorical heels of Mrs. William Langer, on her tour through North Dakota, Mrs. Fickel listened to several of the talks of the feminine candidate for governor. She describes her as "small, slight, pretty and very feminine."

"Her speeches are full of references to her home life," said Mrs. Fickel. "She points out that she understands her four children better than she does the intricacies of government, but is willing to sacrifice her home-loving inclinations to serve the State. Her talks are punctuated with feminine mannerisms, although she doesn't flinch when she refers to the probability of her husband's going to the penitentiary."

One of the most inspiring women personalities Mrs. Fickel met on her Midwestern tour was Mrs. Alex Miller, secretary of State in Iowa, who has already served one term of office and is now a candidate for reelection. This energetic official is said to have reduced the expenditures of her office about $180,000 during the last year and a half.

Through the Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa, according to Mrs. Fickel, the women are taking the lead in politics, proving their ability and grasp of the fundamentals of government. There are numerous women candidates for the State Legislatures, and everywhere women's clubs have included study of government on their official programs.

"Political lines seem to have disappeared," she said. "It is no longer a case of Democrat and Republican but whether to accept or reject the various phases of the recovery program. Women are taking an exceptionally constructive attitude toward politics."

Good Lighting Keeps Bright Eyes Bright

By Ruth Anne Davis.

JUST how long the eyes retain their bright expressiveness depends largely on the care given them. The child who is allowed to read by a dim overhead light, the man or woman who is content to do with the questionable glare of just any lamp are hardly taking steps conducive to good eyesight—or attractive eyes.

Endeavoring to give to the reading public a light to make reading easier and reduce eyestrain, the Illuminating Engineering Society drew up specifications for a lamp which they hoped might be sold at such a nominal price no budget could say it nay.

Its fondest hopes were realized when a manufacturer interested himself in the idea and turned his efforts toward producing just such a light.

The lamp, of course, has been varied to suit many types of homes. It comes in either a table size, or floor size, so it may grace a student's desk as well as stand on its own by a bridge table.

Most of the lamps have a bronze finish plus parchment shades.

Party Ornaments for Rent.

A unique service has arisen to meet the need of fancy party givers. The manager of a local shop said dozens of customers inquired where they could rent a decorative imitation wedding bell, a dummy stork, and all kinds of such things to use at showers and bridal parties. An enterprising young lady in the store got busy with much crepe paper, wire, cellophane and the like, and now there's a whole showcase filled with the loveliest party ornaments imaginable. They may be rented for a very reasonable sum.

The coy stork is a work of wonder. His feathers may be paper, and his beak wooden, but he looks most engagingly real. Hundreds and hundreds of feet of silver paper must have gone into the making of a pair of silver slippers, size number 85D. A large watering pot has cellophane water pouring from its spout and a crepe paper wedding bell does everything but ring.

Pore Excavation.

Many visitors at the World Fair were interested in the exhibit of a modern cosmetic concern, which based its claim to be there on the fact it embodied so many vitalizing elements of the sun's rays in its preparations.

These visitors and hundreds of others have followed eagerly the forward steps taken by this concern. Quite recently it came out with a new blackhead preparation, said to take soundings in the pores with a very penetrating cleanser which literally digs out the dirt and grime imbedded there. The pores relieved of their burden, shrink to normal size.

The preparation consists of a liquid and a powder. A little of the powder is made into a past with the liquid and is then smeared over the face. If the skin is dry it is only allowed to remain on for four minutes. If the skin is oily, 30 minutes is the limit. Then it is washed off with clear water. Simple, and effective.

Soap From Wonderland.

Children who have fallen with Alice down the rabbit's hole and accompanied her through Wonderland are jubilant over the Alice in Wonderland soap, made in the shape of many of Wonderland's most respected denizens. The delicately cut cakes are made of fine olive oil, and inclosed in a bookshape box inscribed with:

The time has come, the Walrus said
To talk of many things:
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax
And cabbages and kings,
And why the sea is boiling hot,
And whether pigs have wings.

Mustache Wax for Eyelashes.

Although mustaches are still jeered with opprobrium by the majority of women, mustache wax is back with a boom. It seems that feminine shoppers, always on the look out for one more beautifier, have found that it makes an ideal eyelash darkener. Just the tiniest bit rubbed on with the finger or a small brush will make them stand out and appear to be inches longer than they are actually.

It comes in little tubes, 35 cents each, in dark and light.

Artistry in Bottles.

The ancient Egyptians who prided themselves on the exquisite workmanship of toiletries have nothing on the moderns. Perfume bottles on display in a downtown store prove that.

Such little gems they are! Some of them in pastel cut glass, others of crystal, and still others in black. Hold up to the light they sparkle like jewels. The tops in many cases are cut in the shape of open peacock fans. Some are square and solid. It is hard to say just which one amplifies the greatest artistry.

Best news of all—they're only a dollar.

Whether They're High or Low, Oxfords Are Smart for Fall

They Are All Neat and Trim, but Some Have Higher Heels for Afternoon and Others Are Sturdy, to Wear With Tailored Suits.

By Amos Parrish

NEW YORK, Sept 18.—Some like it high and some like it low. But almost every woman likes the oxford one way or the other. For its neat, trim lines. For its graceful molding of the foot. For its comfortable support. And for its pleasant harmony with any kind of daytime costume from the tailored suit to the soft afternoon dress

And a good type to wear with that most tailored of tailored costumes, the suit, is the one shown at the center in the illustration.

One-Leather

It's just about as simple and tailored as an oxford can be. Made of just one leather, instead of the two-leather combination you might choose to wear with a costume which is tailored but not as strictly so as the suit It has neat lines of perforations which follow the outlines of the shoe

This is a medium high oxford (three pairs of eyelets, you notice), but many oxfords of this simple type are cut lower (with only two pairs of eyelets).

Once you'd never have thought of buying a pair of oxfords to wear with your bridge dress. But now it's almost as a matter of course that you say to your shoe salesman, "A pair of dressy oxfords, please."

Because oxfords don't have to be heavy. They are made with just as daintily designed heels and as light soles as any other shoe. Yet their firm grip over the instep gives the foot worlds of comfort.

Shaped Heels

Compare the heels of the two other oxfords illustrated with that of the center one and you can see one difference between the tailored and the dressy oxford. The heel of the dressy one is shaped just a bit more than that of the tailored shoe and its base is a bit smaller.

And in these two dressy oxfords you have the extreme of the high and low fashion for fall The one at the bottom you see has only two pairs of eyelets while the one at the top has seven pairs.

Both of them are fine examples of the simple trimming dressy shoes have. In both cases patent leather is stripped onto suede in lines which form a simple but effective design

Not a bit fussy, either of them. Yet both of them have the look of belonging with a soft, feminine afternoon frock.

(Copyright, 1934.)

Shoes of the types described are available in Washington in all the better shoe shops and department stores.

Keep Well How to

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Wheezy Breathing.

INDIVIDUALS who breathe with difficulty are often said to be asthmatic. Their breathing difficulties appear to lie in the effort that must be made to expel air from the lungs.

There is a condition, known as emphysema, that is characterized by a permanent stretching of certain air sacs of the lung. Because of this stretching the lung tissue has lost much of its elasticity, and a powerful effort must be made by the muscles of respiration to squeeze the air out of the lungs. The result of this effort is the characteristic wheeze that accompanies expiration.

Under normal conditions air leaves the lungs by means of the contraction of the chest cavity, thus lessening the space occupied by the air. Whenever the air sacs become overdistended—that is, permanently stretched—the amount of air that remains within the lungs, not expired, is increased. In order to make room for this leftover air the diaphragm is pushed downward This has the effect of protruding the abdomen and causes a marked increase in the circumference of the waist.

It is well known that decreased lung capacity occurs with advancing age, due to the loss of muscular control of the ribs and to increasing deposits of bone in the flexible portions of the ribs. Lung capacity may decrease one-fourth or more between the ages of 30 and 50.

In a recent article Jonathan Meakins and Ronald Christie call attention to the breathing difficulties of the patient with emphysema, and note that he is compelled to overwork the muscles of respiration, inasmuch as many of the air sacs are useless because of overstretching. As a result the blood is poorly supplied with oxygen. This means an increased demand for air and, at the same time, a decreased ability to bring air into contact with functioning lung cells.

To remedy the situation, at least in part, Meakins and Christie suggest the use of a strong binder that will increase abdominal pressure, raise the diaphragm, and support it during respiration. In their experience this relieves the patient of a considerable amount of muscular effort. Through its use many patients have a consciousness of easy breathing.

A French writer, Louis Moinson, attributes the improvement resulting from the use of the abdominal binder in cases of emphysema to the restoration of the normal position of the abdominal organs and to the relief of loan on the weakened abdominal muscles. He notes, on observing the act of respiration by means of the X-ray screen, that the diaphragm was almost motionless during in-breathing; that when the patient was asked to take a deep breath and repeat this a few times he soon became out of breath and the heartbeat was markedly increased. Moinson says that the amount of air taken into the lungs is sometimes nearly doubled by wearing the abdominal belt.

The routine wearing of abdominal girdles may be an important factor in decreasing the incidence of emphysema in women.

The Capital Kitchen

By Susan Mills.

FALL is a season that prompts and merits the use of fresh vegetables. In summer one doesn't want to cook, in mid-winter fresh vegetables are harder to get, so let's make the most of a fall opportunity.

Cabbage Rolls.

1 small head cabbage
2 pounds ground beef
1 onion, finely minced
1 cup raw rice
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 cups stewed tomatoes
Salt
Pepper

Cook the cabbage in boiling salted water until the leaves are soft enough to handle without breaking. Drain and when cool enough to handle, separate the leaves. Mix the ground beef, rice, onion, salt and pepper and slightly beaten egg.

Put a heaping tablespoon of this mixture on each leaf of cabbage and roll into rolls as nearly finger thickness as possible. Arrange these, folded side down in a baking dish. Pour the tomatoes around the rolls. Bake in a moderate oven (350° Fahrenheit) until the meat and rice are done, 45 minutes to an hour.

Cauliflower and Ham au Gratin.

1 head cauliflower
2 cups baked ham, diced
2 cups medium white sauce
3 tablespoons grated cheese
1 tablespoon butter
Salt

Wash and trim the cauliflower and cook until tender in boiling salted water. When done, drain well and break into flowerets. Place in a baking dish, pour over it the white sauce to which has been added the diced ham. Sprinkle with grated cheese and dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 15 minutes.

Baked Stuffed Tomatoes.

6 good-sized tomatoes
2 cups cold corned beef, diced
1 tablespon grated onion
2 tablespons butter
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1 egg, slightly beaten
Salt
Pepper

Remove a slice from stem end of tomatoes. Take out the centers and drain the liquid off. Season with salt and pepper. Combine diced corned beef, bread crumbs, slightly beaten egg, grated onion, and pulp removed from tomatoes. Stuff into tomato shells, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until thoroughly heated through, about 20 minutes.

Forcing Dummy to Ruff.

It is so much a part of the game of Bridge to prevent the Declarer from ruffing his losing cards in Dummy that the occasional cases in which it is proper to force the Dummy to ruff Declarer's losing cards is almost incomprehensible to the novice.

This is one of the most paradoxical plays in Bridge, and is used only by experts and downright dubs—the former because they know so much; the latter because they know so little. To a superficial mind it appears to be sheer suicide, violating all the rules of common sense. Actually, at the proper time it is a superlatively effective stratagem.

The purpose of the play is to shorten the trumps in Dummy so, that the Declarer will be unable to obtain coincidentally two desired effects:

1. The drop on the third round of the opponents' last trump; and
2. The winning of a trick in Dummy which will furnish an entry at exactly the right time.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	1♠	2♣	2♠
Pass	Pass	3♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Against South's four-heart contract West opens the spade King. East can see that if South holds even one club, Dummy's suit can be established; all South needs to do is to ruff two rounds, the Ace accounting for a third. Then the suit will offer three discards. Establishment of the club suit depends only upon two fundamental requisites—three entries are needed to Dummy (and there they are—the club Ace and heart Q J) and the adversaries' trumps must be exhausted before the suit can be run (which also is easy, because when Dummy is finally entered by means of the heart Queen, East's third heart will fall simultaneously). But if one of North's small hearts must be used as a ruffer, East will still have a trump after Dummy's Queen is played and can therefore stop the club suit.

So East, who can not dare risk that West would fail to read his spade 6 as a come-on, overtakes the King with his Ace and returns a spade immediately. This forces Dummy to use that precious small heart, and the contract is lost.

What About These?

1. Define the italicized word in this sentence: "The fylfot has become the symbol of power in Germany."
2. How is Bad Nauheim pronounced?
3. What is a monsoon?
4. Is it correct to refer to a person of mixed blood as a Creole?

Answers Here.

1. Fylfot (FIL-fot) is a synonym for swastika (SWAS-tee-ka, not swas-TEE-ka). Another synonym, now frequently used, is gammadion (ga-MAY-di-on).
2. Baht NOW-hime.
3. A monsoon (mon-SOON) is a periodic wind, especially in the Indian Ocean and southern Asia. The word is also used to designate the rainy season accompanying a periodic southwest wind in India.
4. No. The word originated in the French colonies and was applied to descendants of the French born in the colonies. In Louisiana, the term is applied to the French and Acadian descendants born there, to distinguish them from other settlers of Louisiana.

Many authorities and even residents contend the word may be used to denote persons of Spanish or both Spanish and French descent. This is erroneous, for the term Creole was in use throughout Louisiana a number of years before Spain assumed control.

Creole is not a synonym for mulatto and therefore is never correctly used to designate persons with a mixture of white and Negro blood.

Boy Vagrants Held Pioneers, Not Bums

The boy transients of today are pioneers, says Homer Borst, director of the Transient Division of the New York State Temporary Relief Administration.

"These transient are not bums, not hoboes, not outcasts, not criminals," he declares. "They are pioneers, they follow the original American formula for success stated years after it had been in action, 'Go West, young man, and grow up with the country.' Their only difficulty is that the frontier has vanished.

"One of the ways we are fighting the depression in New York is by providing a network of centers where the men and boys on the road can stop for the night, for a meal, for medcial care or for readjustment in the way of living."

HUNDRED GRAND

By Erle Stanley Gardner

"HE'S IN THERE. I'm here. I'm an attorney. He's my client. I want to see him. Do I get to see him, or don't I?"

"You can see him," Johnson said after a moment. "Come in."

Lanlic followed the broad shoulders of Sergeant Johnson, entered a room in which half a dozen men were sitting grouped around a central figure. Lights beat down upon that central figure, showing the tired eyes, the oily sheen on the unwashed skin.

Roger Terry raised his eyes to Carlton Lanlic and said, "Hello, Lanlic."

Lanlic sat on the edge of a flat-top desk, looked around the circle of faces and nodded. The greeting was returned with quiet nods.

"Have you talked, Terry?"

"Of course, I've talked. I've told them all about it."

Lanlic looked around again at the circle of men, then faced Sergeant Johnson.

"You're not holding him, Sergeant?" he asked.

"I didn't say that. I said there wasn't any charge against him—yet."

"Is there going to be?"

"I don't know. That's up to the district attorney. But we're going to hold him.

"Why?"

Johnson shrugged his shoulders.

"If you want to ask questions," he said. "Ask them of your client."

His Alibi.

Roger Terry started to talk in a low, weary monotone, as though he were repeating something he had learned by heart and of which he was utterly weary:

"I'm in the office," he said. "I get a telephone call from Barclay Temple. Temple is out at the Green Mill. He's on a hot trail. He's got a clew, something important, something that's going to bust this snatching case wide open. He doesen't dare tell me over the 'phone, so he asks me to meet him, to save time. I am to go to the southeast corner of Nineteenth and Central and wait. I go there. There's a gun on the sidewalk. I pick it up. I see a coupe parked in the next block. Somebody starts blazing away at me. I duck behind a mail box and work the gun for three or four shots. The other guy quits shooting. I go up to take a look and along comes a prowl car. The man in the coupe that parked at the curb is Barclay Temple. It's Oxeman's car, Oxeman is out at the Green Mill raising hell because his car is gone. Oxeman is working on a live lead in that snatching case. I think he stole it from Temple. No one knows what it was. Temple was going to tell me. It was something that was important. These boys know that. They don't want my department to crack the case. The bullets that went through the coupe came from the gun that I was holding in my hand. One of them went through the back end of the car and came out through the windshield. The other one went through the back of the car and into Barclay's head. It was a good break for the boys. It gave them a chance to hold me in custody while they try to find out the lead Temple was working on."

Terry Was Bitter.

"That's not so," Johnson said in a tone of flat finality, "and you know it, Terry. We're holding you because the district attorney may want to put a homicide charge against you."

"A hell of a fat chance," Terry said bitterly. "You boys know damned well I wouldn't bump off one of my own men. Barclay Temple was working for me."

"We don't know anything of the sort," Johnson said. "We know that you admit standing behind the mail box throwing lead down the street. You say somebody was shooting back at you. We can't find any place where the bullets struck. If anyone was shooting at you, he was using blank cartridges or else shooting up in the air. We can tell exactly where the guy stood who shot Barclay Temple. The holes in the windshield and the back of the car line up the place within an inch or so. The man was standing right behind the mail box on the southeast corner of Nineteenth and Central. That's where you stood. That's where you admit you were standing when you fired a gun in the general direction of the sedan. Perhaps you didn't intend to kill Temple, but you sure as hell killed him."

Lanlic Persists.

"We'll go into that when the time comes," Terry said. "In the meantime I want to get out of here. I've got work to do."

"Yeah," Johnson said slowly, "you might have a plane to catch."

"Don't be silly," Terry said. "By God! You can't hold me after the Federal court's open. I'll show you that you can't hold a Government operative."

"I can when he's wanted for murder" said Johnson.

Lanlic's voice was once more the magnetic, resonant voice of a born orator: "Wait a minute, boys," he said, "let's make sure about this thing. Have you recovered the bullet, Johnson?"

"You mean the fatal bullet?"

"Yes."

"Yes, it's been recovered and identified. It came from the gun Terry was holding in his hand."

"The gun had been fired before I picked it up," Terry said.

"So you say," Johnson said, "but the magazine doesn't show it. The only shots that were fired were the shots that you fired."

"Where's the car?" Lanlic asked.

"Outside in the yard."

"Let's take a look at it."

Johnson shook his head sullenly.

Johnson Argues.

"You're here," he said with dogged insistence, "because the law gives you the right to visit your client at any reasonable time. Because we've got him here and you called in the adjoining room, the time is probably reasonable. That doesn't say the State has got to let you inspect all of its evidence."

"This is different," Lanlic said, his voice richly resonant. "Roger Terry is a Government man. He's working on a kidnaping case that's attracted public attention and public sympathy. I'm giving you fellows an out. If Terry makes a charge in the public press that you hampered his work in this case, and it turns out that the kidnapers killed the two people they snatched, it's going to put the police department in a hot spot. I'm here as Terry's lawyer. I want to find out what it's all about. Perhaps I can help."

"We're not interfering with Terry's work," Johnson said stubbornly.

Quarrel Continues.

"The hell you're not!" Terry blazed. "You know damn well you are. You know that's the whole reason for holding me. You birds want the credit. You want the $100,000. You're going to try and hold me until you find out what it was that Temple knew that was going to bust the case wide open."

"You can see," Lanlic said to Johnson, "just how it's going to sound to the newspapers."

Johnson cursed, flung open the door and said, "Okay, come on and look at the damn car."

Johnson led the way out through the door of the room used by the homicide squad, to the place where the Dodge coupe was parked.

Fingerprint men had been over the car, dusting it with powder and looking for latents.

Lanlic looked at the position of the bullet holes, lined up the angles of fire, opened the door of the car and glanced inside at the blood-soaked cushions.

"Wonder if one of you fellows can get me a powerful electric light?" he said. "Get me one on a drop cord if you can."

Light Obtained.

Johnson turned to one of the men, nodded his head.

A man uncoiled an extension cord, with a drop light protected by a wire screen. Lanlic held the light close to the windshield, walked to the back of the car and then took a magnifying glass from his pocket. He inspected the bullet holes with a magnifying glass, taking great care to examine the edges of the glass.

He looked at the car and frowned thoughtfully.

"Where's Oxeman?" he asked, "the owner of the car?"

"We don't know," Johnson said. "He was at the Green Mill. We sent a car to pick him up, but he'd managed to bum a ride and had gone places."

"You haven't heard from him since?"

"No."

"What time was it he telephoned?"

"You mean to report the theft of the car?"

"Yes."

"Just about the time the shooting was taking place," said Johnson. "I can look at the records and give it to you exactly, but, within a minute or two, it's approximately the same time as the time of the shooting."

"And this is Oxeman's car?" asked Lanlic.

"Yes," said Johnson impatiently.

"Why?"

Lanlic stared at him with thoughtful, speculative eyes.

Lanlic Offers Theory.

"A criminal attorney," he said, "has to know a great deal about a great many things. We know that circumstantial evidence doesn't lie It is, however, very frequently misconstrued."

What Today Means

Virgo.

IF September 19 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m. and from 8:15 to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m., from 1:15 to 3:15 p. m. and from 10:15 p. m. until midnight.

It might prove good judgment, should you have callers on this date, to receive them and listen most attentively to whatever they have to say, as some very valuable information may be gained.

If you indulge in social activities, there is a possibility of your meeting a gentleman to whom it might pay you to cater. You may also encounter a very frivolous woman, who it will be good policy not to offend. Married and engaged couples, as well as those seeking mates, should exercise the greatest amount of tact in expressing opinions regarding each other's friends, if they wish to avoid controversies and hurt feelings.

If a woman and September 19 is your natal day, you may be able to gain greater popularity if you will realize it does not always pay to be too frank, especially in a critical way.

The child born on September 19, as a rule, when going through the adolescent period, will have its character molded largely by those with whom it is thrown into close association, so careful supervision should be exercised.

If a man and September 19 is your birthday, if you refrain from being supercritical, your progress both in business and socially may show a most satisfactory advancement. You should prove to be a big money maker. Love should prove your greatest boon.

Officials Fight Wage Boost in School Project

Montgomery Spokesmen Protest Added Cost on County Work.

Montgomery County school officials yesterday appeared before the Board of Labor Review at the Interior Building in Washington in an effort to prevent addition of $75,000 to the costs of three suburban county schools, the Eastern and Western Suburban High Schools and the Chevy Chase Elementary School.

Washington Local, No. 1, of the Bricklayers, Stonemasons and Plasterers International Union, had complained to the board the wage scale of $1.10 paid on the county schools is below the minimum wage set for the Washington area of $1.50. The bricklayers claim Montgomery County is included in the wage agreement for Washington.

School officials declared there never has been such an agreement and produced testimony to show $1.10 is above the prevailing wage scale for the county. A decision in favor of the bricklayers would open the county projects to Washington labor, they declared, which would obstruct the purpose of pushing through the projects, that of providing work for county unemployed.

Adverse decision also would increase the cost of the construction work by $75,000 and would make the projects cost the county more than if it had not accepted the $160,000 PWA grant, half of which has been lost through increased costs because of the long delay in approving the grant.

"It is preposterous that an outside organization which has no connection with the county at all has a right to come out here and tell us that we have to employ men from outside of our own jurisdiction and keep our own people from earning the money that is collected in taxes here," Dr. Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools, declared yesterday. "We have worked and strained to get these projects under way and now for an outside group to throw a monkey wrench in the works would be too much."

Gaithersburg Frolic Planned.

The young people of Gaithersburg, Md., and vicinity, will make merry tomorrow night in St. Martin's Hall, in Gaithersburg, at a general frolic. Arrangements are in charge of William Boland, and music will be furnished by Jimmy Shewbridge and his orchestra.

As a matchstick craftsman, Fred Spinden, of Abingdon, Ill., has constructed articles of almost every description. Household utensils, wearing apparel, miniature wagons are all in his line.

The teakettle shown above is one of Mr. Spinden's most difficult pieces, requiring as it did so much curved surface. It is full size and in it are more than 2,000 matchsticks. Each stick was soaked in water until it was pliable enough to be worked into the curved pattern. In constructing the spout he used a solid wooden model to work by.

Spinden also made a straw hat of matches so well fashioned that it looks almost like a real straw. The band gets its color from the matchheads that are ordinarily clipped off.

The tree shown in the above drawing started growing in a barrel in the basement corner below the barber shop. It followed the wall up to the ceiling, came through the ground level floor at the shop front, and continued growing until now it has reached the ceiling.

U. S. Ills Laid To Drift From Constitution

Dr. Carrington Also Raps 'Waste' in Talk to Kiwanis Clubs.

More than 250 persons attended the Constitution Day dinner of the Kiwanis Clubs of the Capital and West Virginia districts, held Monday night at the Beaver Dam Country Club, Landover, Md.

The meeting, under auspices of the Prince Georges County Kiwanis Club, marked the 157th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution.

Dr. William J. Carrington, of Atlantic City, international Kiwanis president and the principal speaker at the dinner, declared the present ills of the United States are not due to the form of government provided in the Constitution.

"Extravagance" Scored.

The ills, he said, are the result of a departure from the Constitution. He included in the ills the high cost and inefficiency of the Government and the appointment of many boards and commissions.

He declared there were literally thousands of commissions which are "expensive and multiply confusion by doing the work which we elect and pay men to do." There are 187 of them in New Jersey, he said.

Dr. Carrington also struck at the enactment of new laws, declaring 50,000 of them were passed by the United States every year. One must be broken if another is to be obeyed, he said.

Other Features Noted.

Other entertainment features included selections by the quartet from the Baltimore Kiwanis Club, a song and dance by Miss Herndon, of Alexandria, and selections by Fred East and William F. Raymond, of Washington.

As an invocation, George Washington's prayer for the success of America was read by Harry G. Kimball, of the Washington Kiwanis Club.

The meeting was presided over by Arthur C. Keefer, president of the Prince Georges County Club. Edwin F. Hill, of Washington, international Kiwanis trustee, was toastmaster. The welcome was extended by Henry A. Converse, of Harrisonburg, Va.

Gas Tax Meeting Called.

A meeting of all the incorporated towns of Montgomery County will be held tonight in the Rockville firehouse to discuss a more equitable distribution of the State gasoline tax.

Fusionists Hold 2 Meetings in County Tonight

Rockville Courthouse and Bachrach Home Are Assembly Places.

Aims of the Fusion party of Montgomery County, will be explained at two meetings to be held tonight under auspices of the party, one at the Rockville Courthouse, the other at the home of Walter Bachrach in Edgemoor.

The Rockville meeting is expected to draw Fusion women from all over the county to form a county-wide woman's Fusion movement. It will begin at 8 p. m. and will be presided over by Mrs. J. Harry Gormley, president of the Rockville Women's Unit of the Fusion party.

Wilson L. Townsend, of Kensington, former member of the Republican State central committee for the county and a member of the Fusion campaign committee, will talk on "The Fusion Party and Its Purpose." Mrs. Parker Weller, of Poolesville, prominent Progressive Democrat, will tell "How Women Can Help."

Mrs. Mitchell to Speak.

Mrs. Claude W. Mitchell, of Silver Spring, president of the Federation of Republican Women of Montgomery County, will discuss "Party Solidarity."

The Edgemoor meeting is at the home of Mr. Bachrach, 5415 Moorland lane, Edgemoor, and residents of Edgemoor and Battery Park and vicinity have been invited to attend and meet the Fusion candidates. William Tyler Page, of Friendship Heights, former clerk of the House of Representatives, will introduce the speakers.

Samuel E. Stonebraker, of Chevy Chase, president of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce and candidate for county commissioner from the Seventh Commissioner District, which includes Bethesda and vicinity, will speak on issues of the campaign pertaining to residents of Bethesda District.

Dawson on Program.

Thomas L. Dawson, of Rockville, Republican leader of Montgomery County, will speak on the fusion movement. Millward C. Taft, of Takoma Park, member of the Takoma Park Town Council and former secretary of the Vermont State Senate, now a candidate for the House of Delegates, will speak on "The Relationship Between the County Bank Deposits and the Lee Machine."

Walter W. Dawson, of Rockville, Republican member of the Maryland House of Delegates, chairman of the Republican State central commitee of Montgomery County, and candidate for State's attorney, will describe his experiences in the House of Delegates, while Joseph A. Cantrel, of Chevy Chase, will discuss "Montgomery County and the Liquor Business."

Lions to Hold Card Party.

The Silver Spring (Md.) Lions Club will hold its first social affair of the fall season tonight in the form of a card party in the Woodside School. Arrangements for the affair have been handled by a committee consisting of Dr. James J. Hanan, chairman; Beryl R. English, E. Francis McDevitt, John Livingston, William McManus and Edward C. Holmead.

502 Families Helped By Montgomery Board

Problems of 502 families as to unemployment and under-employment have been solved by the Montgomery County Welfare Board since the first of August, it was reported to the monthly board meeting Monday evening in the Rockville courthouse.

These were solved either in securing work relief on PWA projects or through direct relief orders, and in the work relief division a total of 326 men and women were employed during the month of August.

The Welfare Board staff found 64 of the families to be either new applicants or reapplying for help.

If you feel low—

don't gamble

Life insurance companies tell us that the gradual breakdown of the human body causes more deaths every year than disease germs

1 If your physical let-down is evidenced by lack of appetite... loss of weight... nervousness... sleeplessness... paleness... a tired feeling or lassitude caused by a lowered red-blood-cell and hemo-glo-bin content in the blood—then S.S.S. is waiting to help you... though, if you suspect an organic trouble, you will, of course, want to consult a physician or surgeon.

Make S.S.S your health safeguard and, unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food... sound sleep... and renewed strength.

2 Take a course of S.S.S. Remember, your present run-down condition may have been a slow, gradual process. Likewise, a reasonable time is required to rebuild full strength. S.S.S. is not a miracle worker—no rebuilding tonic is—but it is a scientifically proven and time-tested medicine. This is your guarantee of satisfaction. Its benefits are progressive... accumulative... and enduring.

3 Moreover, S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic. It is a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also has the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood. This two-fold purpose is important. Digestion is improved... food is better utilized ...and thus you are enabled to better "carry on" without exhaustion—as you should naturally.

If your condition suggests a tonic... if you feel low... get a bottle of S.S.S.... take an appetizing portion just before meals. You will find it is truly a blood and body tonic. You should feel and look years younger with life giving and purifying blood surging through your body. You owe this to yourself and friends.

S.S.S. is sold by all drug stores in two convenient sizes. The $2 economy size is twice as large as the $1.25 regular size and is sufficient for two weeks treatment. Begin on the uproad today. S.S.S. is really an inexpensive way to better health and more happiness. So many have said— "S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again"

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest that you gamble with substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

a good cigarette gives you a lot of pleasure

For a cigarette to be milder and taste better it must be made of mild, ripe Turkish and home-grown tobaccos.
We wish you could go into the factories and see Chesterfield made. The mild ripe tobacco is cut in long even threads—then packed into the cigarette so as to make Chesterfield draw right and burn evenly.

Yacht Crew Praised by Sopwith

Britisher Hides Elation Over Second Win; Tells of Sail Rip.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 18 (AP).—T. O. M. Sopwith, British challenger for the America's Cup, tonight modestly concealed his elation over Endeavour's second straight victory over the American defender, Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow.

He had praise for his crew and for the big blue sloop with which he hopes to lift the cup held by this country since the schooner America sailed around the Isle of Wight ahead of a fleet of British yachts.

That Endeavour was able to win in spite of an accident to her genoa jib just before the start was a matter of apparent satisfaction to him.

Sail Is Split.

"We split the sail just above the clew," he said, "when it caught in a hank on the forestay. We couldn't set it again on the last leg of the race because it ripped a bit more when we were getting it in before rounding the first mark. We were forced to set a light balloon jib on the way home, and there was a good bit of wind for such light canvas. For that reason we were unable to sheet it in as close as we wished."

Sopwith said he believed this was the chief reason Rainbow closed in on Endeavour on the final leg.

"But as long as we could keep ahead," he added, "we didn't care by how much."

Permission has been granted by the New York Yacht Club for the removal of a portion of Endeavour's interior fittings, Sopwith said, to bring them down to the weight of the fittings in the defender. A small amount of weight has been removed.

Pleased With Start.

Sopwith was pleased with the start of today's race.

"The race," he said, "was won entirely at the start."

He based this assertion on the fact that Endeavour, although to leeward of Rainbow, was footing much faster as they went over the line.

Of his crew, he said, "all of them are grand—first class."

Sopwith said he had found sailing conditions in American waters similar to those at home.

Harold Sterling Vanderbilt, skipper of Rainbow, leaned on the rail of his big yacht Vara this evening, peering into the dusk settling over Newport harbor while trying not to appear down-hearted. He didn't succeed very well.

Hopes for Light Breeze.

"I'm not discouraged over Rainbow's two defeats," he said. "The British challenger, as I've remarked before, is a very fast boat. We're hoping for light weather."

He shook his head at the suggestion that he had a right under cup rules to call for a 24-hour postponement, with the idea in mind that the weather might shift in the meantime to the soft airs in which Rainbow sails best.

"We'll race tomorrow," he said. "I've never had any other idea."

"I wouldn't even be sure of winning," he said, "if we woke up tomorrow and found only a zephyr blowing."

White Sox Lose To Athletics, 6-0

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics made it two in a row over the White Sox today as Bill Dietrich pitched a 6-hit shutout and the A's combined 12 hits, including a homer by Frank Hayes, with 7 passes for a 6-to-0 victory.

Dietrich allowed no Chicagoan past second base.

Vernon Kennedy, making his debut on the mound for the White Sox, was hit hard, but held the A's to two runs until he was relieved in the seventh with two on. Les Tietje succeeded him, and four more runs, including two on Hayes' homer, scored before he could retire the side.

League Teams Meet.

President V. M. Lawrence of the District Independent League requests the managers of the Ross Jewelers, Mount Rainier Grays and Potomac A. C. to be present tonight at 8 o'clock at a meeting at The Post Sports Department. President Lawrence will outline the schedule for Saturday and Sunday among these teams.

Endeavour Sets New Record, Beats Rainbow Second Time

been in danger of leaving the United States.

In 1920 Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV had an even more commanding margin of two victories to none over the defender Resolute in a five-match series, but whereas that challenger was aided first by a breakdown of Resolute and then a fluke, before losing three straight, Sopwith's Endeavour now has captured two clean-cut victories and demonstrated without the shadow of a doubt that he has the faster boat.

Genoa Jib Collapses.

Except for a few seconds at the start Endeavour held the lead throughout in a fairish breeze that measured 14 knots at the outset, but eventually diminished to 9½ knots. She gave another splendid exhibition of her extraordinary speed as well as a better display of seamanship, despite an accident that ultimately led to the collapse of her big Genoa jib. She piled up a comfortable margin with much the better of the going on the first 10-mile reach, as well as the ensuing leg, and had no difficulty standing off Rainbow's challenge on the closing 10-mile reach.

Rainbow picked up 40 seconds on the last 10 miles but Endeavour crossed the finish line fully 300 yards in front, with a lead of 51 seconds on time. Both sloops were under the former America's Cup record as Endeavour covered the triangular course in 3 hours 9 minutes 1 second, while Rainbow crossed the line in 3:09:52.

Set Four Years Ago.

It was exactly four years ago to the day, September 18, 1930, that Vanderbilt crowned his sweep over Shamrock V by winning the fourth and last race of the series in what was then the record time of 3:10:13, for a similar course.

On the way to the record Endeavour and Rainbow also eclipsed the intermediate cup record for a 10-mile windward leg, although it wasn't a true beat under existing sailing conditions. The challenger's time of 1:18:19 for the middle 10 miles surpassed the former mark of 1:19:58 set by the defender Reliance in 1903. Rainbow's elapsed time for the same stretch was 1:19:34.

Where the surprising British challenger came from behind the day before to outrun Rainbow and literally chase the defender off the course, Sopwith drove her into the lead today. There was only a 15-second margin between the two lofty rivals as they swung around the first mark, but it was sufficient to enable the British skipper to gain and capitalize on a decisive margin.

Margin Is Widened.

Endeavour's fine performance over the windward beat, where she held tenaciously to the weather berth and blanketed her rival, settled the race. The Briton steadily widened the margin and led by a minute and a half—approximately a halt mile—as they rounded the last marker and started the reach for home with big jibs filled and prows dipping into a slightly choppy sea.

Rainbow gained slightly as they shifted sails for the last time, in addition to which the defender demonstrated ability to foot a bit faster on a reach into the wind, but there was never any question of the outcome.

The challenger again survived handicaps in handling her sails, but her seagoing luck held out. At the outset Endeavour's big working jib ripped at the clew. A hole several feet square was plainly visible, but the sail otherwise held fast and performed its duty until Sopwith decided to trim and substitute a quadrilateral jib preparatory to rounding the first mark. Just as this maneuver took place, the bigger sail gave way entirely and canvas flopped into the water.

Rises to Emergency.

It looked critical, for Endeavour's lead was scanty and she needed all of it to gain the advantage of the weather berth on the next leg. The British crew, which has been having more than an ordinary share of difficulties, rose to this emergency with such alacrity that the Challenger lost little if any of her margin. The quadrilateral was set promptly, dragging canvas hauled quickly aboard and Endeavour sailed serenely forward.

Otherwise, there were no crucial situations. It was a close race, but rarely exciting.

Both before and after today's race Endeavour was saluted by the President of the United States, who witnessed his third day of the sport aboard Vincent Astor's Nourmahal. Mr. Roosevelt waved cheerily to Skipper Sopwith and his crew at close hand a few minutes before the start, and Nourmahal dipped her colors to the gallant challenger.

Banks on Weather.

Whatever the resources Vanderbilt has at his command in an uphill fight to keep the America's Cup at home, his hopes apparently rest on a chance that he will get the benefit of lighter sailing weather. Rainbow clearly had the edge in the zephyrs of last Saturday, when a drifting match ended in "no contest" with the defender nearly three-quarters of a mile in front.

Vanderbilt has shown himself a master of starting tactics and his crew has performed magnificently, but the defender has not shown the speed to match the challenger in windward or leeward racing.

Notwithstanding, Vanderbilt refused tonight to take advantage of his privilege of asking a day's postponement, arbitrarily. However, the defender was less prompt than Endeavour in signifying willingness to enter the third race tomorrow.

With his customary dispatch Vanderbilt timed today's start to the split second and went over the line with perhaps ten seconds' advantage, but Endeavour was footing faster and was on even terms before the American boat broke out its staysail.

Caught by Surprise.

In the 14-knot northwest breeze both keeled over and sped away so rapidly that the accompanying naval, Coast Guard and spectator vessels were caught by surprise.

They were close to a record pace all the way on the 10-mile broad reach to the southwest, rarely more than a few seconds apart and presenting as striking a picture of rivalry as any America's Cup race in memory. They negotiated fully 8 miles before "open water" could be discerned between the two sloops and it took desperate work by Endeavour's crew in shifting jibs to avoid losing a hard-won advantage.

Rounding the mark, however, Endeavor kept Rainbow so well covered on a long port tack that the margin widened rapidly. They were no longer within even hailing distance as the challenger rounded the second mark in record time and set another big jib for the homeward reach. Somewhere along the last leg Rainbow seemed to pick up a fresher breeze. She closed the gap rapidly for a time, raising some faint hopes of a comeback, but Endeavour had distance to spare and nothing to worry about as she slid victoriously between the committee boat and the whistling buoy that seemed to be striking the mournful notes of a dirge for the trailing defender.

Soccer, Fieldball Seasons 'to Open

Western Maryland Group Names Smith 16th Time.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—The Western Maryland Interscholastic League soccer and fieldball seasons will open Monday, October 1.

Arthur F. Smith, Central High, Lonaconing, was reelected president for the sixteenth consecutive year. John W. Fisher, Bruce High, Westernport, was named vice president, and Gilbert C. Cooling, Barton, secretary-treasurer.

Allegany, Penn Avenue, both of Cumberland; Beall, Frostburg; Central, Lonaconing, and Bruce, Westernport, will be the teams represented in the fall sports program. Bruce, however, has not decided whether it will have a fieldball team due to lack of interest among the girls. In case no team is formed a program of interclass sports will be arranged at Bruce for girls.

Gladys Jenkins, Central, is the only new coach for the 1934-35 season.

The schedule:

Red Sox Get 1 Hit, Beat Newsom

Win Over Browns, 2-1, on Two Passes and Single in 10th.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18 (AP).—For nine innings today big Buck Newsom held the Boston Red Sox hitless, but he weakened in the tenth, gave two passes and a single, and the Browns were defeated, 2 to 1.

The winning run was scored by Bishop, who, with Werber, had been walked by the St. Louis hurler before R. Johnson singled.

Until the tenth Newsom was almost invincible. He struck out nine men. Boston's first tally, in the second, came on two walks, an error by Melillo and a fielder's choice.

In this inning Wes Ferrell objected strenuously to a third called strike, and when Brother Rick joined his protests the Ferrells were banished by Umpire Kolls.

Cubs and Phils Split In One-Sided Contest

Philadelphia, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs and the Phillies divided a double-header today, the Bruins winning the first fray, 7 to 3, while the Phils snared the second, 8 to 1.

Paced by Don Hurst and Gabby Hartnett, the Cubs pounded Syl Johnson and Austin Moore for 12 hits in the first game. Hurst hit four singles. Hartnett, with his twentieth home run of the season, a two-bagger and a long fly drove in four of the winners' runs.

Warneke, who started this tilt for the Cubs, was ejected from the game for disputing one of Umpire Reardon's decisions in the second inning.

The Phillies led all the way in the second, scoring five runs off Bush in five innings and mixing Cub errors with hits to punish Root, his successor, for three more runs in the sixth. Hack hit a homer for the Cubs in the ninth.

Miss Britain Speeds To New Mile Record

Venice, Sept. 18 (AP). — Hubert Scott-Paine, British racing driver, today drove his Harmsworth Trophy challenger, Miss Britain III, to a new record speed of 177.185 kilometers an hour for a single-motored boat over a closed mile.

The accomplishment won Scott-Paine the Piedmont Cup, most prized of the trophies offered in the sixth international boat races being contested here.

The old record for a closed mile was 146.91 kilometers set by the late Sir Henry Segrave in his Miss England I, five years ago.

Yacht's Home Port Celebrates Wildly

Gosport, England, Sept. 18 (AP).—News of Endeavor's second straight victory over Rainbow started a celebration which was still going full swing late tonight in this seaport town.

Rockets were fired and the ships in the harbor tied down their whistles. It seemed as if the entire populace was on the streets. Workmen who helped construct the yacht in the local shipyards rehearsed their part in getting her ready for the race.

Thirty-one Try Out For Charles Town Team

Charles Town, W. Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Thirty-one candidates, including 14 holdovers from last season, comprise the Charles Town High School grid squad now training for their opening game, October 5, on Memorial Field here.

Hunter Maddex, former Shepherd State Teachers College star, is coaching. Sam Strider is captain and Frank Smith and Francis Reed are managers. Candidates reporting for practice were:

Fans Argue Big Fight Decision

Ross Speeds Homeward; McLarnin Eats 5 Lbs. of Juicy Grapes.

By Eddie Brietz.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—The big question along Broadway and Cauliflower Row today was who really won the Jimmy McLarnin-Barney Ross welterweight championship fight.

In pubs, cigar stores and poolrooms the fight faithful gathered to agree or disagree with the decision that cost Ross his title.

The pay-off was on McLarnin, but a majority of fight writers at the ringside, backed by a considerbly larger number of spectators, thought that Ross should have had a draw at the worst and kept his title.

While the arguments raged, the battered principals in the 15 rounds of furious milling did quick fadeouts.

Ross Homeward Bound.

Ross, surrounded by relatives and handlers, flew to Chicago to spend the Jewish holiday, Yom Kippur.

The new champion, so the manager of his hotel volunteered, ate five pounds of grapes for breakfast and then went with his trainer to Westchester for two days of golf and relaxation.

Each carried away something to remember the other by. McLarnin's left eye was almost closed, which will not be so good for his putting, and Ross sported a nifty shiner, partly concealed by a pair of dark glasses, and a badly cut lip.

Art Winch and Sam Pian, majordomos of the Ross camp, remained in town to collect their end of the purse and start the ball rolling for a return match.

"All Burned Up."

"We're all burned up over that decision," Pian said, "and we're demanding another go at McLarnin the minute Pop Foster will let him fight.

Foster was a bit wary in committing himself on a return bout, although Jimmy said he is willing to accommodate Ross whenever a fight can be arranged. Pop and his new champ plan to sail for Ireland in a few weeks.

Charity Gets Low End.

The evening's brawling brought Ross approximately $32,500 of the gross gate, now placed at around $140,000. McLarnin's share will total about $22,000. Federal and State taxes took $17,000 and the Christmas fund, the charity involved, will get between $9,000 and $10,000.

Mike Jacobs, promoter, said the paid attendance was 23,777.

Dodgers Slam 17 Hits To Blast Pirates, 9-4

Brooklyn, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Dodgers belabored three Pittsburgh pitchers for 17 hits today and easily won the delayed opener of their series, 9 to 4. Emil Leonard was touched for 13 blows, including a homer by Paul Waner with two aboard, but he went the route for his thirteenth victory.

The only time the Bucs were close was after Waner's homer in the seventh left them a run behind. The Dodgers then made six straight singles off Heinie Meine and Burleigh Grimes for four runs to clinch the game.

Trap-Shoot Champions Honored at Reception

Keyser, W. Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders, National trap-shooting champions for North America, were honored at a reception shoot held at their home traps, the Meadow Lark Gun Club. Sportsmen gathered from all parts of Mineral County participated.

Representative Jennings Randolph visited the club and praised the famous couple for their success in bringing high honors to Mineral County and to West Virginia. A bouquet of flowers from admirers of Keyser and a money gift from members of the home club were presented.

Indians Beat Nats Twice, 5-4 and 9-6

Opener Goes 12 Innings as Stewart Bows; Lead Wasted in Second.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Indians drove another nail into their perch on third place in the American League today by defeating Washington twice, 5 to 4, and 9 to 6.

It took the Indians 12 innings to defeat the badly crippled Washington outfit in the first game, a triple by Galatzer and a single by Averill finally ending the contest. They overcame a lead of five runs to win the second.

Mel Harder and Ralph Winegarner were the winning pitchers for Cleveland, while Walter Stewart and Alphonse Thomas were the Washington pitchers charged with the losses.

Hal Trosky very nearly hit his thirty-fourth home run of the season in the sixth inning of the second game, but the ball struck one of the uprights on the right-field wall and came down for a triple.

Jockey Merritt Rides Four Horses to Victories on Program at Havre de Grace

P. M. Walker Saddles 3 Winners

Miss Show, 16-1 Shot, Scores in Best Race of Ordinary Card.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Sept. 18 (AP).—Today was a field day for the Virginia sportsman and breeder, Capt. P. M. Walker. He saddled the winners of the first and third races for the Howe Stable when he sent Tiddlewink and Kate to the post and then came back to win the fourth race with his home-bred Seawick, which races in his own colors.

All three horses were ridden by Bobby Merrit, a lad under contract to Capt. Walker. Merritt also won with Caloric in the seventh race. Tiddlewink made all of her pace, while Kate and Seawick came from behind. Seawick's performance was a smashing good effort. Outrun from the break and trailing along with the rear division in the early stages, Seawick cut across to the inside at the turn out of the backstretch and slipping in through the rail was up with the leaders coming into the homestretch. In the final furlong she bumped her way through in between Exhibit and Bright Banner and was up in the final strides to win by a neck.

Today's races were run over a fast track and before a crowd that exceeded in numbers that of yesterday. Favorites fell by the wayside and speculation was light.

Miss Snow Scores.

Miss Snow, which races for N. E. Stanton, proved best of the band of platers that went to the post in the fifth race, probably the best on the card. Ridden by J. Davis and a keen factor from the break, Miss Snow fought it out with Unencumbered all through the home stretch and at the finish beat the latter out a head. Knight of Old was third, another length away. Mountain Elk, favorite for the race, never a dangerous factor at any stage, finished fifth. Big Show had a rough passage and was sharply cut off on the back stretch, where he was pulled up.

Tiddlewink, a bay filly from the Howe Stable, showed a game performance in the running of the first race when she beat Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Saint Cleo out a neck. Black Rose was a well-beaten third. A field of 14 went to the post and Black Rose was always favorite.

Wise Count Ahead.

R. P. Watts' Wise Count, a heavily played favorite in the second race, proved a handy winner, when he led the Starmount Stable's Black Song by a length passing the judges. Black Song was the one to make the early pace and in the run down the backstretch raced Accent off her feet. Rounding the far turn Wise Count moved on the outside and taking command coming into the homestretch drew away in the last furlong. The Glen Riddle Stables Gold and Black, after making a determined effort rounding the far turn, weakened when put to a drive and was beaten a length for the place. The winner was ridden by the apprentice F. McManus under contract to the G. D. Widener Stable.

The Howe Stable, whose horses appear to be in particularly good form just now, accounted for the second race when Kate, a 4-year-old filly by Westwick proved an easy winner when she galloped home two lengths in front of Golden Spur. The latter, running coupled with Royal Guard, made the pace until the final furlong where Kate, moving up without effort, easily disposed of him to win going away at the end. Royal Guard, after trailing his opponent for half a mile, made a wide turn entering the homestretch to finish with a belated rush to be beaten a neck for the place.

Favorite Defeated.

Another favorite was bowled over and another surprise took place when Gay Party scored in a thrilling drive to capture honors in the mile and one furlong of the sixth number to pay $32.70. Landing in second position two lengths behind the winner came Olamay, second choice in the wagering, with third accounted for by Post Brigade. The disappointing choice, Bub McFarland, racing in sixth position, was never able to better that position and finally pulled up lame.

Caloric led Xandra home in the seventh.

Red Wings Slug 3 Pitchers to Win Series Opener.

Minneapolis, Sept. 18 (AP).—Columbus lambasted three Minneapolis hurlers today to win the first game of the Association baseball play-off by a score of 12 to 6.

The Red Birds batted around in the third inning when they scored four runs. Ganbel and Peel hit home runs for the Millers, while Gene Moore and Riggs each hit one over the fence for Columbus. The teams will play the second game of the series tomorrow to determine which will meet the International League champions for the minor leagues title.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIDDLEWINKS, $9.40, $5.50, $3.00; SAINT CLEO, $17.20, $6.90; BLACK ROSE, $2.30.

TIDDLEWINKS, hustled hard while holding a position on the inside to take command in the opening furlong, met repeated efforts from SAINT CLEO in first half-mile, then held on stubbornly until the end. SAINT CLEO, hard ridden for the entire journey, continued strongly after making frequent efforts. BLACK ROSE, outrun early, swung around her opponents and finished full of run.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:45. Off at 2:49. Winner, R. P. Watts' b. g. (5), by Wise Counsellor—Grace Troxler. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:12 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WISE COUNT, $3.90, $3.60, $2.50; BLACK SONG, $24.40, $8.20; GOLD AND BLACK, $2.90.

WISE COUNT, placed in close attendance of the leaders after the start, gained stoutly to take command at the stretch turn, then was steadied to stall off BLACK SONG. Latter had good speed to set the early pace, saved ground and held on well when overtaken. GOLD AND BLACK entered contention with a rush at the turn, lost ground when reaching the home stretch, but continued with good courage.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:23. Winner, Howe Stable's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KATE, $8.00, $2.70, $2.60; GOLDEN SPUR (entry), $2.20, $2.20; ROYAL GUARD (entry), $2.20.

KATE, following closest to GOLDEN SPUR and steadied until approaching the home stretch, closed resolutely after being straightened away for the final drive, wore GOLDEN SPUR down and finished with speed in reserve. GOLDEN SPUR raced strongly while under slight restraint, responded when put to a drive at stretch turn, but was unable to stall off the winner. ROYAL GUARD, slower than usual to settle in his stride, closed with a rush.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Defender. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 3:59. Winner, P. M. Walker's gr. or rn. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SEAWICK, $17.70, $7.40, $5.20; EXHIBIT, $11.80, $8.20; BRIGHT BANNER, $11.40.

SEAWICK, improving her position on the inside to enter a forward position, found racing room between GALON BOY and BRIGHT BANNER midway of the home stretch and, under stout drive, was up in the concluding strides. EXHIBIT kept on the outside to avoid interference when in pursuit of the leaders, finished full of run, and fought it out resolutely. BRIGHT BANNER challenged strongly nearing the final furlong and rallied strongly under severe urging.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming prices, $2,500 to $2,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:30. Off at 4:30½. Winner, N. E. Stanton's gr. f. (4), by Eternal—Eaton Girl. Trained by K. Holman. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:42 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS SNOW, $33.60, $12.10, $8.00; UNENCUMBERED, $8.00, $5.40; KNIGHT OF OLD, $4.70.

MISS SNOW went to the pacemaker on the inside, gained command under punishment when straightened into the home stretch, then held on stoutly to withstand UNENCUMBERED. Latter, close to the leaders from the beginning, came determinedly after making tenacious efforts in the first six furlongs. KNIGHT OF OLD, steadied at an even pace for seven furlongs, weakened during the closing drive. BIG SHOW lacked speed and was never a forward factor.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming price, $1,200. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:59. Off at 5:01½. Winner, Miss Betty Jane Christmas' b. h. (5), by Bright Knight—Celebration. Trained by B. F. Christmas. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:53 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GAY PARTY, $32.70, $12.90, $6.80; OLAMAY, $4.90, $3.20; POST BRIGADE, $7.10.

GAY PARTY gained command swinging into the home stretch and, under mild urging, withstood OLAMAY. Latter reached her best stride after six furlongs, circled her companion and came stoutly in the closing drive. POST BRIGADE moved up willingly in last half-mile, came to outside and finished with good speed. JIM ROBIN, nicely in hand until midway of final turn, faltered when put to a drive. FAIR BILLY raced stoutly for seven furlongs and then weakened. BUB McFARLAND was pulled up lame. MERRY MISS trailed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming price, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:29. Off at 5:31½. Winner, W. H. La Boyteaux's ch. g. (3), by Carlarie—Blush. Trained by G. H. Strate. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:46 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CALORIC, $10.40, $5.20, $3.10; XANDRA, $6.60, $2.80; ZEMBLA, $2.60.

CALORIC was rated in front until straightened into the home stretch, was shaken up thereafter and withstood XANDRA. Latter made several early bids, then came with belated speed approaching the finish. ZEMBLA went along on her own, contested for the first six furlongs, lost ground on outside from the beginning, and then came with a bold rush in last furlong. SUN WAY, under pressure throughout, held on stoutly. PENCADER finished stoutly.

Kid Chocolate's $750 Demand Ties Up Plans for Gigantic Ring Card Sept. 27

Overlin-Rios Encounter Is Aim

Year Too Far Advanced to Meet Guarantee, Sponsors Say.

By Bill McCormick.

PLANS for a colossal carnival of clout, which was to have presented the District with an impressive array of white and colored boxing talent at Griffith Stadium on September 27, have been sent awry by the money demands of Kid Chocolate.

Chocolate, who was to have headed the colored contingent of the show planned by the Lincoln Athletic Club, has demanded a $750 guarantee to box Calvin Reed, Jimmy McLarnin's chief sparring partner. The other colored feature was to have involved Unknown Winston and Humberto Arce, who may yet be signed despite Winson's demands for a $400 guarantee.

Two white feature bouts will be arranged for the card by Promoter Joe Turner if the original plans are not dropped. Turner is contemplating a bout between Ken Overlin, recently crowned middleweight champion of the Navy, and Tommy Rios, who last month acquired a win over erstwhile Middleweight Champion Vince Dundee in a non-title shambles. Who will participate in the other white bout has not yet been decided, but it is possible that Turner may allow the Tommy Paul-Frankie Covelli featherweight contest, which was to have headed his next show, to be used on the big program.

Guarantee for Each.

Because of the number of main bouts involved, the promoters would be forced to pay each participant a guarantee, instead of allowing them to work on the usual percentage basis. The sponsors of the show have declared they would willingly meet the demands of Chocolate and Winston, were the season not so far advanced that inclement weather might drop the gate receipts sharply.

Plans for the show have not been completely abandoned, but the promoters are still endeavoring to induce the Cuban Bon Bon to lower his guarantee demands. Should he not accede to their requests, they may either obtain a substitute bout or arrange a run-of-the-mine card for their last outdoor program of punch.

The Lincoln Athletic Club's plans are not the only ones which are going awry. Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn's hopes for the long-deferred Phil Furr-Bob Wilson natural have been brought to a complete and perhaps permanent standstill by Furr's refusal to swap wallops with the Florida knockerout at the Riding and Hunt Club.

"The Hunt Club isn't big enough for the fight," Furr told The Post. "I won't fight Wilson there, but will fight him gladly at the ball park or some other spot big enough."

Ordered to Fight.

Furr, who refused to go through with the bout as scheduled last month, has been ordered to fight Wilson for Ahearn before he can accept any other matches in the District. He has been training for several weeks in preparation for the bout, but still refuses to go through with it at the Hunt Club, evidently believing that Promoter Joe Turner, who controls the ring racket at Griffith Stadium, would buy the contest or allow Ahearn to stage it in the outdoor site.

Turner told The Post yesterday that he had no intention of trying to buy the bout for the ball park, and Ahearn has stated positively that he would not sell it, even if approached with an offer. The boxing commission has said the fight belongs to Ahearn, and he may sell it or transfer it to whatever site he chooses.

Virginia Squad Loses Fast Quarter

'Bus' Male's Hurts Call for Operation; Loss Is Blow to Eleven.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 18 (AP).—The loss of "Bus" Male was termed a serious blow today to the plans of Coach Gus Tebell for developing the Virginia varsity eleven. He had counted on this young and versatile athlete from Clarksburg, W. Va., to direct the Cavalier play this season.

It's no secret that Virginia has suffered from ineffective team generalship through the last several seasons. Last fall Male ran the Virginia freshman team brilliantly just as he had been doing at Staunton Military Academy before he entered the university. Coach Tebell had hoped he would solve the quarterbacking problem of the Cavaliers.

Thrown for Loss.

Virginia's first team, with Male calling signals, had pushed over three touchdowns in a game against the second-stringers on Saturday when Male was thrown for a loss as he was trying to round end. In the play he dislocated his shoulder so badly that an operation will be necessary before he can play again. He will undergo the operation this week.

Gus Tebell now hopes that Male will be strong enough to play basket ball when winter comes. Last session Male won his first-year numerals on the gridiron, the court and baseball diamond. He was the leading scorer on the basket-ball team and the top hitter on the nine.

Cost of Craft in Regatta Here Totals Million! —That's Why Potomac Will Be 'River of Gold'

THE old Potomac figuratively becomes a river of gold about noon Friday when that glamorous, spine-thrilling event which everybody knows as the President's Cup Regatta starts packing between the two shores of Georgetown Channel $1,000,000 worth of boats.

It will be one of the most expensive attractions to go down in the sports record books—$1,000,000 spectacle of speed.

A field of more than 250 daredevil drivers, piloting craft ranging in price all the way from $500 to $35,000, will be putting its nerve and its skill to the great test as $15,000 worth of gold and silver trophies beckon.

When you look out over what is normally the placid river and see it foaming and frothing as a dozen speed maniacs roar by at a mile a minute, you might well imagine that every little splash the boats make comes from a silver dollar being thrown overboard.

When you see the winning powerboats plowing over the finish line, you will see, if you look closely, $100 waves slapping against their hulls. There is money behind these races and to call it a million bucks is to make it a conservative amount.

The princely Gold Cup boats cost hundreds of thousands more than their $5,000 motor and $8,000 hull. They represent the investment of money you and I speak of with only vague conception. After the boats are built it requires a constant pour of "what it takes" to bring them around to the proper speed. This experimentation, over a stretch of years, often runs as high as $400,000. Some owners have spent more than $60,000 in one year, trying to adjust the boat to a few miles-an-hour higher speed.

Average Price $1,100.

The average price of an outboard runs about $1,100. At least 100 will be tearing and ripping around the buoys Friday and Saturday with their magnetic put-put-put pulling you to the water's edge to watch.

But the $110,000 sum is little compared with the amount represented in the Gold Cup, the 850 cubic inches or the cruiser races. In the latter, the cheapest craft entered cost more than $12,000. A few are entered costing about this much. The rest range on up to a maximum of $37,500. Such is the price of sport.

Tingling, Chilly Sport.

And sport it is—tingling, chilling sport with the thrill of victory and a trophy as a reward. At the top of the list of trophies stands the $8,000 President's Cup, now a Nationally important sports award. These cups are not awarded permanently of course, for their value is intrinsic. There are 44 of them and when officials said they were worth about $15,000 they said "say that's conservative too."

Some of the expensive craft were in Washington last night. Edwin Guggenheim's Miss Saranac; the Wanamaker boat, Louisa, both of which are Gold Cup racers, arrived at the Navy Yard yesterday. So did the huge Betty V, American Speedboat champion, winner of last year's free-for-all.

The first influx of drivers and owners was noted late in the afternoon when the Texas and Oklahoma outboard crowd came into town from Philadelphia where they raced in the National championships. Frank Vincent, professional Class B National champion and Walter Everett Class F titleholder, were among the arrivals.

War-Scarred Lithuanian May Win Catholic U. Berth

Bill Lajousky Is Favored by Bergman for Place Cardinals' Eleven.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

BILL LAJOUSKY, the Worcester, Mass., boy making good at Catholic U., will be in the Cards' front line trenches this year, and Coach Art Bergman expects him to be one of his most valuable men because when it comes to warfare—gridiron or the real McCoy—Bill knows the score. He ought to; he was a spectator during the big World War game when the Allies tossed the all-German eleven for a 19-18 loss.

Bill was a mere youngster, 6 or 7 years old, when the Serbian rookie tossed Archduke Ferdinand for a terrific loss at Sarejova. Lajousky was in the Vilnis, Lithuania, stands when that historic play was made and for a while it was great sport. But then his dad was pressed into action, leaving the boy and his mother to shift for themselves, and the big game assumed a more serious aspect.

A Fatal End Run.

The German quarter back—they called 'em field generals then—pulled an end run that swirled over into Bill's little homestead and the next thing he knew he was carrying water for the Teuton stalwarts. They had him at a prison camp at Leopold Shall, Starsfurt, Saxony. Bill's mother was drafted as a munitions worker for Germany, making steel footballs, the only woman working in the plant—one of the largest in all Germany, where human lives were worth a counterfeit Confederate dime.

They lived from hand to mouth on rations sometimes as low and menial as 1 pound of either horse or dog meat a week, black bread, not always available and stale if it was, and water. Bill had a face wound suffered before his capture that received haphazard treatment and nearly resulted in blood poisoning. That happened before his capture when he was sitting in an abandoned, wrecked home, and a German forward pass alighted nearby, spreading shrapnel in all directions, and in Bill's forehead. He carries the scar to this day.

Search for Father.

But the boy and his mother endured all the vicissitudes of the conflict and finally were released from the bullpen. They searched for months for his father, but fruitlessly. Nothing more was ever heard of him.

Bill's uncle in the United States urged the mother to migrate to this country and she accepted the advice, bringing the lad over in 1921. It was a new game for him in this country. They called signals differently and the plays didn't go like they did in Lithuania, but he grasped the idea rather quickly—in about two weeks.

He played four years of football at Classical High School, Worcester, before enrolling at Catholic U. He's a student—an honor student—in the school of electrical engineering, and the strongest man on the squad. He can hoist four teammates—the biggest—as easily as you lift the morning paper.

Will he make the team? Bergman thinks so, the sportswriters think so and Bill hope he will. When it comes to battling a leather football among friends it's a snap. You should try wrestling with a steeljacket sometime.

Welsh Defeats Latona in 3 Sets

THE supremacy of Barney Welsh over the tennis world of the Washington area remains unsullied for another year.

Yesterday the lanky Rockville collegian further convinced observers that he is head and shoulders above the best opposition the District has offered by winning the Army and Navy Country Club's invitation tournament final from Tony Latona, the former Georgetown student, in effortless, straight-set style. The scores were 6—2, 6—3, 6—2.

The victory came as the conclusion of a triumphant seasonal campaign on the part of the former Duke University net captain. During his jaunt of victory he has beaten back the challenge of the Capital's foremost players, Dooley Mitchell, Ralph McElvenny, Bud Markey, Tom Mangan and innumerable others in rapid succession.

Latona, the blond youngster who has showed such remarkable improvement over the last six weeks that he must now be regarded as a strong candidate for the District No. 2 or 3 rankings, was no match for the relentless Rockville flash.

Allison Ousted From Pacific Net Tourney

Jess Millman Winner on Opponent's Errors; Peery Is Victor.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18 (AP).—Wilmer Allison, runner-up for the National Tennis Singles championship, was ousted from the Pacific Southwest tournament today by Jess Millman, University of Southern California, who defeated him in a second round match 8-10, 8-6, 6-4.

The Texan, considered one of the world's greatest volley experts, could not make the ball behave today. He almost lost the long first set. Twice Millman was within point set.

In the second set, Millman broke through Allison's service in the eleventh game and went on to win. It appeared for a time Allison might rally in the third set. After trailing three love, Allison, who was left off the Davis Cup team this year, pulled up to square the set at 4-all. But Millman's steady game under stress enabled him to break through Allison in the ninth game. He won the match in the tenth at love, taking every point on Allison's errors.

Perry Wins Easily.

Vernon Kirby, South Africa, third ranking foreign player in the tournament, found trouble in vanquishing another California college star. He finally won from Leonard Patterson, California Institute of Technology, 8—6, 12—10.

The other favorites fared much better. Fred Perry of England, defending champion, won easily over Bill Seward, of Stanford University, while George Lott, American Davis Cup player, also took an easy match from Dan Bey, another Stanford player.

The scores of the Perry-Seward match were 6—1, 6—2, while Lott won 6—3, 6—3.

Lester Stoefen, another Davis Cup player, defeated Jack Knemeyer, Inglewood, Calif., 6—4, 6—1.

Another favorite was shuffled out of the second round men's singles when Alan Herrington, Stanford star of almost a decade ago, defeated Frank Wilde of England, 9—11, 6—1, 6—1.

Sets New Boat Record.

Venice, Italy, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Roaring over a 1-mile lap at an average speed of 177.183 kilometers an hour, Hubert Scott-Paine, British speedboat racer, shattered the record for the Prince-Piedmont Trophy race held jointly by himself and the late Sir Henry Segrave.

Twins Conquer Episcopal in Practice

Win by 20-to-19 Score; 20 Players Report at Fraters' Drill.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Alexandria and Episcopal High Schools scrimmage today on the latter's field and the Twins eked out a 20-to-19 victory, a baffling serial attack was responsible for the margin of victory.

The Cherry and Black gridmen of Episcopal scored almost at will through Alexandria's inexperienced line and had Coach Caldwell chosen the Episcopal eleven could have scored heavily. Insertion of reserve material kept the teams on even terms and furnished lively entertainment for several hundred fans.

Paul Shu and Lee Fones did most of the ball carrying for the Twins and their work on the defense also stood out. John Nugent grabbed two passes for touchdowns to capture scoring honors.

The Fraters began regular practice at Baggett's Stadium tonight, a squad of 20 men reporting. Manager Gunny Davis, of the locals, has not been able to sign a competent man to succeed Doc Driefus, last year's coach.

Baltimore police will be guests of the local police at Baggetts tomorrow afternoon in their annual battle. In an earlier contest the Oriole City Guardians of the Law defeated the Alexandrians, 3 to 2. Should Archie Scrivner, sensational left-hander, remain idle tomorrow afternoon, Doc Driefus, veteran left-hander, is expected to pitch.

The local nine is somewhat weaker than last year, both afield and at bat.

Post and Police resume their feud in the Commercial League here Friday at 4:30 o'clock. Doug Morgan and Rip Hicks probably will start in the box, Hicks for the Blues and Morgan the Post choice.

Manager Beach, of the Celtics, completed arrangements for the twin bill between the Elks and Celtics Sunday. The games will be played at Fredericksburg, the first tiff beginning at 1:30 p. m.

Shooting a 70, Joe Turnesa Takes Lead

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 18 (AP). Smooth-swinging Joe Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., toured Metacomet's layout in 70 strokes, 2 under par, for the second successive day to reach the half-way mark in the New England P. G. A.'s $2,500 open tournament with a two-round total of 140.

Putting one-handed with marked success, the slim Elmsford professional broke the three-cornered deadlock with Leo Diegel, of Philadelphia, and Gene Andersen, of Lynnfield, Mass., which existed at the end of the first round.

Diegel and Andersen remained tied for second place at 142, both carding par-equaling 72s to add to their opening day 70s. Andersen, unknown in the competitive ranks except in his home district, continued his surprising showing in spite of erratic putting.

Three contenders, led by the veteran Jim Young, of South Hadley, Mass., who established a new course record of 68, smashed 70. Young's sparkling performance, which included seven birdies as he played each nine in 34, gave him an aggregate of 145, but Roy Bronsdon, of Oyster Harbors, and the veteran Willie McFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., who both posted 69s, were nearer the leader.

District Youth Earning Job At Navy

Pratt Likely to Get Call at Quarter Back; Coaches Are Pleased.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Today marked the close of two weeks of practice for Navy gridders and there are strong indications that Washington, D. C., and Maryland, as has often been the case, will be represented on the regular team.

The Washington lad is Richard R. (Dick) Pratt, an understudy last season, who appears to have the call for quarter back over Holman Lee, Booneville, Mo., letterman. The Marylander is T. Starr King jr., of Annapolis, who has been blazing the trail for the vacant right half back berth. King is a son of Commander T. Starr King, former Navy star. Both Pratt and King prepped at Severn School, and played together during their plebe year. They are now second classmen. Pratt is a ruggedly built youngster, weighing 160, and is 5 feet 8 inches tall. King weighs 165 and is 5 feet 11.

Stiff Scrimmage.

As has been the order of things for the last several days, stiff scrimmaging marked today's workouts. Three complete teams hammered away against the shock troops. The make-up of the first group to swing into action remained intact—which furnishes a fair line on the tentative eleven for the opening game with William and Mary on September 29. The arrangement found Dusty Dorin and Bob Mandelkorn on the flanks, Beppo Lambert and Slade Cutter, tackles, Dave Zabriskie and Dick Burns, guards; Lou Robertshaw, center; Pratt, quarter back; Buzz Borries and King, half backs, and Bill Clarke, full back.

Of this group all but Mandelkorn, Pratt and King are lettermen. The others are veterans of the 1933 team, except Robertshaw, who succeeds Bob Harbold, Washington boy and center, who was graduated.

Pleased With Progress.

Head Coach Hamilton and his assistants are satified with the progress of their pupils, although Hamilton is a little "het up" because Cutter and Lambert, who are champion heavy and light heavyweight boxers, have not fallen in with his style of play as readily as the others. The work of Morrell, last year plebe, at guard, is attracting much attention. And while Dornin and Mandelkorn are setting the pace for end berths, there are six other aspirants leading them a merry race. These are Dick Bull and Hood, both heavy and powerful, Rimmer, Mini, Glennon and Bringle. Rimmer and Mini, like Dornin, are Californians; Mandelkorn is from Peoria, Ill.; Bull, of Pittsburgh; Hood, of Necona, Tex.; Glennon, Forest Hills, N. Y., and Bringle, Covington, Tenn.

Buzz Borries is fully measuring up to the mentor's expectations with his elusiveness and drive, as is Clarke, with his great kicking and vicious blocking.

Vols Defeat Pels By 13-Run Rally

Southern League Teams Tally 19 Times in Inning.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 18 (AP). A 13-run rally in the seventh inning resulted in the Nashville Vols defeating New Orleans here today 17 to 11, in the first game of the playoff series to decide the Southern Association pennant winner.

Nine thousand Nashville fans saw their pennant chances fading in the first half of the seventh, when the Pelicans scored 6 runs to take an 8 to 3 lead.

Rodda, Taitt and Richbourg each got two hits in that inning as the team batted around twice, but the Pelicans still had fight left, scoring three runs in the eighth.

Poloists of 2,000 Years Ago Such Marvels They Amazed the Heavens, Scribes Wrote

By John R. Vosburgh.

POLO was being written about by sports writers in Persia 2,000 years before Babe Ruth invented mass production of the home run or the first piggy ever gave its skin for the greater glory of football. Those writers, incidentally, may be regarded as the forerunners of the present species of sports writers. Whether they would admit it or not is, of course, another question.

At any rate, they were writing about polo long before the birth of Christianity and a glance at ancient Persian literature shows they had an originality about their stories which the twentieth century press-box boys have, as yet, not invented.

Wings of Night, &c.

Using names of members of the United States Army and War Department polo teams for local color purposes, the following would meet your eye if you were an ancient Persian reader:

"Swift as the wings of night did the Army soar with mighty strength to victory over the stalwart sons of the War Department. Verily, as men inspired did the polo riders of the Army vanquish the spirited men who rode against them.

"For there was, among the ranks of the Army, a comely player, Maj. C. C. Smith by name, a youth of moon-faced beauty beside whom the stars bow low in adoration of his skill.

"He mowed down his opponents like the autumn rushes! His heart containeth the courage of seven lions and in looks he far exceeds the bright star of the morning. He rideth on the winds and careers through space like an entrancing meteor."

Hardly a Youth.

Now this may not be exactly as true to fact as it is to Persian poetry, for Maj. Smith, the Army's veteran back and captain of the team, could hardly be called a youth, even by his best friends.

For that matter, it is doubtful if anybody would even call him a person of moon-faced beauty. On the contrary, the good Major is a grizzled, hard-as-nails individual whose not-to-be-trifled-with mien belies the warm heart of the owner.

But this does not affect the point of the story. The point is, here is an account of a polo game played when the world was young, written with all the enthusiasm which the sport engenders today.

The international matches between picked teams from the American and Mexican armies on September 19, 23 and 26 bring to mind the first international contest which history records, that between Persia and the neighboring kingdom of Tuan.

Fell Into Disfavor.

It seemed a Persian prince, Siawush, fell into disfavor at his father's court. The poet, Firdausi, writer of the Persian Iliad "Shahnamah," tells us a woman was mixed up in the affair, somewhere. At any rate, Siawush went to live in Tuan, where he so impressed Afrasiab, the Tuan king, as a polo player that a match between a team from Persia, led by Siawush and one from Tuan, led by the king, was arranged. The story of the game runs like this:

"Siawush took seven wonderful players, whereupon the roll of drums was heard and the dust in great quantity rose up to the heavens. Cymbals and trumpets were blown so mightily that the earth shook with the noise thereof, and, when the ball was thrown on to the royal ground, the shouts of the mighty players reached the moon.

"Then did Afrasiab hit the ball so wondrously that it traveled to the clouds. Siawush was on hand, rushed forward, and before the ball could touch the earth, hit it so that it vanished from sight. The all-powerful one—Afrasiab—then directed that the ball should be handed to Siawush, who kissed it, upon which once more the drums and trumpets crashed forth.

"Siawush, taking a fresh horse, dropped the ball on the ground and with a mighty hit sent it to the moon; the Heavens were amazed and strove mightily to draw the ball to them. None could compare with him in play. Siawush was peerless and his bearing on horseback was like unto the cypress."

Omar Khayyam, in his immortal "Rubaiyat," tells us that Bahram Gur, the Sasanian hunter king and polo player, discovered a player wearing a mail vest under his polo jacket and promptly slew him with his own hand.

Many are the stories surrounding the game as played in ancient China. It is even duly recorded in the Chinese Book of Marvels that a maker of polo clubs was taken up to Heaven in broad daylight!

Ninth Inning Rally by Printers Beats College Park in Interleague Game, 6 to 5

G.P.O. Puts 6 Runs Across In Frame

Pitcher Wood Weakens; Brewers Will Play Victors Tomorrow.

A LAST-INNING hitting spree, coupled with the complete collapse of the hitherto steady defense of the College Park team's infield, enabled the Government Printing Office nine from the Departmental League to score six runs and squeeze out a 6-5 victory in yesterday's game in The Post Association Interleague week-day championship series at Griffith Stadium.

There will be no series contest at the ball park today. Grace A. C. and G. P. O. Federals, originally scheduled for today, will meet in their battle for survivorship in the series tomorrow on the South Ellipse. Play as usual will be called at 4 p. m.

Brewers to Play Printers.

In tomorrow's outstanding attraction, Heurich Brewers face the twice-victorious Government Printing Office team at Griffith Stadium. The winner will advance to the final round in the series competition.

Backed up faultlessly, Pitcher Francis Wood held the Printing Office to three hits, until the last inning. Then the College Park inner defense collapsed and Wood weakened.

It all started when Schneider beat out an infield hit in the final inning. Ray Homan followed suit with a stinging smash to right field, and both scored when Thomas pegged to right field in an attempt to pick Homan off first base. Mosedale went down swinging, but Gartland, Harding and Michelson followed with singles. Corkins, coming to bat for Willner, tapped a roller to Porter, who threw in two more runs with a wild heave over Reigleman's head. Mickelson went to third and Corkins pulled up at second.

Works Squeeze Play.

G. P. O. then elected to put on a squeeze play, and with the aid of their rattled opponents, the idea worked with game-winning results. On Sole's neat bunt, Mickelson came home with the inning's fifth run and who should sneak in after him while Wheeler was shuffling around trying to touch first base but Frank Corkins in as pretty a bit of baserunning that has been seen this season.

Some solid smashes from the bats of Fred Thomas, Rudolph, Porter and Wahler, with a couple of errors by Printing Office, spurted College Park into a 4-run lead. Successive hits by Reigleman and Wheeler increased the score to five tallies.

80-Year-Older Still Driving In Races

PRESQUE ISLE, Me. (AP).—John N. Willard, who drove "that John R. Braden horse" in the hey-day of that famous equine, still eats the dirt of Maine harness circuits.

Now nearing 80 years of age, with a half century of sulky racing behind him, Willard retains his love for the half-mile oval; looks forward with eagerness to completion of another successful season behind the reins during Maine's fair-racing schedule.

He has been called the dean of American reinsmen. He lives but a step from the gate of the Presque Isle fair grounds, where he began his career, and none of his friends could imagine him moving away from the familiar sights of the racing track.

Lives Near Track.

A turn of the head permits him to view the track on which he drove John R. Braden to many victories, a horse known and beloved throughout Aroostook County, which takes its racing as seriously as it does its potatoes.

"That Braden horse was always a gentleman," says Willard.

A simple but massive granite stone in the infield of the track, marks the grave of the horse, whose career was followed by Aroostook residents with the same interest accorded a winning baseball team by faithful fans.

The stone's inscription says merely:

"John R. Braden, 1912-1929."

Record Holder.

The horse established a record of 2:00¾ on a mile track, and 2:04¾ on a half mile oval, a speed far above the dirt track averages of 45 or more years ago, when Willard started his career.

In those days, says Willard, heats were won at 3:02, 3:08 and 3:07.

But times, like horses, have changed, the veteran reinsman claims. Horses, he adds, seem to feel the effects of the depression. During the hard times of the past few years, there has not been enough "luxury money" available for the purchase and training of horses of John R. Braden's type, he says.

East-West Polo Game May Be Played Today

Sloppy Field Faces Rain-Delayed Mallet Contestants.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—Held idle since a week ago Saturday by the excessive rains sweeping the Eastern seaboard, the crack polo players of the East and West tonight had hopes they would be able to play the first match of their series on International Field, the Meadowbrook Club, tomorrow.

Conditions are still far from ideal, said F. S. O'Reilly, secretary of the United States Polo Association.

The line-ups remain the same as when the match originally was scheduled a week ago Saturday, with a 36-goal side of Eric Pedley, Elmer J. Boeseke, jr., Cecil Smith and Aidan Roark representing the West, and the young 30-goal four of Mike Phipps, Jimmy Mills, Winston Guest and Billy Post the East.

Neither team has had much opportunity to practice.

What little betting there is favors the West at as good as 2 to 1. The match is scheduled to start at 3 p. m., Eastern standard time. The series is best two of three.

High Scores Feature Medal Play in Women's Tournament

POSTING a 46—51—97, Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely yesterday won the medal in the qualifying round of the annual women's golf championship at Washington Golf and Country Club. She was the only player in the field to crack 100.

Match play starts this morning, and finds the medalist pitted against Mrs. C. H. Merillat in her first match. Eight golfers constitute the first flight.

Pairings:

First flight—Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely (97) vs. Mrs. C. H. Merillat (117); Mrs. J. C. B. Stewart (102) vs. Mrs. W. F. Draper (106); Mrs. J. E. McCabe (106) vs. Mrs. R. N. Sutton (103); Mrs. G. C. Roney (114) vs. Mrs. W. C. Goodwin (102).

Second flight—Mrs. O. Thacker, bye; Mrs. Frank Nesbitt vs. Mrs. A. C. Sherman; Mrs. L. Worrell vs. Miss Katherine Thacker; Mrs. P. A. McLendon, bye.

The elimination of Mrs. A. A. McEntee, defending title holder, by Mrs. C. S. Teal, 1 up on the nineteenth hole, featured yesterday's first-round matches in the Kenwood Golf and Country Club, women's championship.

Favorites in other matches triumphed, Mrs. Leo Walper, the medalist, defeating Mrs. Theodore Lonquest, 5 and 4, and Mrs. Harvey Cooper, recent winner of the Keefer Cup tournament at Chevy Chase, turning back Mrs. E. A. Rule, 4 and 2. Virginia Pope won from Mrs. George Parker, 4 and 3; Mrs. J. N. Jester defeated Mrs. Oscar Blanton, 5 and 4; Mrs. Fred Meier defeated Mrs. E. E. Olsen, 3 and 2; Mrs. Roy C. Miller defeated Mrs. Bernard Dennell, 4 and 3, and Mrs. Lee Perley stopped Mrs. T. Dutton, 4 and 2.

Entries continued to flow in yesterday at Kenwood for the National Capital Open championship scheduled October 6-7. The entry of Paul Runyan, defending title holder having been received, numerous other stars filed their slips with checks. Charlie Lacey, Ed Dudley, Johnny Revolta, Ralph Hutchinson, Clarence Clark, and Benning Loving are among those who already have entered. The entry of Ky Laffoon is expected any day.

Qualifying for the men's championship at Washington Golf and Country Club will take place Saturday and Sunday, with match play to start the following week. Reese Hair is defending champion.

Mrs. B. C. Hartig, with a 94, won the medal in the Manor Club women's golf championship. She will meet Mrs. Howard J. Simons in the first round today.

Pairings and starting times:

First Flight.

10:10, Mrs. B. C. Hartig (94), vs. Mrs. Howard Simons (99); 10:15, Mrs. E. M. McClelland (97), vs. Mrs. H. A. Neff (102); 10:20, Mrs. L. G. Pray (95) vs. Mrs. L. K. Ice (101); 10:25, Mrs. J. T. Powell (99) vs. Mrs. B. D. Gamble (102).

Second Flight.

9:50, Mrs. J. D. Nell vs. Mrs. H. L. Simcoe; 9:55, Mrs. H. Whitlock vs. Mrs. David McPherson; 10:00, Mrs. Harold K. Beck vs. Mrs. E. C. Scott (108); 10:05, Mrs. J. W. Cramer vs. Mrs. W. E. Gemmell.

Third Flight.

9:30, Mrs. F. A. Smith vs. Miss Marion Brown; 9:35, Mrs. C. F. Rhodes vs. Mrs. F. A. Nelson; 9:40, Mrs. D. A. Platt vs. D. W. Bell; 9:45, Mrs. F. B. Helan vs. Mrs. G. I. James.

Pairings for inside ladies' nine:

10:00, Mrs. Paul Rusher, medalist, vs. Mrs. W. Callahan; 10:05, Mrs. G. E. Pugh vs. Mrs. J. J. Buckley; 10:10, Mrs. R. V. Haig vs. Miss Freda Swann; 10:15, Mrs. J. W. Nolls vs. Mrs. M. R. Colbert.

Second Flight.

Mrs. C. M. Willingham vs. Mrs. J. S. Ebert; Mrs. Crosby, bye.

Sailor Beware Wins Babylon At Aqueduct

Whitney's Entry, 20 to 1 Shot, Is Booted Home by Sonny Workman.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Babylon Handicap, 6-furlong test for 2-year-olds, resulted in a handy victory for Mrs. Payne Whitney's Sailor Beware, which was skyrocketed to 20 to 1 in the betting here today. With Sonny Workman riding, due to the three-day suspension suffered by Silvio Coucci for disobedience at the post in yesterday's first race, the big St. James colt won by a length and a half to take down $3,385 in prize money.

William Graham's Moisson was second by the same margin over W. R. Coe's Clean Out. The latter was the only one in the field of 11 not eligible for the coming Junior Champion.

Over a slow track that was drying out in the sun, Sailor Beware ran the distance in the creditable time of 1:12 4-5. The disappointment of the race was Barbara West's 2-to-1 choice, Sound Advice, which broke slowly, made up ground and then wilted into the ruck. Moisson and Clean Out, like the winner, were almost neglected in the betting.

Moisson looked all over a winner for 5 furlongs. The Manhasset Stable cast-off set a bristling pace, running Silversmith, a paddock tip, into the ground before a half mile. Sailor Beware, which dropped back after a fast beginning, came again on the outside and caught the pacemaker in the last furlong to win going away. Clean Out came from far back at the break.

All-Star Ball Teams To Play in Alexandria

Picked players from the Departmental League of Washington, opposing a picked team from the Northern Virgina League, will play a baseball game at Baggett's Field, Alexandria, Saturday, at 3 p. m.

The contest is sponsored by the Odd Fellows Lodges of the Twenty-first Virginia District, and the proceeds will go to the home at Lynchburg.

Some Amateurs Really Pros, Says N. B. A., Crying 'Racket'

TORONTO, Sept. 18 (AP).—The National Boxing Association today branded amateur boxing in the United States a racket and declared in a resolution that there is concrete evidence that many American amateurs are in reality professionals.

The resolution was adopted for submission to the president of the American Amateur Athletic Union.

The brief proposes enactment of rules which will eliminate any boxer from the open class after he has performed in that class for three years continuously. It is not believed this step would prevent boxers from entering National tournaments or Olympic competition.

Creation of a division to be known as Class AA is suggested for boxers who have had three years of continuous open competition.

As a final threat the association warns "if this is impossible, the N. B. A. feels that they will have to take the entire amateur boxing situation into its own hands and stop amateur boxing until the whole situation is cleared up and made clean."

The light-heavyweight title, made vacant yesterday by the dethronement of Maxie Rosenbloom, will be decided by a tournament among the seven light-heavy candidates named yesterday.

Fight Fans Hitless as Police Clamp Down on Bottled Drinks

THE Boxing Commission has clamped down in all its majesty on the matter of drinks being sold in bottles at Griffith Stadium. Under the rules of the commission, the selling of beverages in anything but paper cups is strictly prohibited.

Since the legalization of boxing, the Griffith Stadium venders have sold their thirst-quenchers in bottles with no disastrous results, but at the Police Benefit program on Labor Day one spectator was soundly smacked aside the face with an empty container and the commission decided to clamp down.

Following a brief and bristling encounter with the concessionaires, who seemed inclined to disregard the commission's authority in the matter, one of Maj. Brown's minions of the law was summoned last Monday night, one of the concessionaire's venders was arrested and the main hot-dog and cold-drink stand in the park was closed for the night.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

THE Marquis of Queensbury's burial place is a spot I never knew, but this morning I am quoting odds of 500-to-1—500 bucks to one plugged nickel—that the neighbors around that friendly little mausoleum heard the unmistakable sounds of the old gentleman turning over the night before last.

There was reason for a big turnover in Queesbury, Pfd, that night, for the rules and regulations the old noble formulated some years ago were being grossly betrayed by two arbiters in whose hands was vested the authority of ruling on the winner of the Ross-McLarnin fight.

I would like to join illiterate hands with Joe Jacobs once again and reiterate, in my best Americanese, "We Wuz Robbed." They took Ross' welterweight crown from his brow without saying "Ooop—sorry." They took it when, I bet you, there could not have been four souls in that house of 23.777 who believed it should have been taken.

The astigmatism of Judge Tommy Shortell and Referee Arthur Donovan must go down into boxing history along with the astigmatism championship won that night Jack Sharkey was given the heavyweight title after being drubbed and flogged by Max Schmeling.

I am prone to believe that if Shortell and Donovan actually believe McLarnin won (and I'm sure they did, else they wouldn't have voted that way) then McLarnin could have beat them both on an eye test, using only that awful lamp which Ross blackened so effectively in the second round with a left hook that whistled.

When two men are so perfectly matched that they divide their first two matches on split decisions, one doesn't have to think long or ardently to arrive at the conclusion that a return, and "rubber" match, is on the horizon.

It will be months before they step into the ring against one another. It will be never, of course, if McLarnin obeys the little voice in the back of his consciousness, takes the $300,000 he has salted away, and quits the ring game for keeps. Chicago seems to be the spot for their next war. Chicago in the spring of 1935, for this next fight can not be held indoors.

One of the hundred or so memories that protrude themselves out of that elegant brawl is the still strange (to me) sight of two fundamental boxers like McLarnin and Ross in there trying for a knockout on nearly every other punch.

It was a strange role for each, particularly for Ross, who forced the fighting at all times, who never gave an inch, who deserved the verdict if ever any fighter did.

There were no knockdowns. Once, in the twelfth, McLarnin went momentarily to one knee in his own corner, but it was a stumble. He was up on both feet and hammering away again before the knockdown timekeeper could get the mallet in his hand.

Another memory that stays with me is the sight of Ross' nose and mouth stopping so many of McLarnin's pesky left jabs. Ross, perhaps in his intense desire to prove to a doubting fistic world that he really had a punch, opened up his defense at times as wide as Holland Tunnel, and McLarnin's fist, on these occasions, was wont to bust through that opening like a Newark commuter.

But don't let me make you lose sight of the fact that Barney Ross, by every right in this cockeyed world, should still be the king of the welters as well as the lights. There was never the faintest doubt in my mind that he had won, and I recall that I felt I was doing him a sort of dirty trick when I gave him only nine rounds, against three for McLarnin and three even.

U. S. Mexico Polo Under Way Today

Americans Are Favorites; 10,000 to See Match.

The American Army Polo Team was rated only a slight favorite over the Mexican Army forces last night as the time neared for the two combinations to take the field today in the first game of their international series of three to be played on the West Potomac Park field.

Preceded by a colorful parade of the ponies of both teams, the singing of National anthems and music by the Army Band, the match is expected to draw a crowd of at least 10,000 persons.

The American team, with its handicap rating of 17 goals has an advantage of 2 over the Mexicans and the difference just above reveals the nearness of their comparative strengths.

The Americans will take the field with Capt. C. E. Davis at No. 1; Lieut. E. A. Walker, No. 2; Lieut. George H. Reed at No. 3, and Maj. C. C. Smith at No. 4. The invaders will ride on the field with Capt. Juan Gracia at No. 1; Capt. Antonio Nava, No. 2; Capt. Quintin Reyes, No. 3, and Capt. Antonio Perez, back.

Sopwith, the Aviator

By Paul Gallico.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Back in 1911, some 23 years ago and fully three years before the world caught fire, there was an air meet and a bishop. in those days air meets were even more exciting than they are today, because nobody knew quite what the airplanes would do. Most of them were of the Wright pusher type, with the pilot sitting out in front with his cap turned around backward. You would get some of them four or five hundred feet up in the air and the big race was not for speed or distance, but for passenger-carrying ten miles. This particular air meet was being conducted at the old Nassau Boulevard Airdrome, not far from Mineola, Long Island. It was proposed to run the meet through Sunday, and the bishop, who lived nearby and whose name was Frederic Burgess, protested against conducting the races on Sunday. That was back in the days when people protested that kind of thing and other people paid attention to them.

The gentleman, apparently, who was conducting the meet was named Timothy L. Woodruff, and he wrote out a reply to the outraged bishop defending his position. He then gave the letter into the keeping of a Mr. Irving Twombley, who enters this story only because he weighed but 130 pounds and 130 pounds was all that the pilot of the Burgess-Wright machine, who was to deliver the letter to the bishop, cared to handle.

Buck 30-Mile Wind.

The Burgess-Wright, the pilot, Mr Twombley and the letter all took off from the airdrome and, bucking a 30-mile wind, flew to the bishop's estate and flapped to earth on his front lawn. Of course, the bishop had to be out and the housemaid came out, a little indignant at the wheel tracks the plane's bicycle tires were making on the lawn.

"What name shall I say, when the Bishop returns?" she inquired when her nervousness at the strange apparition had worn off. The pilot was a little, dark-haired, smiling fellow who was a little impatient with Bishop for being out and missing a magnificent landing and merely said "Tom Sopwith and Mr. Irving Twombley with a special delivery letter from Mr. Woodruff. Our respects to the Bishop." He then ran his crate back to the end of the lawn and hoisted her into the air.

Aviation History Made.

The housemaid, Mr. Twombley and Pilot Sopwith all made aviation history that day. It was the first special delivery letter conveyed by air direct from sender to receiver without the use of any adjunct of the U. S. Mail Service except the airplane that flew it. After taking off, Pilot Sopwith and Messenger Twombley flew on to Mineola, where Sopwith, as usual, dropped his bag of mail and returned to the aerodrome. This marks Sopwith one of the earliest of American air-mail pilots, if not the first. Only, the handsome, dark-haired youngster with a nice smile wasn't an American but an Englishman.

During the Great War one of the most effective and romantic branches of services in the world was the R. A. F., the Royal Air Force of Great Britain. We used to read of them and their adventures with the German Fokkers. The English boys flew to glory or to death in Sopwith Pups, Sopwith Camels, Sopwith Dolphins. The Camel especially was a familiar ship to any one who put in any time on the allied front. It was designed and manufactured by the same English boy who carried the mail to the absent bishop, and who gave flying exhibitions in and around New York back in 1911—falling into the ocean at Brighton Beach, bombing ground circles with oranges, and taking part in the harum-scarum life of the early, dare devil bird men.

Wins $20,000 Prize.

In 1910, he had won a $20,000 prize in England for the longest cross-country flight to date—a 175-mile jaunt that set him down in a beet field in Belgium after covering the distance in 3½ hours, which in those days was little short of miraculous.

Now this young Englishman, who was the social lion of Chicago and Garden City, Long Island, back in 1911, at the age of 23, is back in the United States. I passed him around noon today while he was on his way to winning the title of world's greatest yachtsman. His blue-hulled Endeavour was pulling away from Harold Vanderblit's Rainbow like an express train passing a local, in the second of the series of races for the America's Cup. They had crossed the starting line, with Vanderbilt having a shade the better, but before they had sailed 10 minutes the English boat, with Thomas Octave Murdoch Sopwith at the helm, his wif at the stop watch, and a crew of amateurs and professionals, had pulled ahead by a couple of lengths and was bowling along to his second straight victory.

Learned to Fly in 1910.

Born in 1888, Sopwith was educated at Cottesmore and Seafield Engineering College. He learned to fly in 1910 in an old Howard Wright biplane at the Brooklands Motor Racing Track, came to America, as recorded, to give exhibitions, returned to England and in 1912 won the air derby around the British Isles, and soon afterward at Brooklands opened his first machine shop for the manufacture of airplanes.

he war burst upon England. Sopwith was ready with designs and machines. The Sopwith factory manufactured more than 10,000 planes over the four-year period of the war. Sopwith became a millionaire aircraft manufacturer.

Today Tom Sopwith looks like a British admiral, and, indeed, if he continues as he has started, he will be the admiral of the sailing fleet. His hair has gray dashes at the temples. He is shy and quiet and has the typical English reserve. His wife, a brilliant fisherwoman who off Coves landed a 656-pound tuna on rod and reel, is his complete partner.

Destroy Superstition.

So complete is it that they calmly destroy the superstition that a woman aboard a ship is bad luck, and Mrs. Sopwith is one of the most important members of the crew, the timer without whose accuracy and cooperation Sopwith could not get away to the starts that made him famous in England as Great Britain's greatest amateur sailor, first in the 12-meter class with the Doris and the Mouette and then in the "J" class with old Shamrock V. Always his wife has sailed with him. She planned the Endeavour with him and christened her when she slid down the ways.

The late Sir Thomas Lipton never did more than finance his challengers. Sopwith races them. He is at the helm, is a terrific competitor, and what the experts call a born yachtsman. Curiously, his starts over here have been poor, but then he is racing in foreign waters. In his home water he is known as a tiger off the mark. With his wife timing and himself at the wheel, he has never been beaten off the mark at home. One time, at Babbacomb, making one of the most sensational starts ever seen when in half a gale he reached along the line, heeling at an angle of 45 degrees, he slid across the starting line a second after the gun was fired. He races sensitively with his toes and his finger tips, like a pilot flying a sensitive plane or a glider. He never lost the touch from his younger days.

Colorful Mat Card Pledged By Turner

Last Open-Air Match Will Feature Marshall and Ernie Dusek.

THE unusual practice of putting two of his finest drawing cards on the proverbial "spot" will be adopted by Promoter Joe Turner at Griffith Stadium tomorrow night.

Far and away the most colorful performers introduced locally in years, and both within striking distance of the top, Everett Marshall and Ernie Dusek have been selected to headline Turner's last open-air show of the 1934 season.

Wrestling for the right to remain in the running for big doings locally and realizing that defeat at this time will mean temporary elimination from major bouts, both principals have pronounced themselves ready for one of the severest tests ever offered either here.

"Tough," Says Turner.

"It's tough to have to sacrifice either Ernie or Marshall," Turner admitted yesterday, "but the fans want the match, and that's all there is to it.

"As I see it there's very little difference between the boys, so little that it will take the match itself to prove just where that difference lies."

Earl McCready semifinals with Dick Stahl, while 30-minute-time limits feature Dr. Karl Sarpolis vs. Henry Graber, Eli Fischer vs. Bert Rubi and Ivan Zelesniak vs. Vic Christy.

Notice, Grid Teams.

The 135-pound and 150-pound teams planning to enter the National City Football League will hold a meeting at 8 o'clock tonight at the Atlas Sport Store. President Gauzza hopes to have several teams in competition in each of these classes.

American Stars and Film Product Capture Gold Medals at Italian Exposition

Disney, Beery, Fairbanks Win Honors Abroad

Mickey Mouse in Running; Why Films Are Delayed; Notes of Theater.

By Nelson B. Bell.

American artists and screen releases captured a generous share of the honors at the recent International Motion Picture Exposition, held in Venice under the sponsorship of the Italian government.

A producer, a production and a star, all laboring under the aegis of United Artists—although one is a contract player with another studio—were given gold medal awards.

A Novel Unit of Measure.

"The Private Life of Don Juan," Douglas Fairbanks' new and aptly named production—recent newspaper headlines having been what they were—directed for London Films by Alexander Korda, was awarded its premium for having been given the best world premiere, a basis of rating that falls under the American eye as something of a novelty in the measurement of distinction.

Wallace Beery, an M-G-M player who was borrowed by Twentieth Century for "The Bowery" and soon is to appear in the same company's production of "The Mighty Barnum," was gold-medaled as "the world's best movie actor," an unequivocal appraisal that at least takes in plenty of territory and may strike even Mr. Beery as being just a shade on the side of extravagance.

United Artists, with such a record as this, seems to stand fairly well with the Italian judges and, as goes without saying, the Italian judges stand exceedingly well with United Artists!

A shot at a modest immortality awaits some ingenuous blonde Washintgon actress. Perhaps one who can effectively don a blonde wig will do just as well. The point is that this is the open season in the Capital for Little Evas.

During a brief call at the dramatic desk, James C. Tate, who is producing "Uncle Tom's Cabin" locally for a week's run, beginning October 2, let it become known that he is in the market for the best Little Eva that can be enrolled from among the Capital's resident artistes. It is his hope that a thousand ambitious aspirants for a trip to heaven on a piece of piano wire will crowd his doorstep every evening at 8 o'clock until the perfect Little Eva of all the ages has been identified.

Mr. Tate's doorstep in this instance is the auditorium of the Immaculate Conception, on N street, between Seventh and Eighth, where the Harriet Beecher Stowe perennial is in rehearsal. Mr. Tate has prepared his own adaptation of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," reducing it from some dozen acts and 30 scenes to more compact and actable form, and has assembled a notable cast of local actors. The Little Eva line, in consonance with immemorial custom, forms on the right. The quicker, the better.

Dissolving the Mist.

It is surprising how a few lines in a practically casual letter can clarify points that have been obscure for so many weeks.

I mean that 'way back yonder in August, when Division Manager Carter Barron and Production Manager Gene Ford, of Loew's, Inc., staged their memorable all-Washington revue at Loew's Fox, it had been the original intention to localize the bill still further by presenting as the screen feature Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Student Tour," in which Maxine Doyle, former mistress of ceremonies at the Earle, has her first featured role.

Recalled for Retakes.

"Student Tour," however, somewhat inexplicably was withheld from circulation and another feature had to be substituted for the "Going Native" week. Now comes a letter from Maxine explaining that after "Student Tour" presumably had been completed, and finally cut and assembled for National release, the prints were recalled and the cast brought back for extensive retakes—too much comedy, it seems, and not enough story value to carry it in the original version. Max now enthusiastically reports that it will be quite a picture, with its dramatic narrative built up to proper proportions, when, as and if eventually released.

The ebullient Miss Derle's most ecstatic observations, it need hardly be said, concerned her prospective week of personal appearances at the Earle in conjunction with first Washington presentations of Joe E. Brown's "The Six-Day Bike Rider," in which she is leading woman. Her expectation at time of writing was that this home-coming junket would be consummated in the neighborhood of October 5.

Release Also Retarded.

It now appears that "Six-Day Bike Rider" will not be ready for release until much later in October than originally intended and Maxine's "tour," as a consequence, may go by the board. If it does, Miss Doyle's heart will be broken and she will never be the same again.

At the moment, she is working with Aline McMahon and Guy Kibbee in Sinclair Lewis' "Babbitt." Whether the Warner production schedule and the Earle's playing dates of "Bike Rider" can be made to jibe, or not, remains to be seen.

"I've never been so excited in my life," is Maxine's parting shot. "I'm going to fly East, so be there to meet me, will ya?"

In all that snow?

Two gifted Irish actresses appear in support of Norma Shearer, Fredric March and Charles Laughton in the M-G-M camera version of "The Barrett's of Wimpole Street," which was revealed to an invited audience following a formal dinner in suite 400-B of the Shoreham last night.

Maureen O'Sullivan, who made her screen debut with John McCormack in "Song o' My Heart" and has been in the ascendant ever since, plays the impetuous role of Elizabeth Barrett's rebellious younger sister.

Una O'Connor, best remembered for an exceptional performance with Diana Wynyard and Clive Brook in "Cavalcade," again assumes the role of maid and makes it one of the outstanding characterizations of the picture.

Miss O'Sullivan was born in Boyle, Ireland, on May 17, 1911; Miss O'Connor in Belfast on a slightly more remote October 23. In fact, Miss O'Connor made her stage debut in Dublin the year Miss O'Sullivan was born.

More of Wesley Eddy.

In all of the eulogistic discussion of the lamentably tragic end that recently overtook Wesley Eddy, it seems to have been overlooked that Wesley enjoyed a widespread local popularity, at least in part, because Washington, to all intents and purposes, saw his entire career architectured before its very eyes.

Eddy came to Washington a small-time and obscure orchestra man with no especial reputation to commend him. His instrument then was the violin. He dabbled enough with other instruments, however, to be able to tease tunes from all of them, after a fashion. From the outset, he was endowed with an enormous vitality, a tremendous enthusiasm for his work and an insatiable ambition.

With this equipment he tore into his job at the Palace. No week passed that he did not undertake some new trick of singing, some new instrumental specialty or some theretofore unattempted essay at character "acting." He was particularly proud of his creation of the balloon-bodied German singing comedian and the tottering old octogenarian, whom I always suspected he believed the equal of anything Charles "Chic" Sale ever did.

A Speedy Rise.

This point of view was less egotism on Wesley's part than it was an immense devotion to his work and that degree of confidence in his own ability without which he never could have pulled himself up from $150 to $800 a week in the course of a few short years.

Wesley Eddy came to Washington an unknown and an unproved performer; he left with a sufficient hold on the principles of successful stage entertainment and showmanship to carry him into the largest and finest theaters of the country, not for single, seven-day engagements, but for weeks on end. This ability to register with audiences was all developed during his stay of 75 or 80 weeks as master of ceremonies, and what he used to like to describe as "personality performer," at the Palace.

There are those of us who like to believe that if he hadn't tried so hard and worked so incessantly he wouldn't have cracked under the strain.

The C. B. & Q.'s famous "Zephyr," the fastest train in the world, has been taken from the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago to Hollywood to be featured in an RKO-Radio "romance of the rails," to be known as "The Silver Streak." Recently "The Zephyr" made the run of 1,015 miles from Denver to Chicago in 13 hours 5 minutes.

Meteorological Note.

If that is a zephyr, I'd hate to see a tornado!

Ginger Displays Some "Ginger"!

Sneaking up on her unexpectedly—except that she is smiling straight into the lens—the cameraman recently caught Ginger Rogers at the height of her joy and abandon as she stepped through a rehearsal of some of the gay dance routines she will introduce with Fred Astaire in RKO-Radio's picturization of "The Gay Divorce," Mr. Astaire's former stage success. Could this be part of the "Continental?" Personally, we don't care a continental—it's pretty cute any way you look at it!

Bids Are Opened For Beach Drive

Virginia Firm Has Lowest With $47,633.

Bids for construction of Beach drive from Jones Mill road to Connecticut avenue, via the north side of Rock Creek, were opened in the hearing room of the County Building in Silver Spring, Md., by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday.

The Northern Construction Co. handed in the low bid of $47,633.52 with an estimate of 210 days to complete the project. Next came the M. J. Grove Co., of Lime Kiln, Md., with a bid of $47,946.50. The third low bid was presented by the L. R. Colbert Construction Co., of Fredericksburg, Va., which estimated the project at $49,852.57, with an estimated time of 150 days for the job.

The highest bid was by the Warren F. Brenizer Co., of Washington, which estimated the project at $60,119.44.

The bids will be presented for approval to the commission today.

Legion Post Picks Trundle as Chief

Other Officers Named by Barber-Briggs Unit.

Barber-Briggs Post, No. 104, American Legion, at its annual meeting elected Otho C. Trundle, of Gaithersburg, as commander. Other officers named were Edward H. Spratlin, first vice commander; William A. Grover, second vice commander; Norman Belt, finance officer; Ira Darby, historian; Frank Heller, sergeant at arms, and the Rev. Herman Wilson, chaplain.

Dr. Frank J. Broschart, DeWarren H. Reynolds and Roy L. Talbott were named members of the executive committee.

The department chose Norman Belt, Jesse G. Poffenbarger and Walter F. Reinhart as delegates to the Montgomery County American Legion Council, and Commander Trundle and William O. Young delegates to the Southern Maryland Council.

Woman Hurt in Crash Of Auto and Truck

Mrs. C. H. Payne, of Boyds, Md., was injured yesterday when a car operated by her husband, Clarence M. Payne, of Boyds, was in collision with a M. J. Grove Lime Co. truck operated by Edward Runkels, of Mount Airy, Md., at Rockville, Md.

Police said Payne tried to pass the truck at Baltimore road and Montgomery avenue in Rockville when the truck swerved and knocked the lighter car into a caution signal at the intersection. Mrs. Payne was taken to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring and treated for cuts on the mouth and a broken finger.

Racing Planned At County's Show

Eight Hunter Classes Also Scheduled Saturday.

Eight hunter classes and three races are scheduled for the second annual show of the Montgomery County Charity Horse Show Association Saturday on the Ray estate on the East-West highway near Chevy Chase, Md.

The racing events include a steeplechase for thoroughbreds, another for nonthoroughbreds and an open flat race. In the field events are classes for hunters, saddle horses, ladies mounts and children's ponies.

Proceeds of the affair will be for the benefit of the Montgomery County Social Service League. A number of prominent residents of Montgomery County and vicinity are serving as patrons and patronesses for the affair.

Cups and trophies are being donated by local citizens and organizations. Among the features of the day will be presentation of the prize for the all-Montgomery saddle class by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, who has accepted an invitation to attend.

Democratic Outing Will Honor Ritchie

Chillum, Brentwood Clubs to Picnic Saturday.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie will be the guest of honor at the second annual outing of the Chillum District and Brentwood Democratic Clubs next Saturday, on the estate of Perry Boswell, Largo-Marlboro road, near Marlboro.

The event, originally scheduled for last week, was postponed because of the death of J. Enos Ray, chairman of the Democratic State central committee.

The entire membership of the State and county tickets is expected to attend, according to Frank B. Smith, president of the Chillum Club.

A motor caravan for the outing site will leave the Chillum Club headquarters, Thirty-fourth street and Rhode Island avenue, Mount Rainier at 1:30 p. m.

Perry Boswell, on whose estate the event is being held, is a party nominee for county commissioner.

Bladensburg Women Democrats Will Meet

A meeting of the Bladensburg (Md.) District Woman's Democratic Club will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the parish hall of St. Luke's Episcopal Church. Mrs. James L. L. Rea, president, will preside. The meeting was originally scheduled for next Tuesday.

Plans will be made for the club's participation in the rally to be held by the southern Maryland division of the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland next Tuesday at Upper Marlboro. Gov. Ritchie will be the principal speaker at the rally.

EWA Approves New County Road Project

The Maryland EWA administration has approved a new macadam road project in Montgomery County, Stephen C. Cromwell, county EWA manager, announced yesterday at the Rockville office.

The road will be nine-tenths of a mile long, 12 feet wide and 6 inches think, to run from Burdette toward Neilsville, Md., on the improved old Baltimore road, which branches off from the Boyds-Clarksburg road.

Work will get under way as soon as projects on nearby Hyattstown and Browningsville roads are more advanced.

Discharge of Berry From Guard Confirmed

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Confirmation of the dishonorable discharge of Harry H. Berry from Battery F, 111th Field Artillery, Virginia National Guard, for leaving summer encampment without official permission, was received here by Capt. Aubrey E. Daffan, who conducted a recent court-martial.

Regimental Commander William H. Sands confirmed Capt. Daffan's decision at Norfolk. A ten-day jail sentence was suspended because of Berry's poor physical condition.

Brown Not Involved In Traffic Fatality

In last Monday's issue of The Post it was stated that Policeman Ralph Brown, of the Hyattsville substation, Prince Georges County, had declared there would be no inquest into the death of Mrs. Frances Bateman, of Riverdale, Md., killed by an automobile Sunday morning.

It also was stated that Brown had refused to reveal the name of the driver of the car that struck Mrs. Bateman. Brown, a sergeant at the station, was in no way connected with the case. It was handled by another policeman.

Policeman, Ready for Battle With Burglar, Finds—Squirrel

Candlesticks and Pictures Crash as He Enters Kenwood Home.

"Man in the house—get over there," the desk clerk shouted to Montgomery County Policeman Frank Soper yesterday morning at the eerie hour of 6:30. The police car raced to the home of J. W. Hill at Dorset avenue and Highland drive, Kenwood, Md.

Arrived, Soper drew his gun and plunged into the house, ready for battle with the desperate intruder who had so disregarded the occupants of the house and their call for police that falling candlesticks and pictures could be heard crashing as the policeman entered.

Inside, on the lower floor, picture frames were on the floor, candlesticks and other fixtures scattered all over. The policeman tightened his grip on his revolver and searched the first floor rooms. Then——

A flashing shadow whizzed past his head. Soper turned to face the intruder and found—a flying squirrel desperately trying to get away. The rodent then bared its teeth and faced the policeman, but fell before the onslaught of his blackjack.

Soper brought the squirrel back to the police station and scratched on the report: "The robber, a flying squirrel, captured."

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker
(Trade-Mark Applied For.)

THERE'S no unemployment problem among household employes in Washington, we learned yesterday as we heard of an additional load to the already mounting burden of high living costs borne by Government employes.

BAKER

Governesses, nurse maids, cooks and other domestic help are leaving jobs to enjoy leisure and Federal relief checks. "Help Wanted" signs for 70 domestics are going ignored at the U. S. Employment Service.

A mother (a stenographer at Department of Commerce) with two small children tells this story, which is typical of others encountered:

"I was paying a woman $35 a month with room and board from my salary of $1,620 a year (minus the 5 per cent pay cut and retirement deduction) to keep house for my children and myself. Several weeks ago she walked out, saying she could get that much by going on the relief roll. I have offered $40 wages and room and board, but have been unable to find anyone, white or colored to take the job."

Hundreds of other Government employes are expressing similar complaints. With relief rolls bulging with able-bodied domestics, many homes where reside invalids, aged parents or small children whose guardians are working at reduced pay and restricted leave in the Government offices are neglected. A thorough investigation of the relief system in Washington can not be far distant.

The condition of Miss Ellen Taylor, Correspondence Adjustment Division, HOLC, who was injured Sunday in an auto crash, is reported to be serious at George Washington University Hospital. HOLC employes honored Miss Taylor at a dinner party this month on the occasion of her birthday anniversary.

WOVEN into a neat pen picture are all the activities of the Department of Commerce by Harold E. MacEven, Coast and Geodetic Survey. Mr. MacEven's sketch forms the cover of a booklet descriptive of the department and how it serves Americans on land and sea and in the air.

The booklet, just released at Government Printing Office, includes a summary of activities of the Bureau of Air Commerce, Census Bureau, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Bureau of Fisheries, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Bureau of Lighthouses, Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection, Patent Office, Shipping Board, Bureau of Standards, and Business Advisory and Planning Council.

Lewis M. Milbourne has been designated as Acting Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Maryland, taking the office of J. Enos Ray, who died recently, Commissioner Guy T. Helvering announces.

Eugene Bashore, project supervisor, Research and Planning Division; NRA, and Mrs. Bashore, Regional Information Division, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, have just returned from a motor trip to Toledo and other Middle Western points. Mr. Bashore's sister, Miss Florence Bashore, accompanied them on the return to Washington.

Names of 73 persons were removed from the Civil Service reemployment list last week, the Commission announced last night. Only eight names were added to the register, leaving a total of 656 remaining. Of that total, 197 are listed as serving in temporary positions.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF your name is followed by (*), call in person on the Federal Diary editor. You will receive tickets to Loew's Columbia (Nancy Carroll in "Springtime for Henry"); or to Loew's Palace (Fredric March and Constance Bennett in "The Affairs of Cellini"); or to Loew's Fox (stage, Ted Lewis and his "Happiness Follies of 1934;" screen, "Death on the Diamond").

Diary office hours are: Daily, except Sunday, 12 noon to 1 p. m. and from 4:30 to 6 p. m.; Saturday, 12 noon to 2:30 p. m.

S. R. O.

There are corns on my toes
And dents in my hat,
For all of my life
I have hung on a strap.
There are those who commute
In comfort and bliss,
But the car with the seats
Is the car that I miss.

I await on the zone
For a vacant-seat tram,
But when it arrives,
Oh, Lord, what a jam.
If I ever sit down
I'll give some one a kiss,
For the car with the seats
Is the one that I miss.

An inviting offer to save was presented to War Department employes at the "Thrift Evening" of Local No. 261, National Federation of Federal Employes. At a meeting of the Local's Credit Union, at which both education and entertainment were mingled, a newly adopted plan of savings was outlined.

The War N. F. F. E. Credit Union suggests to its members that they put aside $2.50 each pay day toward a $1,000 fund, which amount will be attained at that rate at the end of 12 years. Veteran employes already have taken to the plan, in addition to contributing toward their regular retirement fund.

However, thrift is not the only incentive to membership in the credit union, for the union enables all shareholders (and borrowers must be shareholders) to defeat the exhorbitant small loan interest rates in obtaining average amounts from the union. But thrift is the end in view of the credit union's officials, who announced they expect to declare a 6 per cent dividend December 31. By that time, as well, at least $10,000 in loans will have been made to members, they predict.

At the meeting, which also witnessed a highly amusing play by members of the credit union (directed by Miss Lena G. Parks), talks were heard from Miss L. P. Herring, clerk-treasurer of the union; Miss Gertrude Coyle, president of N. F. F. E. Union, No. 261, and Miss Parks. All are employes of the War Finance Office. Miss Gertrude M. McNally, National secretary-treasurer of the N. F. F. E., and officers of other departmental credit unions (sponsored or maintained by the N. F. F. E. exclusively) were present.

Plans are well under way for one of the biggest Government employe social events in Washington, the Treasury dance October 5. Mrs. Edna Ross, above, of Chief Clerk's Office, is vice chairman of the general committee on arrangements.

Soroptimists Hear First National Head

Montgomery County Soroptimists met Monday evening at the home of Miss Blanche A. Corwin, president, Rockville, to hear the first American Federation of Soroptimists Clubs president, Mrs. Ruby Lee Minar, of Washington, speak on club objectives.

A nominating committee for next year's officers was appointed by Miss Corwin, to consist of Miss Laura Gilliland, chairman, Chevy Chase; Mrs. Orvetta Conklin, Bethesda, and Miss Edna E. Hauke, Rockville.

The membership committee was given the names of the two new members present, Mrs. J. B. Maughlin, Boyds, Md., and Mrs. Mary Katherine Forney, Chevy Chase, Md.

Dr. Canter Takes Medical Unit Post

Harrisonburg, Va., Sept. 18 (Spl.).—Dr. Norman M. Canter today assumed his office of president of the Rockingham Medical Society for the eighth consecutive year.

He was reelected last night along with Dr. Howard Armstrong, Harrisonburg city health officer, vice president, and Dr. F. L. Byers, Rockingham coroner, secretary-treasurer.

The Rockingham Memorial Hospital staff was chosen at the same meeting with Dr. H. Grant Preston being named chairman; Dr. J. M. Biedler, vice chairman, and Dr. B. S. Yancey, secretary. Dr. Malcolm Foster, of Elkton, was welcomed as a new member of the society.

Stocks Revive Six-tenths in Dull Trading

Lack of Demand Keeps Dealers Cautious; Sales, 541,700 Sales.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Stocks and U. S. Government securities displayed symptoms of convalescence today, but elsewhere the financial markets continued under feverish influences.

Equities got back their moderate decline of the preceding session in trading that was much less active. News of a stimulating nature was scarce and market analysts attributed the creeping recovery largely to technical factors.

The cessation of selling in some of the so-called pivotal stocks, together with the stiffening of the Federal loan list, encouraged those few Wall Street prophets who had been issuing faint warnings that an "oversold" condition apparently existed.

Operators Remain Cautious.

The obvious lack of any extensive demand for equities tended to keep most operators in cautious territory.

In the day's lethargic proceedings only 541,700 shares changed hands, against 647,630 on Monday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 selected issues, however, registered a gain of six-tenths of a point, its loss of yesterday.

Hardly a ripple in the market's placid surface was created by a visit of the new Federal Securities Commission to the floor of the stock exchange. Instead of the one-time mart of excitement and rapid-fire dealings they found some members present passing the time playing checkers and working cross-word puzzles.

Paramount Is Leader.

Among the few relatively lively shares, Paramount was a leader with an advance of ⅜ of a point.

The revival of this issue was attributed to reports that company reorganization plans were about ready for adoption. Other amusement stocks, such as Fox, Loew's and Warner Bros., also improved as indications were seen of better theater attendance.

McLellan Stores, in receivership, got a play for a point or so advance. There was a revival of rumors that a buyer for the chain may have been found.

Rally in U. S. Steel.

A rally of more than 2 points in U. S. Steel preferred helped to brighten the market picture considerably. In addition, resistance shown by such bellwethers as Case, Chrysler, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Westinghouse and others—all of which ended fractionally to around a point higher—did not especially cheer the bears.

Some of the Western railroad shares moved up fractionally to a point or so on car loadings statements for the past week showing increases over the totals of the corresponding period last year. Among the best of these carriers were Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific, New York Central and Pennsylvania also did better.

Commodities were mixed, wheat sagged ⅛ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel and corn unchanged to ½ cent lower. Rye, weak at one time, rallied near the finish. Cotton was off 10 to 50 cents a bale. The dollar maintained a steady tone in relation to leading foreign exchanges.

Many Farm Products Weaken In Prices After Mid-September

Unsettled Trends Are Found in Large Central Markets; Grain Falls Quite Sharply From Year's Top Prices, Reached Earlier in Month.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Economics.)

Many farm products began the second half of September with a weak and unsettled price trend in the large central markets. Grain fell away quite sharply from the year's top prices reached earlier in the month. Cotton markets continue weak under light demand.

Wool trade is dull and markets fairly steady. Hogs, lambs and cattle sold lower, with increasing live stock supplies and slow demand for meats.

Butter recovered part of recent declines, but supplies of dairy products are well maintained for the time of year and markets continue irregular and unsettled. Eggs and poultry hold prices well, with a few gains. Fruits and vegetables show few important market changes. Potatoes advanced slightly in the East.

Cotton Prices Sag.

Cotton prices continued the slow downward trend of the past four weeks. Inability so far to find a way to end the textile strike, carrying with it indications of reduced domestic consumption in September, the forecast of a crop slightly larger than was anticipated by the trade, and continued small exports were market features unfavorable to prices.

Favorable conditions were the increased domestic consumption during August over the two preceding months and the indifference of holders of spot cotton to sell freely in view of the availability of the 12-cent loan. In the face of the unfavorable elements in the cotton situation and of declining mid-month tendencies in securities and some commodities, the cotton price situation could be regarded as relatively strong.

Sales of spot cotton were much smaller than is usual at this time of the year. In New England and Southern mill centers demand for spot cotton continued nearly at a standstill. Inquiries for spot cotton for foreign accounts came largely for shipment to Great Britain.

Most Grains Sell Lower.

Domestic cash wheat prices were generally slightly firmer than futures around the middle of September. Marketings of spring wheat were moderate. Heavyweight wheat remained at a premium. Durum prices held fairly steady, despite further liberal imports of Canadian durum. Marketings of winter wheat increased materially. Corn sold lower.

Marketings continued fairly heavy despite the extension of time for paying loans on sealed corn, while demand slackened somewhat as rains improved pastures and late forage crops. Country shippers were offering less freely as prices declined. Oats markets weakened with corn and declined around 1 cent per bushel. Barley markets were rather unsettled. Flaxseed sold low with the grains.

Improvement in pasture crops as a result of recent rains caused some slackening in demand for commercial feeds. Good pasturage continued to limit demand for wheat feeds in Southeastern markets, but a more active inquiry was reported at Atlanta. Prices held fairly steady, with offerings barely sufficient for current needs. The wheat mill feed situation was rather mixed, with weakness reported at Eastern points and steady to higher prices prevailing in the central West and on the Pacific Coast. Central Western wheat feed markets were about steady.

Demand for linseed meal in Eastern areas was quite dull and mills were having some difficulty in obtaining shipping instructions. Linseed meal was in good demand in central Western markets, but supplies were very light. Cottonseed meal was firm to higher, with offerings of new meal barely sufficient for current trade needs. Supplies of old meal were tightly held by Mississippi Valley mills. Soybean meal was firm. Corn feeds were steady to higher. Alfalfa meal was about unchanged with demand rather quiet.

Livestock Prices Drop.

Cattle receipts were about 54,000 head larger the second week of September than for the corresponding week a year earlier, Governments excluded. Hog receipts were only about 1,100 head larger than those of a week earlier, but they were over 86,000 head smaller than those of a year ago. Sheep receipts increased about 18,000 head over the preceding week, but they were about 14,000 head smaller than a year earlier. In general, livestock prices have been sharply below recent top levels at Chicago although hog values recovered partly near the middle of the month.

There was some accumulation of beef. Receipts have been liberal for several months, and dressed costs relatively high, due in part to comparatively low dressed yields because of the predominance of short-feds and lack of weight and finish in the bulk of the run. At the high time, when finished 1,250-1,330 pounds average steers reached $10.75, or within 15 cents of the season's peak, light steers sold up to $10.50. The cow market was draggy, the slowest sellers being native and Western grass cows at $3-$4. The fact that the advance in live hog prices occurred at a time when pork loin values dropped sharply seems to indicate that at least for the moment the marketable supply of hogs is in strong hands. Normally this is the month of shortest hog supplies and highest prices.

Receipts of lambs from the farm States were abnormally light, but the finish of those sent to market was better than might have been expected in view of feed conditions. Top on native lambs was $7.25 and on Westerns was $7, with a late top of $6.60 on natives. In contrast with the fat lamb market, feeding lambs sold strong to 25 cents higher. The bulk of desirable kinds sold from $5.75 to $6.

Most grades of fleeces were nominally unchanged in prices, but prices were regarded in trade circles as not very firm, owing to the continued limited demand.

Bond Market Drops Slightly; Federals Quiet

Domestic Corporate Issues Are Narrow; Trading Totals $11,517,000.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Domestic corporate issues fluctuated in a narrow range on the bond market today with little uniformity to the trend. The Government list was quiet and steady.

Transfers approximated $11,517,000, par value, compared with $11,114,000 on Monday, and of this total the turnover in U. S. Government issues aggregated $4,040,000.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues declined one-tenth of a point to 81.6.

Changes Are Minor.

Changes in the U. S. Government list were of minor importance. The Treasury 3s of 1946 made a new low at 97.26 soon after the market opened, but subsequently followed many of the other Federal issues on the upturn, which developed when reports were circulated in bond houses that the Treasury considered the conversion of the called fourth Liberty 4¼s a success in view of the fact that $530,000,000 of the $1,250,000,000 bonds called were exchanged for the new 3½ per cent bonds or 2½ per cent notes.

Gains of ⅛ to ¼ of a point were in the majority at the close.

Prime investment corporate bonds were quiet and followed no definite trend. Some of them, such as American Telephone debenture 5s, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s, and Burlington 4s, were a shade higher, while Cheasapeake & Ohio general 4½s, Consolidated gas 5½s, Detroit Edison 5s and Midvale Steel 5s, yielded up to ½ point.

Reports that a reorganization plan had been agreed upon for the Paramount-Publix Corporation brought a further advance in obligations of that company.

Gains 2¾ Points.

The 5½s gained 2¾ points at 55⅜ and Paramount-Famous Players Laskey 6s were 2 higher at 55, Hudson Coal 5s advanced 1¼, to 41¾, and Gould Coupling 6s gained 2½, at 16½.

International Telephone 5s lost 1 point, at 51½; Illinois Ceneral 4¾s were 1⅜ lower, at 52¾, and Studebaker 6s were ¾ lower, at 36¼.

Argentine bonds were again the feature of the foreign section with gains up to 2 points recorded by most of the 11 issues. German municipal bonds likewise were higher, but the Dawes 7s yielded a minor fraction. Japanese 5½s were 1 point higher, at 76.

Curb Rallies In Quiet Sales; Volume Lags

Metals, Utilities, Specialties Steady; Transfers Total 112,000 Shares.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—The curb list rallied in today's dealings, and prices generally closed slightly higher. The volume continued small.

Oils were rather firm, while steadiness prevailed in metals, utilities and specialties. The market was fairly even at the start, and prices improved slowly into the noon period. Quiet backing and filling occurred in the afternoon.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass was an exception to the trend, yielding around a point. Net advances of as much were recorded by International Petroleum, Sherwin Williams and Creole Petroleum. Interstate Hosiery got up more than 3 points.

Teck Hughes sold a shade lower, but other metals, including Wright Hargreaves, Lake Shore and Pioneer Gold, all ended a little higher. Swift Internacionale gained a major fraction, while Swift & Co. ruled about unchanged. Electric Bond & Share, Hiram Walker and American Cyanamid B showed small appreciation.

Transfers, which approximated 112,000 shares, were about the same as yesterday.

Wool Market.

Boston, Sept. 18 (AP) (United States Department of Agriculture).—The inactivity of many wool manufacturing plants as a result of the textile strike and the limited demand for goods were causing a continued lack of demand for wool in the Boston market. Consequently foreign wool markets afforded the principal current source of information on the trend of wool prices. Cable reports to private concerns in Boston from Australia indicated prices at Sydney unchanged from the close of last week, and the opening prices at Melbourne about on a par with Sydney.

London, Sept. 18 (AP).—At the opening of the fifth wool auction today 11,616 bales were offered, of which 9,112 were sold. The attendance was good, although the absence of buyers from Germany and the continent was noted. Trading was quiet, the home trade providing the main support, with the falling away of prices being noticeable. Scoureds were irregular, but generally sold at 10 to 15 per cent decline. Greasy merinos and lower cross-breds, including slipes, sold 7½ to 10 per cent below the closing prices of the last series.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—A quietly cheerful tone prevailed on the stock exchange today. Gilt-edge securities and Japanese bonds were the firmest features on investment buying, and oil shares, transatlantic issues and rubber stocks also improved. Argentinias rails, industrials and Kaffirs eased. The market closed irregular.

Paris—With only a few transactions taking place, prices on the bourse continued heavy today. Rentes improved slightly, but industrials and gold mining shares declined. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—Dye shares led today's business on the boerse. The closing was quiet but firm with mining stocks at their highest for the session.

Reichsbank Statement.

Berlin, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Reichsbank statement as of September 15, shows the following changes in Reichsmarks: Gold and bullion increased 36,000; reserve in foreign currencies increased 45,000; bills of exchange and cheques decreased 15,451,000; silver and other coins increased 23,838,000; notes on other banks increased 3,536,000; advances increased 2,389,000; investments increased 15,562,000; other assets decreased 6,402,000; notes in circulation decreased 46,670,000; other maturing obligations increased 55,301,000; other liabilities increased 14,924,000.

Total gold holdings, 74,973,000.
Note coverage, 2.15 per cent.
Rate of discount, 4 per cent.

Goods Markets.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—The cotton goods market was active, with prices firm today. Silk and rayon fabrics were in brisk demand. Woolen goods market was quiet. Burlaps were steady.

Union Pacific Reports Profit Of $2,660,942

Tide Water Oil Company Declares 75 Cent Return on Common.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Net operating income of the Union Pacific Railroad in August totaled $2,660,942, compared with $1,960,285 in the same month a year ago.

Directors of the Tide Water Oil Co. today declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock, payable October 8 to stock of record September 28. On March 31, 1934, a payment of 50 cents was made.

American Ship Building Co. and subsidiaries report for the year ended June 30, net profit of $207,134, equivalent after preferred dividends to $1.58 a common share, against net loss of $241,034 in the previous year.

Net income of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad in the first seven months of this year totaled $1,274,483, after taxes and charges, equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to $1.55 a share on the common stock, compared with a loss of $299,309 in the first seven months of 1934.

Thermoid Co. and wholly owned subsidiaries, exclusive of the Southern Asbestos Co. reporting for the six months ended June 30, profit of $93,446 after charges, but before Federal taxes, against profit of $409 in the first half of 1933.

Montreal, Sept. 18 (AP).—Gross revenues of Canadian National Railways for the week ended September 14, 1934, were $3,587,994, compared with $3,455,341 for the corresponding period of 1933, an increase of $132,653.

New York, Sept. 18 (AP).—Directors of the Magma Copper Co. declared a dividend of 50 cents on the capital stock, payable October 25 to stock of record September 29. A similiar dividend was ordered three months ago.

The company stated that this distribution was to be regarded "simply as a return out of earned surplus and not the establishment of a dividend basis or policy for the future, formulation of which should not, in the opinion of the board, be attempted at this time."

Trade Trends.

Steel—"Seasonal improvement is expected early in October," says the current issue of American Metal Market. "Meanwhile the main influence is exhaustion of stock buyers laid in before July 1 on account of price considerations. The major part of stocks of tubular goods was exhausted several weeks ago."

Coffee — Brazil during the first half of September destroyed 437,000 bags of coffee compared with 565,000 during the last half of August and 582,000 bags during the first half, according to cables to the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange.

Canned foods—Packers in increasing number are showing a disposition to hold their goods pending a more definite line on the supply and demand situation. Prices are holding around the highs of recent ranges.

Wheat Values Decline Under Light Buying

Dearth of Demand Laid to Uncertainties; Other Grains Lower.

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP). — Lower prices that formed the rule most of the time in the grain markets today went hand in hand with notable absence of any vigorous buying.

Leading trade authorities said the conspicuous dearth of demand from wheat purchasers appeared to be related to uncertainties associated with United States Government refinancing operations at present under way.

Likelihood of some increase of domestic winter wheat acreage for the 1935 crop acted also as a weight on the market.

Wheat Closes Unsettled.

Wheat closed unsettled at nearly the day's low point, ⅛ to ⅞ under yesterday's finish; December, new, 104⅛@104¼; corn, unchanged to ⅛ lower; December, new, 77¼@77⅜; oats, unchanged to ⅜ off, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents decline.

Downturns of wheat prices at Liverpool had some bearish effect here, and were reported as due in considerable degree to heavy deliveries in Canada and to cheap offerings from Argentina.

Fears were expressed in Liverpool that inferior grades of wheat would be tendered on current contracts. Furthermore, crop prospects in Argentina received emphasis from word that fairly general rains were falling.

Feature of Market.

A feature of the Chicago wheat market, however, was relative firmness of the September delivery here. At one time September wheat in Chicago was only one-fourth cent under December. This behavior of September contracts appeared to be owing to milling call.

Helping also to bring about transient rallies was evidence that all domestic cash grains were maintaining strength as compared with futures, and that the movement of wheat from rural sources was exceptionally light for this time of year. In addition, reports of probable large purchases of Pacific Coast soft wheat for United States Government relief purposes were regarded as bullish.

Slackness of Eastern shipping demand served as a handicap to friends of higher prices for corn. Oats sagged with corn and wheat, although September oats today sold at about the best premium on the crop. Provisions were easy, influenced by downturns of hog values.

Cooperative Grain Trading Seen Growing

National Corporation Profits $683,182 Despite Short Crop.

Chicago, Sept. 18 (AP).—Steady and substantial growth of the cooperative grain marketing movement in the United States was cited today by C. E. Huff, president of the Farmers National Grain Corporation, in his annual report to stockholders.

"Operations of the corporation for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1934, showed a loss of $682,503.87, after charging off liberal depreciation and absorbing a number of nonrecurring losses," Mr. Huff stated.

"The capital of the corporation, $1,048,200, was unimpaired; surplus totaled $64,178.13 and reserves, $910,583.56.

Two Months' Trading.

During the period from July 1 to August 31, 1934, however, the corporation handled 40,169,108 bushels of grain, in the face of the shortest cereal crop within two generations, and made a net profit of $583,182.04, more than equal to last year's loss."

Urging continued support of the Federally-approved codes covering grain exchanges and country elevators, Mr. Huff asserted they "can be of help to the cooperatives if soundly planned and administered."

"NRA officials," he added, "have had little conception of the labor problem in the country elevator industry and their approval of a sound labor-and-wages plan has been slow. Some wholly untenable plans have been presented from Washington but most of them have been abandoned."

Completion of Terminal.

Completion of a 2,000,000-bushel terminal house at Amarillo, Tex., a smaller one at Peoria, Ill., and the leasing of four 1,000,000-bushel houses at Chicago, Huff said "greatly strengthened our terminal operations."

Relationship between Farmers' National and the Farm Credit Administration, credit relationship with commercial banks, merchandising turnover and percentage of market handlings," he said, "makes the future seem secure."

Huff urged support of legislation to simplify and liberalize income tax laws as they apply to cooperatives; maintainence of grain exchange code provisions which restrict daily price flucuation; and enactment of legislation for the regulation of exchanges.

Exports of Grain Cut to 81,000 Units

(Associated Press.)

Grain exports from the United States last week totaled 81,000 bushels against 219,000 bushels the previous week and 344,000 during the corresponding week of last year.

Commerce Department figures yesterday gave the following comparisons between last week's exports and those for the week before:

Wheat, 13,000 bushels against 1,000; oats, 3,000 against 3,000; corn, 5,000 against 125,000; barley, 60,000 against 90,000. No exports of rye were reported for either week.

Canadian grain exported last week from United States ports totaled 1,050,000 bushels, against 598,000 bushels the previous week, while exports of North American wheat flour were 38,000 barrels, against 62,000 barrels.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1934—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 Eye Street Northwest.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF BRICK INVESTMENT PROPERTY, 153 PIERCE STREET NORTHWEST.

By virtue of a deed of trust duly recorded, in Liber No. 5568, Folio 449 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at request of party secured thereby, undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in front of premises, on FRIDAY, THE TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY OF SEPTEMBER A. D. 1934, AT TWO-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being Lot 100 in Gilbert B. Fowles' Trustees' Subdivision of Square 557, as per plat recorded in the Surveyor's Office for the District of Columbia, in liber 16, at folio 75, subject to the right of way for purposes of an alleyway to owners of other lots in said subdivision over the rear 5 feet by the width of said lots.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of purchase-money in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at 6 per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, from day of sale, secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $200 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, &c., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within 15 days from day of sale otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Legal Help — By Harry J. Tuthill

WHAT! MY OLD CLIENT, MY FRIEND, ACCUSED OF NIPPING $210? WHY HOW UTTERLY ABSURD! WHAT BLACKGUARD DARED TO.....?
MY OWN COUSIN. HE STAYED AT MY HOUSE AND ATE EVERYTHING BUT THE LINING OF THE ICE BOX. I GOT HIM $800 FROM WALL ST.
A. BAXTER BUMM
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. 9-19
DID THE COMPLAINANT LEAVE THAT SUM OF MONEY AROUND WHERE YOU COULD GET TO IT AND, ALLEGEDLY OF COURSE, SKIN OFF THE $210?
AFTER HE GOT IT, HE LOOKED AT IT FOR A LONG TIME. THEN HE GAVE IT TO HIS WIFE. SHE THREW IT ON A BUREAU AND BOTH WENT OUT TO THE ICE BOX.
LEAVING YOU ALONE WITH THE MONEY? AHEM! WE'D BETTER FORGET THAT PART OF IT. I'D RATHER FEEL THAT AT NO TIME WERE YOU WITHIN, OH SAY 10 FEET OF THAT $800.
THAT PART IS IMPORTANT. IT SHOWS HOW CARELESS THEY WERE.
MY IDEA IS TO TELL THINGS JUST AS THEY HAPPENED, COUNSELOR BUMM.
MY DEAR BUNGLE, FRANKLY I DO NOT LIKE YOUR BEING ALONE WITH THE MONEY. NO SIR! WE'LL HAVE TO CHANGE THAT TO FIT IN WITH YOUR INJURED LOOK WHICH, BY THE WAY, IS SIMPLY MARVELOUS. IT'S PERFECT.

EDGIE!—I'VE JUST SEEN MISTER SLEWSTER! HE'S NOT AT ALL WHAT YOU'D IMAGINE A PUBLISHER TO BE—HE'S JUST A ROUGH-AN'-READY REGULAR FELLOW AN' HE'S PROMISED TO READ YOUR BOOK PERSONALLY, HIMSELF!
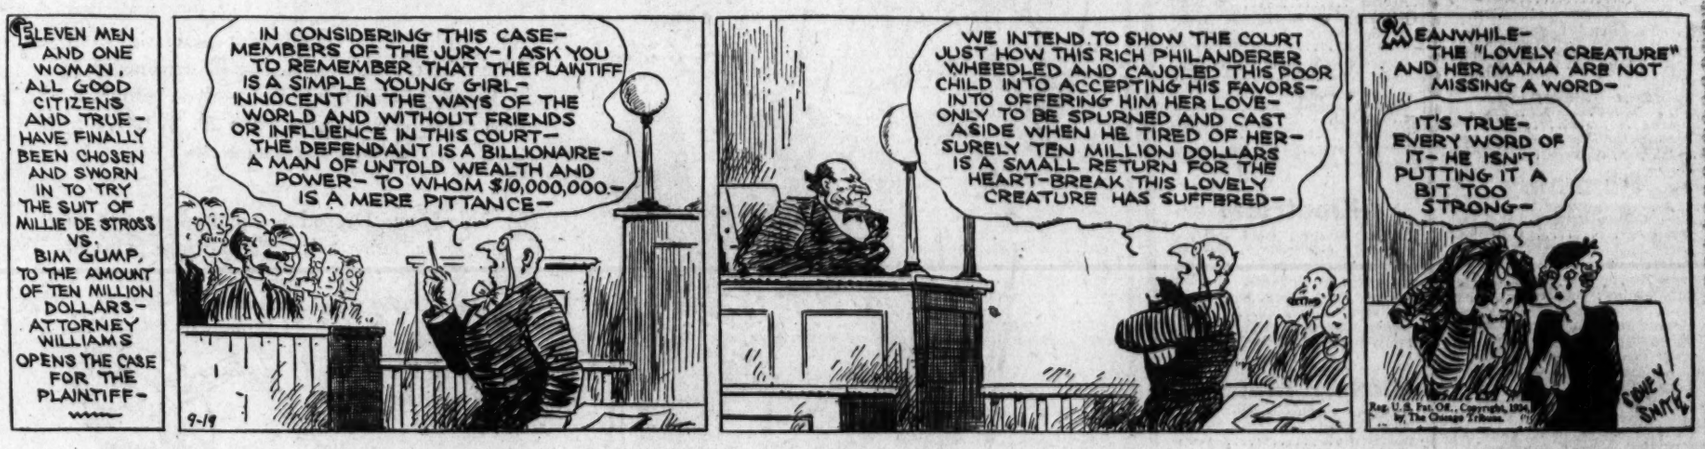
GEE, DIXIE'S COMING THROUGH GREAT! ONLY NOW I'M BEGINNING TO FEEL BAD ABOUT MISS PENNLEY.....I'LL PAY HER 20 PER CENT JUST THE SAME, BUT I OUGHT TO LET HER KNOW NOW I'VE TAKEN THE BOOK OUT OF HER HANDS .....YES, I'LL WRITE TO HER—
BUT WHEN THE LETTER IS WRITTEN AND SEALED—EDGIE DECIDES THAT THE DECENT THING TO DO WOULD BE TO TALK TO MISS PENNLEY PERSONALLY
OH—IS MISS PENNLEY OUT OF TOWN? WHERE? AT HER SUMMER HOME—?
I KNOW WHAT—I'LL FLY UP THERE!—I'M SO DARN HAPPY ABOUT MY BOOK I FEEL LIKE FLYING, ANYWAY!

THE GUMPS — The Bombardment Has Begun



ELEVEN MEN AND ONE WOMAN, ALL GOOD CITIZENS AND TRUE—HAVE FINALLY BEEN CHOSEN AND SWORN IN TO TRY THE SUIT OF MILLIE DE STROSS VS. BIM GUMP, TO THE AMOUNT OF TEN MILLION DOLLARS—ATTORNEY WILLIAMS OPENS THE CASE FOR THE PLAINTIFF—
IN CONSIDERING THIS CASE—MEMBERS OF THE JURY—I ASK YOU TO REMEMBER THAT THE PLAINTIFF IS A SIMPLE YOUNG GIRL—INNOCENT IN THE WAYS OF THE WORLD AND WITHOUT FRIENDS OR INFLUENCE IN THIS COURT—THE DEFENDANT IS A BILLIONAIRE—A MAN OF UNTOLD WEALTH AND POWER—TO WHOM $10,000,000.—IS A MERE PITTANCE—
WE INTEND TO SHOW THE COURT JUST HOW THIS RICH PHILANDERER WHEEDLED AND CAJOLED THIS POOR CHILD INTO ACCEPTING HIS FAVORS—INTO OFFERING HIM HER LOVE—ONLY TO BE SPURNED AND CAST ASIDE WHEN HE TIRED OF HER—SURELY TEN MILLION DOLLARS IS A SMALL RETURN FOR THE HEART-BREAK THIS LOVELY CREATURE HAS SUFFERED—

Old Songs.

The good old songs, so sweetly sung, long, long ago, when we were young! The graybeards now are prone to say, "The fine songs of that bygone day are better far than modern lays that are produced by jazzy jays." When evening shades obscured the land, around the organ we would stand, and sing of dear, dead Belle Mahone, and of her lover left alone; and she was billed, it seemed, to wait, to wait for him at Heaven's gate, and meanwhile he, immersed in gloom, would keep his vigil at her tomb, and spend the long and dreary years in heaving sighs and shedding tears. And of the Hazel Dell we'd sing, until we made the welkin ring. In that lone dell a lovely maid by undertakers had been laid; and there her lover stood and wept and tore his hair while others slept, and hoped he'd not be long delayed in following that vanished maid. Of all the songs we used to wail, the saddest one was "Lily Dale." For we were called to Lily's bed some little time ere she was dead, and had to watch her fade away, and hear just what she had to say. In nearly all the songs we sung we mourned for girls who perished young, but they were dead and sound asleep ere we began to wail and weep, and Lily's scheme was not so good, we thought, as by her couch we stood. The style was set by Robert Burns, whose "Mary," where sweet Afton turns, inspired about a million harps to celebrate, in flats and sharps, the lovely maidens gone before, sweet Mary and Lost Lenore. The brisk songs of the modern crowds are not engaged with tombs and shrouds and that's a blessing, sure enough, in times when trouble is the stuff.

Trade Parley Today to Talk NRA, Labor

Industrial Leaders Here for 3-Day Session at Shoreham.

Current labor problems and all phases of the NRA will be discussed at the annual convention of the American Trade Association Executives which opens a three-day session today at the Shoreham Hotel. The meeting will be attended by executives from every important industry in the country.

"So vital is the scheduled program to the interests of all concerned with trade association work and code administration," Paul S. Collier, the president, said yesterday, "that the A. T. A. E., for the first time, extends an earnest invitation to nonmember trade associations and code authority executives to attend the general sessions of the convention and to participate in the discussions."

The National recovery act will be examined today from the viewpoint of the industrialist, the distributor and the agriculturist. Speakers will be Ralph E. Flanders, president of the Jones & Lamson Machine Co. and a member of the National Advisory and Planning Council; Channing Sweitzer, managing director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association; Charles J. Brand, secretary-treasurer of the National Fertilizers Association, and Harper Sibley, of Sibley Farms, Inc., of Rochester, N. Y.

Self-government in industry will be discussed at the afternoon session. The part supposed to be played by the NRA in industrial self-government will be told by Blackwell Smith, assistant administrator for policy of the NRA. Other speakers will be Charles P. Carvin, secretary and general manager of the National Stationers Association; Preston McKinney, of the Industrial Advisory Board, NRA; Roud McCann, director of the American Dry Milk Institute, and C. A. Pickett, secretary-treasurer of the Texas Trade Association Executives.

'Beggar on Horseback' Jailed for Bad Temper

Kansas City, Sept. 18 (AP).—When John Eastman, 74, was refused "alms for the poor and needy" today by Mrs. J. W. Norris, wife of a police sergeant, he became abusive and used threatening language.

Eastman was arrested and police said he had $2,000 in a Kansas City bank and $240.65 in cash.
